CONTRACTORS SUE FOR INJUNCTION AGAINST UNION

Barnes & Barnes Charge Electrical Workers' Agent Is Interfering With Their Work.

ALLEGE MOTIVE IS RETALIATION

Assert He Holds Them Partly Responsible for Anti-Trust Charges Made by Attorney-General.

Suit for an injunction was filed in Circuit Court yesterday against Electrical Workers' Local Union No. 1, O. E. Jennings, international union representative, and officers of the local union, by Barnes & Barnes, electrical contractors, of 3306 Park avenue, who are seeking to have the union enjoined from interference with electrical installation in the Melbourne Hotel addition and elsewhere.

The petition states that officers of the union called electricians off several of the company's jobs and have notified the general contractor for the hotel annex that, unless the electrical installation is awarded to some other contractor, there will be no union electricians on the job this week.

The petition states that Barnes & Barnes have complied with the terms of the existing agreement between electrical contractors and the union, and that the union leaders are acting in violation of the agreement.

Jennings recently made a public statement to the effect that the Barnes & Barnes Co. is partly responsible for the anti-trust charges recently brought against electrical contractors in St. Louis by Attorney-General Shartel, the petition states. The removal of electricians from several contracts and the threat to take away the 15 men employed by Barnes & Barnes on the Melbourne contract, is an attempt at retaliation, the petition charges.

A temporary restraining order, returnable next Wednesday, prohibiting the removal of electricians from the Melbourne job was issued by Circuit Judge Fitzsimmons. Under the five-day week and the Labor day holiday, all union building workmen quit work Friday evening and will not return until Tuesday.

ROCKEFELLER'S GRANDNEPHEW KILLED IN FRENCH AUTO CRASH

Marcellus Hartley Dodge Jr. Princeton Graduate, in Car That Hit Tree.

BORDEAUX, France, Aug. 30.—Marcellus Hartley Dodge Jr., a grand-nephew of John D. Rockefeller Sr., was killed near Manesq on the road from Bordeaux to Bayonne, today as the small American car in which he was driving with Ralph Applegate crashed against a cork tree. Applegate, a young American friend of Dodge, was taken to the hospital at Dax with a broken left leg, injuries to the head and body bruises. His condition was not considered grave. The cause of the accident was not known but it was believed the man at the wheel had been overcome by the extreme heat.

MADISON, N. J., Aug. 30.—M. Hartley Dodge Jr., was the son of the daughter of the late William Rockefeller and his father, said the Associated Press dispatch which told of the accident and was the only notification received at the Dodge home.

The young man sailed for Germany July 17 with Ralph Applegate, said to be of Kansas City. He was a Princeton University graduate in the class of 1930. At Princeton he was a member of the football squad.

BANK PRESIDENT ARRESTED ON $85,000 SHORTAGE CHARGE

Paul Lipinski, Hammond, Ind., and Loan Company's Secretary Held; $225,000 Deficit Alleged.

HAMMOND, Ind., Aug. 30.—Paul Lipinski, president of the Northern Trust and Savings Bank of Hammond, was arrested at his home today. He is charged with embezzling $85,000 of the funds of the First Polish Building and Loan Association, for which he was cashier.

Lipinski was reported missing last night when the warrant was issued, but appeared today with his attorney. His arrest followed that of Boleslaw Salik, secretary-treasurer, following the disclosure of a shortage of $225,000 in the funds of the two institutions. Salik is in jail in default of $50,000 bond.

HOOVER CALLS FOR SPEEDING OF U. S. BUILDING PROGRAM

In Conference at Rapidan Camp Tells Treasury and Postoffice Representatives to Cut Red Tape and Get Action.

By the Associated Press.

LURAY, Va., Aug. 30.—President Hoover today asked Postoffice and Treasury officials to hurry along public building now under way and to finish as soon as practicable 250 surveys proceeding under the 10-year construction program. His request was made with a view to improving employment conditions and was similar to a decision to speed up flood control work made at a conference at his lodge near here last week.

With Ferry K. Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and John W. Philp, Assistant Postmaster-General, who are in charge of building projects in their respective departments, Mr. Hoover discussed the status of the $673,000,000 10-year program begun two years ago and found it could be hastened considerably by eliminating red tape.

Calls for Short Cuts.

Althought the Government is far ahead of the $47,000,000 original annual expenditure planned for construction in and out of the national capital, Mr. Hoover was understood to have informed the two officials to take as many short cuts as possible. By such action he hopes the Federal Government will set an example for states, municipalities and individual builders to follow.

Mr. Hoover also made it plain that extensive leasing of buildings throughout the country by the Government has been and will continue to be regarded by him as a waste of public money. To put the Government in its own quarters as far as possible was said to be one of his chief ambitions.

In line with this policy, it was said, the Postoffice Department is terminating leases throughout the country as rapidly as possible and is looking for its own quarters. No new leases will be entered into.

New projects are under way in the capital contemplating an additional expenditure this year of $60,000,000, the President was told. Already $50,000,000 has been expended in the capital in 1930.

$30,000,000 in Buildings.

A total of $30,000,000 is involved in building work outside of Washington. This, it was said, is three times the normal expenditure planned under the 10-year program for the period covered in the contract.

Out of a total of more than 500 buildings in as many cities and towns embraced in the 10-year program, 84 are completed, 78 are in course of construction, 77 or more sites have been acquired with building designs adopted but no contracts let, and 45 sites chosen with designs yet to be approved.

The whole program is divided into two parts, with $363,000,000 contemplated for outside and $310,000,000 within the national capital.

During their first day of the week-end at the Rapidan River lodge, the executive went for his usual stroll over the mountain trails, while Mrs. Hoover and the women guests followed the bridle paths.

MICHIGAN CAMP OF REDS RAIDED, 10 LEADERS HELD

Children Sing Communist Songs While 20 Officers Make Arrests and Seize Letters.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 30.—Ten arrests were made by 20 Sheriff's officers in a raid on a Communist camp for children in Oakland County, near here.

Members of the raiding party said letters were found in a safe indicating that the camp was conducted under instructions from Russia.

Those arrested were said to have been heads of the camp. The children were returned to their homes, most of them living in Detroit.

Prosecutor Norman C. Orr of Oakland County led the raiding party. A quantity of Communist magazines, books and newspapers were seized. No resistance was offered and the children sang Communist songs while the raid was in progress.

Those arrested were registered at the Oakland County jail, Pontiac, as follows:

Roman Wenarchup, 40 years old, Highland Park; Peter Kistonoff, 35; George Roman, 25; Robert Wood, 32; Martin Gottfried, 26, and Samuel Herman, 43, all of Detroit, and Leo Herman, 19; Boris Bondi, 38; Samuel Best, 42, and Joseph Koch, giving their addresses as the camp.

The search warrant upon which the raid was made was issued upon affidavit of Jack Wise, Pontiac, who spent a week in the camp as a professed Communist but actually an investigator for Prosecutor Orr.

His affidavit said he "heard revolutionary songs sung and that he has heard revolutionary arguments advanced and has seen literature upon said premises advocating the duty, necessity and propriety of crime, sabotage, violence and other unlawful methods of terrorism as a means of accomplishing industrial and political reform and the establishment of the Soviet union of the United States, the same as now prevails in Russia.

The camp has been in operation for several years. It is located on an 80-acre farm and includes barracks, dining room, offices and a small pond used for swimming.

No charges have been preferred against the ten men arrested but Prosecutor Orr said some of them would be charged with criminal syndicalism.

JUDGE RULES U. S. DRY ACT IS IN EFFECT IN CANAL ZONE

Holds Ships Leaving Colon With Liquor Break Law; Those Passing Through Not Affected.

By the Associated Press.

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Aug. 30.—Prohibition was held by District Judge James J. Lenihan today to be in effect in the Canal Zone just as in the United States.

All ships that leave Colon carrying liquor are considered in the Judge's decision to be violating the United States law. This is not applicable to ships merely passing through the Canal.

In a written opinion Judge Lenihan ruled that under Article 3 of the treaty with Panama the United States "enjoys the rights of sovereignty in and over the lands and waters of the Canal Zone to the exclusion of the exercise by the Republic of Panama of any such sovereign rights, power or authority."

APPEALS TO CONGRESS TO SAVE OLD WASHINGTON NEWS STAND

Police Order Place, Conducted by Two Young Men, Removed From Sidewalk.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—For many years a portable news stand has been doing business on Pennsylvania avenue, near the Post Office Department. It is the only place in the capital that sells all out-of-town papers. A move on the part of the Washington police to eliminate it is meeting with resistance, and the owners, two young men, have appealed to members of Congress. Senator Simmons of North Carolina and others have taken the matter up with the commissioners of the District of Columbia, urging its retention.

LONDON HEAT WAVE CAUSES EIGHT DEATHS IN A DAY

While Temperature Is Lower Than Day Before, Humidity Is Increased.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Eight persons died today from England's storm-proof heat wave, which continued with high humidity despite heavy storms in the North and cooler breezes in the South yesterday and during the night.

The highest temperature in London today was 81 degrees, 13 lower than yesterday's highest reading, but the increase in humidity more than counterbalanced the drop in the thermometer.

Eighty-one degrees in London is in any case considerably more humid and unpleasant than the same temperature on the other side of the Atlantic. Indications are that the heat wave will continue over the week-end.

LILLIAN GISH DECLARES SHE IS THROUGH WITH MOVIES

Actress, on Return From Europe, Says She Prefers the Stage.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Lillian Gish, returning from abroad on the liner Paris today, said she would never act in another moving picture, but would confine her activities to the legitimate stage, "because I prefer the stage."

She said she had not been asked to play opposite Paul Robeson, Negro star, in an American production of Shakspeare's "Othello," but "if Robeson is, as one hears, the greatest actor of Othello in the world, I should be glad to play opposite him." Miss Gish played last spring in a stage revival of Chekhov's "Uncle Vanya."

BLIND STUDENT GETS DEGREE FROM UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

Son of Janitor Elected to Phi Beta Kappa; in College Through Scholarships.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Raymond Dickinson, 24 years old, was blinded in an automobile accident four years ago, six months before he entered the University of Chicago. Yesterday he received his degree of Bachelor of Philosophy. Last spring he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Dickinson, the son of an apartment house janitor, went through college on scholarships.

"I want to write about people and their action," he said, "Because of my blindness I have more time than the average individual to meditate."

He is a steady Braille system reader. When a new philosophical work is not in the Braille system, he has it read to him. He plays bridge with a deck of cards punched with Braille dots.

CARAWAY DONE WITH FLYING TILL HE GETS TO BE AN ANGEL

Airsick From Washington to Sedalia; Knew Missouri Farmers by Their Clothes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Senator Caraway (Dem.), Arkansas, said today: "I'm through with flying till I get to be an angel."

He reached this conclusion, he said, on an air voyage from Washington to Sedalia, Mo., and back. Traveling in a small land plane with an open cockpit, he was airsick before he reached St. Louis. He hoped it might be different in another plane. But it was not.

"Before we got to St. Louis, on the way back, I was just as sick," he said, "but I got another plane there. I was sick all the way here."

The Senator said he addressed a meeting of farmers at Sedalia. "There were several hundred farmers out for the meeting—the same farmers I talked to back in 1922, and again in 1924 and again in 1928—through the years of Republican prosperity," he said. "In all frankness, I couldn't recognize their faces; but I told them I knew them by their clothes."

SOVIET ARCTIC EXPLORERS REPORT DISCOVERING LAND

Island They Claim Thought to Be Continuation of the Taimyr Peninsula.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Aug. 30.—Soviet Arctic explorers in 79:25 north 76:10 east report discovering land, thought to be an archipelago of some magnitude.

The expedition, which has lived aboard the ice-breaker Sedov, is building a house on island in which four men will remain this winter with fuel and supplies sufficient for three years. The island, on which they planted the Soviet flag, has been named Sergius Kaminov, in honor of the president of the Soviet exploration party and the Vice-Commissar of War.

It is thought here the new lands may be a continuation of the Taimyr Peninsula.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 30.—Four men are dead and two seriously ill following a party today at which a quantity of whisky is said to have been consumed.

Police found three bottles at the scene of the party, one labeled "completely denatured alcohol," which a physician said showed traces of carbolic acid and the other two labeled "bay rum."

MAJ. GEN. ALLEN, OCCUPATION ARMY COMMANDER, DIES

Succumbs Suddenly to Heart Attack at German Embassy Resort at Buena Vista Springs, Pa.

WAS ORIGINATOR OF GENERAL STAFF

In Service 41 Years, Retiring in 1923—Took Part in Mexican Punitive Expedition.

By the Associated Press.

BUENA VISTA SPRINGS, Pa., Aug. 30.—Major-General Henry T. Allen died suddenly of heart disease today while visiting at one of the summer cottages of the German Embassy here. He was stricken while standing on the porch viewing the scenery. Gen. Allen resided in Washington. He was 71 years old.

As he collapsed, Gen. Allen fell from the veranda, which overlooks a bluff, and fell about 15 feet. Dr. H. C. Bridges of Blue Ride Summit, who was called, said, however, that the fall had nothing to do with the General's death, as he was undoubtedly dead before he fell from the porch. A blood cloth in the heart, curbing circulation, was given as the cause of death.

Gen. and Mrs. Allen were paying an afternoon call at the home of Dr. Rudolph Leitner, first secretary of the German Embassy and a close friend of Allen.

The body was taken to an undertaker's parlor at Waynesboro, the nearest town, seven miles away.

Arrangements for the funeral of General Allen had not been made late today, but it was expected that the body would be sent to Washington and interred at Arlington.

Two daughters survive besides his widow. One is Mrs. Frank M. Andrews of Washington, wife of Col. Frank M. Andrews of the United States Army and the other is Mrs. Benjamin Viner at present traveling in Brazil.

Commanded Army of Occupation in Germany.

From start to finish of his army career, Gen. Allen took on constantly ascending responsibilities, culminating with one of the most delicate tasks ever undertaken by an American army officer, command of the Army of Occupation in Germany after the armistice.

He had been fitted for the final major task of his life by contacts with men and conditions in many parts of the world. Born at Sharpsburg, Ky., April 13, 1859, he went from preparatory school to West Point. Soon after his graduation in 1882 he made an excursion to Alaska as an explorer.

Then, in rapid succession, his army assignments carried him to Russia, Germany, Cuba, and the Philippines, and into Mexico with Pershing's punitive expedition. He went to France as a division commander, and later was a corps chieftain in the A. E. F. Distinguished service there during the World War won for him the honor of heading the American forces on the Rhine.

Gen. Allen took part in the Toul sector, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, being assigned as commander of the Eighth Army Corps in November, 1918, of the Ninth Corps in April, 1919, and of the Seventh the following month. In July he took over the command of the Rhine forces. He was decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal, the Croix de Guerre and other foreign orders.

Gen. Allen's ascendency in military ranks terminated only after 41 years' continuous service. He was retired at 64, after which he lived quietly in Washington, devoting a part of his time to writing of his years of military adventure.

Allen's Family in Germany.

Under his command the American Army of Occupation was nicknamed "Allen's family on the Rhine." The General himself was given the sobriquet King. Of this era, Major General Harboard wrote:

"Henry T. Allen, formerly commander of the Ninetieth Division in the A. E. F., was the All Highest in Coblenz. He held in check, disciplined and ordered, 15,000 khaki-clad Americans and kept the former enemy in good humor by a just and benevolent authority."

Despite the General's enthusiastic participation in sports, his hunt club rides in colorful silks and velvet attire, and his feasting in marble halls with Europe's Premiers and Marshals, his command

Famous Aviator in Chicago Crash

MAJ. JOHN A. MACREADY, who, with Lieut. Kelly, made the first non-stop flight across the United States, in May, 1923. Immediately after he was married to Miss Nellie Turner of Los Angeles, who had promised to be his wife if successful in the trans-continental journey. The accident to Maj. MacReady in Chicago yesterday was the third serious mishap during the national air meet.

PREMIER M'DONALD IN HOUSE THAT IS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Has Narrow Escape When He Halts on Airplane Flight on Way to England.

By the Associated Press.

LOSSIEMOUTH, Scotland, Aug. 30.—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, arriving by plane at his Scottish home today, told his family he had narrowly escaped injury yesterday from a stroke of lightning during the storm that raged over Northern England. He took refuge in a house while waiting for the storm to pass, and a bolt of lightning struck it. There was a terrific explosion and all the electric light fuses were blown out.

"It was the worst thunderstorm I have ever known in this country," he said. "There was no break in it after flying a long way through the clouds, so we had to turn back. We tried to get up by the East Coast, but there was a low, heavy fog around Berwick. In the end we returned to Catterick. We had not been down many minutes when a terrible storm, which lasted many hours, broke. In the course of the thunderstorm the house we were staying in was struck by lightning. All the electric fuses were blown out and there was a terrible explosion, but no fire. We motored on into Darlington and in places the roads were almost impassable."

SHOOTING OF REPUTED BEER RUNNER LAID TO GANG FEUD

Detroit Bootlegger Soliciting Business in Chicago Wounded As He Stands in Hotel Lobby.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Police think a feud among rival Detroit gangs is responsible for the shooting of Alfred Dostal, 30 years old, as he stood in the lobby of a West Side hotel this afternoon. He is in a hospital wounded in the hip and the abdomen. Police said Dostal admitted he was a Detroit beer runner in Chicago soliciting business. He refused to discuss the shooting, however.

The hotel manager, David Epstein, said a stranger entered the lobby and walked over to Dostal. "Hello, Al," Epstein quoted the man as saying, "Come on outside. I want to talk to you." Epstein then heard the shots fired.

The automobile in which Dostal's assailant escaped was said by a witness to have a Michigan license plate.

FARM PRICE INDEX LOWEST FOR AUGUST SINCE 1915

Further Decline in Fruits, Vegetables, Cotton and Beef Reported.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—A further decline in farm prices for fruits and vegetables, cotton and cotton seed and for meat animals excepting hogs during the month ending Aug. 15 was reported today by the Agriculture Department.

The farm price index was 35 points lower than a year ago and at the lowest August level since 1915.

Feed grains and hay prices, however, made a general advance attributed to a shortage of supplies in the drouth areas. Wheat and rye prices to the farmer showed "a moderate recovery."

"Dairy and poultry products advanced," the report continued, "because of the decline in production, because of the unusually hot, dry weather."

KILLS HUSBAND, HAULS BODY AWAY IN AUTO

Greybull, Wyo., Postmaster's Wife Admits Murder After Quarrel Over Woman.

By the Associated Press.

GREYBULL, Wyo., Aug. 30. — Authorities today obtained a confession from Mrs. Charles Fitzmaurice that she killed her husband, Greybull Postmaster, early last Sunday morning, after a quarrel over other women.

Thomas McKinney, County Attorney, said Mrs. Fitzmaurice admitted firing two shots, carrying her husband's body to an automobile and hauling it several miles outside the city, where she threw it in a clump of grass. The following day the woman called at the postoffice to inquire about her husband, she told authorities, in order to avert suspicion.

Fitzmaurice's death was at first thought to have been a suicide, but it was discovered Fitzmaurice's shirt had been cut away where the bullets entered his body, in order to remove evidence of powder burns, but burns were found on the man's underclothing.

Tracks left on the ground by an automobile near the body were measured and corresponded with those on the Postmaster's car, which officers learned had not been used the night of the killing by Fitzmaurice. During the week the widow was questioned daily and the many discrepancies in her statement, authorities said, convinced them she killed her husband.

EARTHQUAKE IN LOS ANGELES AND MANY ADJACENT CITIES

Bridge Sags, Buildings Sway and Clocks Stop; Metropolitan Area Badly Shaken.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 30.—An earthquake of approximately 30 seconds' duration shook Los Angeles and adjacent cities at 4:39 p. m. today, causing slight damage in some outlying communities. No one was injured.

The quake seemed to center in the Santa Monica Bay district, where three distinct shocks were felt. From all parts of the bay district householders reported clocks stopped and pictures turned askew.

In Venice, part of Los Angeles, a bridge spanning the speedway and connecting two buildings sagged and a large portion of one of the walls fell, narrowly missing a bus loaded with passengers. The speedway, main traffic artery, was roped off to all traffic.

The tremor was felt as far north as Ventura, but not in Santa Barbara nor to the south in Imperial Valley.

The metropolitan district was shaken badly. The higher office buildings swayed visibly, while telephone wires bobbed up and down violently. Chimneys in several districts were shaken down.

Cities reporting the quake included Pasadena, Inglewood, Santa Monica, Ventura, Norwalk, Alhambra, South Pasadena and small towns between Los Angeles and Ventura.

MAJ. M'READY INJURED WHEN HE CRASHES IN CHICAGO RACE

CONDITION SERIOUS BUT NOT GRAVE

This Is Fourteenth Casualty at This Meeting—German Trans-Atlantic Flyers Are Greeted With Fireworks.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Maj. John A. MacReady, noted air pilot, was severely injured when he lost control of his plane while rounding a pylon at an estimated speed of 162 miles an hour, and crashed, at the National Air Races today.

A wing strut folded as MacReady turned the course in the first leg of the free-for-all speed event, according to witnesses. The ship spiraled for an instant, but by skillful maneuvering the former army ace brought it to earth right side up. The plane struck with terrific force, bounded high into the air, and was demolished on the rebound.

Maj. MacReady, holder of altitude and speed records, was taken from the wreckage unconscious and sent to an Evanston hospital, where his condition was reported serious but not grave. An examination disclosed a fractured shoulder, fractured nose, head and body bruises. X-ray photographs will be taken to determine the extent of his injuries.

Maj. MacReady planned to fly in the Thompson Trophy race on Labor day. In preparation for this he took his plane out early today to practice the pylon turns. His plane was said to be capable of more than 200 miles an hour.

The accident occurred near a pylon three miles from the airport and out of sight of the spectators in the stand.

MacReady was the fourteenth person injured since the air meet opened eight days ago. There have been three fatalities.

German Flyers Greeted.

Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, Fritz Albrecht, Edward Zimmer and Frank Hack, the German flyers who crossed the Atlantic by the northern route, arrived here in their flying boat, the Dornier-Wal, early in the afternoon. They were met over the Municipal Pier in Chicago by an escort of army planes.

The Dornier-Wal is not equipped to be set down on land, so the flyers circled the field, flew low over the grandstand, and took it to the Great Lakes Naval Station to be docked. The Germans were saluted with aerial bombs. An hour or so later they returned to the races by automobile and remained the rest of the day as guests of honor.

Multi-Motored Ships Race.

A race for multi-motored ships featured the day's program. It was won by a tri-motored Ford plane which flew the 50-mile distance at an average speed of 144.24 miles an hour. Flown by Leroy Manning of Dearborn, Mich., the big plane cut the pylons as closely as do the small racing ships, then, upon finishing the race performed a loop.

A tri-motored Bach plane finished second, maintaining an average speed of 137.44 miles an hour. It was flown by W. J. Fleming, Glendale, Cal. A Curtiss-Robertson plane flown by Frank Kern, St. Louis, dropped out of the race in the fifth lap.

Ben O. Howard of St. Louis, flying a tiny plane of his own design won the race in which Maj. MacReady crashed. He also won another free-for-all race with the same plane earlier in the day.

The first free-for-all was limited to motors of 350 cubic inch piston displacement or less. In it Howard averaged 163.01 miles an hour. E. V. Newson of Little Rock, Ark., was second and J. R. Wedell of Patterson, La., third.

For the second event of the kind, limited to motors of a maximum of 800 cubic inches piston displacement, Howard had to make 162.43 miles an hour to win. Errett Williams of Patterson, La.,

TWO AMERICANS FACING TRIAL BY PERUVIAN JUNTA

C. W. Sutton, in Charge of Irrigation, and Capt. Grow, Aviation Chief Under Leguia.

STATE DEPARTMENT OF U. S. INVESTIGATES

Deposed President Reported Still Aboard Warship, Too Ill to Be Removed to Prison.

By the Associated Press.

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 30.—Peru's new military Junta bore down heavily today on former President Augusto B. Leguia and the adherents of his 11-year administration.

Leguia and his son Juan are to be imprisoned on San Lorenzo Island, Callao Harbor, the former to await trial and punishment for his acts in office.

Newspapers reported today the transfer from the cruiser Almirante Grau to the island had taken place, but later it was reported Dr. McCormack, attending the ex-President, had advised against landing him immediately because of his ill health and the Government had acquiesced. Dr. McCormack refused to make any statement, and the reports could not be checked from other sources.

Both Leguias will occupy the quarters of a former Leguia prisoner, Dr. Arturo Osores, exiled in New York. Their guard is headed by another Leguia prisoner, an officer released only when the revolt broke out.

The Government decided to suspend articles 24 and 31 of the constitution, dealing with the rights of citizens, in order that accused former officials "might not take advantage of certain constitutional rules to evade punishment."

Two Americans Arrested.

Among persons the Government intends to prosecute is a lieutenant-commander in the American Naval Reserve, Harold B. Grow. With the title of Captain he headed the Peruvian air force under Leguia. Lieutenant-Colonel Sanchez Cerro, leader of the revolt and head of the Junta, says he will be prosecuted because of a plan to bomb Arequipa under the former President's orders.

Charles W. Sutton, American engineer in charge of the Lambayeque Irrigation Works under Leguia, was charged today with embezzlement of public funds by Bernardo Checa, public prosecutor at Chiclayo. Sutton was arrested when he tried to leave Lambayeque by airplane, it is said. He has been in Peru for 25 years.

A Leguia project in public education was overturned, the Junta annulling a reorganization ordered by the former President shortly before his downfall.

In addition, the Prefect of Lima ordered the enforcement of a prohibition law which has been ignored for more than 10 years. This bars the sale of alcoholic beverages on Saturdays and Sundays.

State Department Inquires After Americans Arrested in Peru.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The State Department today took notice of the reported arrest by the new Peruvian military junta of Charles W. Sutton, an American engineer employed by the former government of Peru. An inquiry into his case accompanied a move to obtain further information concerning Harold B. Grow, American naval reserve aviator, who is reported to be facing court-martial.

Acting Secretary Castle sent a note to Ferdinand L. Mayer, American Charge D'Affaires at Lima, requesting all available data concerning both men. The note was not made public.

Secretary Stimson, immediately after the capture of Grow at Camana, Aug. 24, instructed Mayer to make "all appropriate efforts to effect the release of Grow."

Castle, said the case of Grow, who was under contract with the former Peruvian Government as head of its civil commercial and military aeronautics, presented a complicated problem, possibly involving neutrality laws and other international questions.

The State Department made public a cable message from Lima in which the new Peruvian Government gave assurances it would comply strictly with Peruvian international agreements, and "maintain the good relations which unite Peru with the United States."

24 COUNTRIES APPROVE ROOT WORLD COURT PROTOCOL

Copyright, 1930, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (the New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

GENEVA, Aug. 30.—Six more countries have decided to welcome the United States into a Permanent Court of International Justice, in accordance with the reservations on advisory opinions contained in the Root protocol, is is disclosed at headquarters of the League of Nations.

They are Canada, Australia, Finland, Greece, Latvia and San Salvador. They had not only deposited their ratifications of the Root protocol but also the ratifications of the protocol for the revision of the court's statutes. This action brings the total number of states that have welcomed the United States to 24.

Liberia, Belgium, Persia, Japan and Haiti, which have all complied with the League's request to ratify before Sept. 1 the protocol for the revision of statutes, have showed no enthusiasm to approve the Root protocol.

To date seven court members have ignored appeals from Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the League, to indicate their feelings toward the revision of statutes. They are France, Italy, Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria, Chili, Esthonia and Venezuela.

Eight other countries which have signed the statutes but have not ratified them—Bolivia, Colombia, San Domingo, Costa Rico, Guatemala, Nicaragua, Paraguay and Luxemburg—are ignoring the League's appeals.

HURLEY PILOTS PLANE IN STORM ON RIVER INSPECTION

Secretary of War Arrives at St. Paul to Start Tour Down Mississippi.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 30.—After fighting a severe thunderstorm, through which Secretary of War Hurley personally piloted his giant transport plane, he and his party arrived here today to begin from the Twin Cities an extensive survey of the Mississippi River flood control, rivers and harbors and inland waterways projects.

Frequently over the low hills, one plane carrying members of the party and piloted by Lieut. L. L. Beery was forced almost to the ground by squalls and heavy winds.

Upon advice of Major-General Thomas Q. Ashburn, chairman of the Inland Waterways Corporation, Hurley has decided to make his trip of the entire Mississippi during the daytime, and arrangements have been made to tie up the engineers' boat carrying the party each night at sunset no matter where the stop is made.

The first inspection to be made was one from the air while the planes were over Chicago, when the course of the Chicago River was flown by the pilots to afford the party an opportunity to view the diversion project there.

FLYERS FAIL TO FIND TRACE OF EXPLORERS LOST IN 1848

Aviators Returning from Arctic Region to Canada After Searching for Sir John Franklin.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 30.—Maj. L. T. Burwash, Arctic explorer, and his pilot, W. E. Gilbert, will return to civilization without having reached King William's land, for which they set out in a seaplane more than a week ago to search for traces of Sir John Franklin and his party of 129 men who perished there in 1848.

At Fort Hearne, far north outpost, they have been waiting for a week for their gasoline supply. Weather in September becomes too uncertain for flying in the Arctic region.

"They must come out within the next few days," W. T. Brintnell, managing director of Western Canada Airways, who has been in radio communication with them, said today.

FRANCIS X. WALSH DIES ON GOLF LINKS OF HEART ATTACK

Director of Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co.— Succumbs While Playing at the Normandie Club.

TWO DOCTORS IN HIS FOURSOME

They Attempt Artificial Respiration for Half an Hour Without Success—Climbing Hill When Stricken.

Francis X. Walsh, a director of the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., died suddenly of heart disease on the links of the Normandie Golf Club yesterday afternoon while in the midst of a golf game with three friends.

Dr. Willis Hall and Dr. Otto Schwartz, who were in the foursome, attempted artificial respiration for half an hour but without success. Dr. Hall expressed the opinion that Mr. Walsh died instantly.

Mr. Walsh, who lived at 5128 Raymond avenue, was 64 years old and had been actively connected with the Rice-Stix company for 40 years. He left his office shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday to join the two physicians and W. W. Butts, real estate dealer, for an afternoon at the Normandie Club.

They were climbing a rather steep hill on the eleventh hole when Mr. Walsh collapsed.

"I was about 30 feet ahead of him," Dr. Hall said, "when the caddy cried out. I turned around and saw that Mr. Walsh had fallen. Although his heart apparently had stopped beating, Dr. Schwartz and I worked for half an hour before we abandoned hope."

Dr. Hall said he had been the Walsh family physician for 40 years and that Mr. Walsh had seldom complained of ill health except recently when he suffered occasionally attacks of gastritis.

Mr. Walsh is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret A. Walsh, one son and five daughters. His son is the Rev. Edmund Walsh of Detroit and his daughters, Mother Lucille and Mother Mary of the Sacred Heart Convent here; Mrs. Charles Bishop Blood and Miss Frances and Miss Florence Walsh. His one brother, William E. Walsh of Latonia, Ky., died a month ago.

BALLOT BOXES IMPOUNDED IN THREE ALABAMA COUNTIES

Held for Grand Jury, Which Will Investigate Reports of Fraud.

By the Associated Press.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 30.—Ballot boxes used in the Democratic primary Aug. 12 were impounded today in two counties of Alabama, pending a grand jury investigation of reported frauds. Ballot boxes of Jackson and Chambers counties, the latter the home of Senator J. Thomas Heflin, independent candidate to succeed himself, have been impounded. Alleged irregularities in Madison County were being probed. Charles C. McCall, Attorney-General, said irregularities in other counties also had been charged and were being investigated.

In Jackson, Chambers and Madison counties, the independent followers of Senator Heflin conducted primaries in advance of the regular Democratic primary.

The complaints from Chambers and Jackson counties alleged that votes were cast in the name of dead persons; that others ineligible to vote cast ballots and that the boxes were "stuffed."

MYSTERIOUS FIRE DESTROYS PARTLY COMPLETED BUNGALOW

Blaze in Glendale of Incendiary Origin, Chief of Department Thinks; Damage $3500.

A partly completed five-room brick bungalow on Holbrook avenue, west of Sappington road, Glendale, was destroyed by fire about 9 o'clock last night, with a loss estimated by firemen at $3500.

Chief McGee of the Glendale Fire Department expressed the opinion the fire was of incendiary origin. All parts of the building were in flames when firemen arrived, he said.

A building permit for the bungalow was issued in May, 1929, to Harry Borden. No work had been done on the structure in recent months.

Book Begun by Andree Describes How Nobel Aided His Arctic Flight

Inventor of Dynamite Pledged Half of Needed Sum and King Oscar and Others Quickly Made Up Balance.

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 30.—It is recalled here that the chief financial supporter of the Andree expedition to the North Pole was Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite and donor of the annual Nobel prizes.

The two first met in 1887, Andree related in the introductory chapters of a book he had intended to publish about the expedition when he returned. Andree was then chief examiner in the Royal Swedish Bureau of Patents in Stockholm and Nobel called to discuss one of his inventions regarding the use of high explosives.

"It gave us occasion for a lively debate about inventions and everything else between Heaven and earth," wrote Andree. "The debate lasted three hours, during which we did our best to beat each other in original points of view and bold conclusions. I recall that when we separated, we had picked almost everything to pieces and had only very small atoms left to dispute about. But that, of course, was nothing to become unfriendly about, and we separated with hearty handclasps and mutual thanks for the pleasant acquaintance."

Met Again Eight Years Later.

They did not meet again until eight years later, when Andree had already announced his plan to fly to the North Pole, and was seeking financial support. Nobel then made another call at the patent office and asked Andree if he remembered him. He laughed heartily when Andree reminded him of their dispute eight years before and announced his readiness to continue where they had left off.

But Nobel said he had come for other purposes; to ask if he could contribute to the support of the Polar flight. On this point Andree could assure him that there was plenty of room. He had been promised some money, but had actually received none. He needed, he said, 128,700 crowns ($34,491). Nobel then said he would give "some suitable sum, say 20,000 crowns."

"At this announcement," Andress wrote, "I lost my cue as scientific debater."

Another 20,000 Promised.

A week later Andree reappeared to find out how much had been contributed and was told another 20,000 had been promised. "At that rate the balloon won't get to the Pole for a long time," said Nobel, who then promised to give half of the required sum, or 65,000 crowns, provided the other half was subscribed within two months—a condition intended to hasten other subscriptions.

This changed the situation entirely, as far as finances were considered, and made the project seem real instead of a vague idea.

Andree then went to the Swedish King, Oscar II, and got another 30,000. Next Baron Oscar Dickson of Gothenburg promised the remaining 30,000 and in 19 days Andree had obtained his capital, thanks to the intervention of Nobel. Not long afterward he began the journey that ended in his death.

61 PCT. OF AUTOS SOLD ON INSTALLMENT PLAN IN 1929

Less Than 4 Per Cent Forfeited for Failure to Maintain Payments, Census Bureau Reports.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Of all passenger automobiles sold in 1929, 61 per cent were purchased on the installment plan and less than 4 per cent were taken back by the seller for failure to maintain payments.

These figures, submitted to the Census Bureau by 425 automobile finance companies, showed the average deferred payment on each car was $444.30. Installment-purchased cars numbered 3,478,373, of which 1,820,435 were new and the rest secondhand.

Analyzing the reports, the American Motorists' Association found that purchases involving a one-third down payment resulted in only 2.8 per cent of repossessions, while payments of one-quarter resulted in 5.1 per cent of repossessions. Five of every 1000 car buyers attempted to escape their payments by absconding, the association reported.

COFFEE 24 CENTS A CUP IN GERMANY, SMUGGLING GAINS

High Import Tax Forces Price up to $1 a Pound; Many "Bootleggers" Caught.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—Smuggling coffee into Germany has become very profitable. One of the best organized coffee-running gangs was found by police and customs authorities in Hamburg, where the coffee was smuggled from ships in false-bottomed trucks.

The motive for such coffee-smuggling operations is Germany's import duty on coffee, 20 cents a pound unroasted and 35 cents a pound roasted. That makes coffee a costly drink. Coffee retailing at $1 a pound is fairly cheap here.

Even the visiting American is mildly astonished when he notices how many places charge an even mark (24 cents) for a portion of coffee. It is possible to find it, too, as low as 6 cents a cup; but that usually brings up the question of whether the beverage served really is coffee or an imitation.

NEW WAY TO ROB A STORE

Thieves in Auto Crash in Window, Take Diamonds.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Five men in automobile tonight crashed in a window of a Washington street jewelry store in the heart of the city and made off with diamonds valued by the proprietor at about $20,000, after firing two shots, one of which wounded the store manager in the thumb.

On hearing the crash of glass, George Goodman of Everett, manager of the store, rushed from his office in the rear. He was met by two shots from one of the gunmen. Both shots grazed by Henry Thibeault and Mrs. Nellie Dorothy. Meanwhile, another robber took two trays of diamonds through the hole made in the window. The pair then joined three waiting in an automobile and sped off.

PRIVATE INQUIRY INTO THE RECORD OF SENATOR NYE

Senator Dale Charges Attempt Is Being Made to Discredit Chairman of Funds Committee.

By the Associated Press.

FARGO, N. D. Aug. 30.—Senator Porter H. Dale, Vermont, member of the Senate Elections Investigating Committee, announced late today that the group will make every effort to determine for whom and for what purpose a private investigation has been made into the personal history of Senator Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota, chairman of the committee.

At a special meeting of the committee today, Dale directed questioning of C. C. Alberts, investigator for the Dannenberg Detective Agency of Chicago, whom Dale charged followed two committee agents, E. M. Daniel and W. H. Baldwin of Illinois, to Fargo from Chicago.

Alberts told the committee that an investigation of Nye has been under way for four weeks but denied knowing its purposes or for whom it is being made. R. F. Bash, another private detective, was subpenaed to appear before the committee as well as Alberts but did not.

"I was ordered to investigate the biography or Mr. Nye," was all Alberts would say, after denying time after time that he was aware of the motive of his investigation. He insisted that while he had interviewed political enemies of Nye, that he also talked with persons who supported the committee chairman politically.

Senator Dale said that the committee would meet in Chicago Sept. 15 when he intended to pursue the matter further.

"Apparently an effort is being made to discredit Nye," Dale said before the meeting adjourned. "This sort of an investigation is expensive and it is the committee's business to find out why and for whom this effort is being made."

MAJ. GEN. ALLEN, OCCUPATION ARMY COMMANDER, DIES

in Germany was not without a serious side. Added to his many official duties at that time was a membership on the Inter-Allied High Commission, and he often played the role of peacemaker between the Franco-British and German authorities in the Rhineland area. Germans, too, took to him their grievances, knowing his reputation as a fair and impartial arbiter.

As a result of his experiences in Germany, Allen was among the first to advocate American intervention in the reparations controversy. He worked out a plan which he submitted to the State Department proposing action which would have had the United States push France and Germany together. He publicly announced his belief that failure to ratify the peace treaty had left the United States in default in the eyes of Europe, and sought to correct this situation by having the Washington Government modify its isolation policy.

The ardor with which he took up the reparations and other international questions did not deter activities in other fields in the meanwhile. The General's sympathies for German war sufferers led him to organize the American Committee for the Relief of German Children. His work in that direction was said at the time to have prevented what would have been a great loss of life of German women and children during the winter of 1923-24.

He was instrumental in organizing the Army General Staff, his observations as military attache in Berlin and St. Petersburg having convinced him that such a system of Army direction was necessary at Washington. He became one of the pioneers through whose efforts the general staff plan was adopted during the incumbency of Elihu Root as Secretary of War. He also organized the Philippine constabulary, and was made its first chief in 1903.

TWO HIGH OFFICERS OF DRY BUREAU NAMED

R. C. Shaw Made Law Chief, and D. E. Avis, Head of Special Agents.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Two important posts in the Bureau of Prohibition were filled today with the appointment of Randolph C. Shaw as chief of the Division of Law and Dwight E. Avis as chief of special agents.

Director Woodcock said Shaw would be third in command in the national enforcement organization, with only himself and Assistant Director Jones ranking ahead.

As directing officer of the work of the special agents, a carefully chosen corps entrusted with the task of ferretting out major conspiracies to violate the dry laws, the responsibility of Avis' position, Woodcock said, could not be too greatly emphasized.

The bureau looks to the Division of Law, the director continued, for constant advice on the many legal problems that arise from day to day. In addition, it works with the Division of Industrial Alcohol of the Treasury Department in reviewing permits issued by the latter. It also must pass upon all petitions for pardons and paroles submitted by convicted violators of the prohibition laws and is entrusted with the collection of taxes and other penalties imposed upon violators.

Shaw is a legal resident of Cambridge, Mass., although the greater part of his life has been spent in Washington. For some time he has served as a special Assistant Attorney-General and previously held the post of assistant general counsel for the Veterans' Bureau. Before entering the Government service, Shaw was Washington correspondent for several newspapers.

Avis entered the service of the Prohibition Bureau in 1926. For the last year he has been in charge of the special agents' group at Detroit. He is a lawyer.

RANSOM LIKELY TO BE DEMANDED OF SOY'S PARTNER

Police Expect Kidnapers of Gambler to Follow Usual Procedure of Asking for $50,000.

HE WAS ABDUCTED ON McKINLEY BRIDGE

Chauffeur Made Report to Police After Informing Victim's Associates in Operation of Venice Resort.

If the gambler associates of John T. Soy, elderly proprietor of an East Side gaming house, have not already heard from the the men who kidnaped him Friday night on the MKinley Bridge, the police suspect that they will receive the customary demand for ransom during the next 24 hours.

The procedure in previous kidnapings of gamblers, bootleggers, bookmakers and other moneyed workers of the underworld is a demand for $50,000 ransom within a day after the kidnaping. In every case, to date, however, the demand for ransom has been substantially cut after the negotiations have been begun.

The kidnaping of Soy was reported to the police Friday night by his chauffeur, David Meifert, 4557A Alice avenue. Meifert's regular evening routine requires him to call for Soy at the Soy home, 450 Harris avenue, and take him to the Hyde Park Club in Venice, a resort which Soy operates in association with John P. Connor and Walter Sutter.

The Chauffeur's Story.

Friday evening about 7:30 o'clock Meifert called for Soy at a physician's office near the Soy home and together they started for Venice. The chauffeur reported that near the east approach of the McKinley Bridge he was halted on the narrow roadway by a black sedan which had pulled past him a few seconds before.

"The driver called for me to give him a push," Meifert said. "As I eased my car up to him three or four men, carrying pistols and wearing handkerchiefs across their faces, stepped from the shadow of the bridge piers and got into our car."

Soy and the chauffeur, according to the latter's account, were made to lie on the floor of the tonneau and driven to the Wabash tracks in Venice, where Soy was ordered out and presumably driven away in another car.

Meifert was driven to a point about 10 miles northeast of Venice, where the men stopped the car, got out and into another machine after telling Meifert: "All right, on your way." Meifert reported the kidnaping to Connor, and later to the St. Louis police.

Eleventh Kidnaping of Year.

Soy, who is about 65 years old, became known to the police about 35 years ago when he and Ferd Warner, like Soy a member of the old House of Delegates, ran a saloon and gambling house at Broadway and Montgomery street. Later they were partners in a tailoring shop in the Arcade Building and in various gaming resorts on the East Side.

The police think that the kidnapers will be most likely to get in touch with Connor, who, they understand, handles the Hyde Park Club's dealings with the underworld. Soy and Sutter are known as quiet, retiring men, who avoid contact with gang collectors as much as possible.

Connor himself was kidnaped in 1925 while operating a gambling house at 6128 Easton avenue, but was released the same day when his abductors failed to get $15,000 which Connor had asked for in a note to a downtown bookmaker.

Since last December there have been 11 kidnapings in the St. Louis district, six of which have had as their victims bookmakers, bootleggers and gamblers. Police think there may be a possible connection between the Soy kidnaping and the abduction of Sam Scorfina, Carr street grocer, on July 12. It is believed possible the abductors of Soy may be trying to persuade him to sign bonds for five Sicilian gangsters now held in Belleville in the Scorfina case in default of $57,500 bonds each.

MacReady Set Altitude Record as Army Flyer.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, O., Aug. 30.—Maj. John A. MacReady, first came into the limelight of aviation when he, with Lieut. Oakley G. Kelly, starting from Wilbur Wright field here in April, 1922, established the first endurance record by remaining aloft for nearly 37 hours. In May of that year they made the first trans-continental non-stop flight traveling from New York to San Diego, 2520 miles, in 26 hours and 50 minutes.

Previously, MacReady on Sept. 28, 1921, attained a height of 34,509 feet, a higher point than man had ever reached before in the air. Jan. 29, 1927, he increased his altitude record to 37,569 feet.

He was a Captain in the Air Service when he resigned in 1927 to become associated with an electrical refrigerator concern.

The next year the Government gave him and Lieut. Kelly the distinguished flying cross.

He designed and built a large monoplane passenger liner with two motors set tandem on top of the fuselage. MacReady left Dayton about one year ago to become associated with an oil company on the Pacific Coast.

MacReady was born at Flagstaff, Ariz., and entered the Army Air Service at the outbreak of the World War. Since his retirement from the regular army he holds a Major's commission in the Air Reserve Corps.

At the completion of his transcontinental flight in 1922 MacReady married Miss Nellie Jay Turner of Columbus, O. They have two children.

AUGUST MEAN MAXIMUM EXCEEDED ONCE IN 58 YEARS

Six Days Had Temperatures Over 100 Degrees; Lowest Reading 59.

August, with six days on which maximum temperatures exceeding 100 degrees were recorded, has had a mean maximum temperature of 93.3 degrees, the highest mark on Government Weather Bureau records covering 58 years except 1881, when the average maximum was 95.4. It is highly improbable that today's temperature could remove 1930 from second place. Normal is 86.4.

Two days this month, the 4th and 8th, the mercury reached 105, a mark beaten by one degree on Aug. 12, 1881. The lowest reading this month has been 59 on the 22d.

The mean minimum has been 71.23 degrees this month. In August, 1881, this also was exceeded with 72.5, but the highest was 75.4 in August, 1900. Normal is 68.6.

MURDERER TIMES HIS DEATH TO GIVE FAMILY INSURANCE

A. D. Payne, Who Killed Wife With Bomb, Takes Own Life Same Way in Jail at Amarillo, Tex.

By the Associated Press.

AMARILLO, Tex., Aug. 30.—A. D. Payne, confessed wife-killer, waited to end his own life so that his children would have a chance to collect $10,000 in life insurance which would have been voided if he had done so before Aug. 28. He killed himself in the county jail today with a dynamite bomb the means he used to kill his wife.

"I have waited until Aug. 29 so the children would receive the benefit of my insurance, which now is more than a year old," Payne wrote in his diary before he killed himself with a nitro-glycerine blast.

Policies issued by the insurance company in which Payne bought a $10,000 policy Aug. 28, 1929, carry a one-year suicide clause, C. B. Rittenberry, Amarillo insurance agent, explained. Rittenberry said nothing was said in the policy about suicide after the first year but payment was contestable for two years. Rittenberry was unable to say whether the company would pay the amount without a contest.

Explosive in Bottle.

Officers and cellmates expressed the opinion that Payne set off nitroglycerin which he carried in a bottle on a string around his neck, either by connecting an electric light extension cord with the bottle, or with a short fuse and cap attached to the vial. The fact that the light globe in the cell was removed led to the belief that the charge was set off by contact with electric light wires.

The lawyer's death came a few hours after his indictment for murder of his wife by use of a dynamite bomb attached to the family car.

The attorney gave a letter to his mother and another to his mother-in-law to a fellow prisoner shortly after midnight and the explosion took place a few minutes later. He had asked fellow prisoners to leave his cell, telling them they would know "in a few minutes" what the bottle tied around his neck contained.

"I can always cheat the chair," Payne had told the other prisoners. "I can go at any moment I want to." Questioned by other prisoners about the mysterious bottle, he replied: "I have had it ever since they brought me here from the Stinnett jail. I can go out with it when I get ready."

Last Entry in Diary.

Half an hour before the explosion Payne finished his diary, on which he has been working since his arrest. The last entry in the diary was a farewell to his children and other relatives.

"I'm no more afraid to die than to walk in the sunshine," he wrote.

Most of the final entry was devoted to encouraging words for the children.

Payne's wife was killed and his 11-year-old son maimed by a dynamite bomb which wrecked the family car, June 12. Weeks later he asked Gene Howe, Amarillo newspaper editor, to investigate the case, saying civil authorities were making no progress.

Howe's investigation led to Payne's arrest. He confessed killing his wife because of love for his stenographer, Mrs. Verona Thompson, and admitted he had made four previous attempts to kill his wife, who was his college sweetheart.

Officers said they had not noticed the bottle tied around Payne's neck and that he had not removed his clothing since his arrest.

SHOOTS HIMSELF OVER WOMAN

Andrew Gresson, a busboy at the Broadview Hotel, East St. Louis, who drove to St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis Friday night with a bullet wound in the abdomen which he said was accidentally inflicted, told police yesterday he had shot himself following a young woman's refusal to marry him.

Hospital physicians expect him to recover. He is 20 years old and resides at 720 North Fifteenth street, East St. Louis.

BRILLIANT METEOR SEEN LAST NIGHT IN NORTH ST. LOUIS

Cast a Light Strong Enough to Reveal Outlines of Buildings, Those Who Saw It Say.

A meteor flashed across the sky, at 9:35 o'clock last night, observable in North St. Louis, according to residents in the neighborhood of Arlington and Florissant avenues.

Those who reported seeing it said it cast a greenish blue light which plainly revealed the outlines of buildings. The progress of the body was relatively slow, according to observers and its direction from northeast to southwest.

A slight haze prevented a clear view of the meteor.

MANNE SAYS HE FORGETS HOW MUCH HE PAID WOMAN

Declares He Settled Suits a Year Ago; Her Lawyer Seeks $23,000 as Fee.

The $300,000 suit for alleged breach of promise and the $100,000 suit charging common assault, which Miss Alma Pinkerton filed against Max Manne, president of the Artistic Furniture Co., in July, 1929, were settled a year ago for a sum which Manne does not remember, the furniture company president testified yesterday in a deposition hearing.

Manne has been named co-defendant with Miss Pinkerton in a suit for $23,000 filed by Bert F. Fenn, Miss Pinkerton's lawyer, on the ground that he knew Fenn was entitled to half of whatever amount was recovered as a result of the suits. Fenn alleged in his petition that Manne settled for $46,000.

Miss Pinkerton was at the deposition hearing, but was not questioned concerning the amount of the settlement. She testified, however, that while the breach of promise suit had been settled, the assault case still was pending. Manne said both had been settled, but in response to Fenn's questions about the amount, said "That was a year ago. I don't remember."

BOOTBLACK ROBBED OF $400 BY TWO NEGROES WITH KNIFE

Suspect Arrested Later and Identified by William Hunt of Tupelo, Miss.

William Hunt, Negro bootblack, of Tupelo, Miss., reported to police last night two Negroes held him up at Leffingwell avenue and Locust street and robbed him of $400. One was armed with a knife, he said.

Police later arrested a Negro whom Hunt identified as one of those who robbed him.

U. S. TRADE BOARD BUILDING BURNS; 25 FIREMEN HURT

Many Records Pertaining to Utilities, Chain Stores and Cotton Seed Inquiries Lost.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Twenty-five firemen were injured, four seriously, in a fire today which destroyed many valuable records in the building of the Federal Trade Commission.

Most of the men hurt had minor cuts and bruises or were overcome by smoke. Physicians said the four who remained in hospitals for treatment would recover.

Nearly 50 pieces of fire fighting apparatus were called out and it was almost three hours before the flames were under control.

Lieutenant-Colonel U. S. Grant III, director of public buildings, estimated the building damage at $140,000, about $25,000 worth of office equipment also was lost. The structure, which housed the fuel administration in the World War, cost $380,000. James McDonagh, a guard, discovered the fire.

Some of the papers lost dealt with the commission's investigation of public utility companies, but a determination of the extent of the damage in this file awaited a check of records taken from the building.

Built During the War.

The commission's offices were housed in one of the wooden structures erected for temporary use during the war. It offered choice fuel and although the walls were left standing, the roof collapsed in many places and the interior was wrecked.

The cause of the fire was not determined. All employes had left for the usual Saturday half-holiday an hour before it was discovered. Spontaneous combustion was advanced as a possible cause, or a carelessly flung cigarette butt.

A commission official said the records of the Commission's investigation into chain store practices, the result of two years' work had been almost completely destroyed. Papers dealing with an inquiry into the cotton seed trade were severely damaged.

Documents taken from the building were scattered about the structure and soldiers were assigned to guard them.

A portion of the building was occupied by the offices of the children's and women's bureau. This too was destroyed.

Notified at his Rapidan camp, President Hoover asked the White House by telephone about the amount of damage and requested to be kept informed on developments.

SUES COUSIN OVER STOCK

Chicagoan Wants J. A. Christopher to Pay $12,500 for Securities.

Edgar R. Simpson of Chicago filed suit in Circuit Court yesterday against his cousin, J. A. Christopher, a concessionaire at Forest Park Highlands, for $12,500 alleged to be the value of the corporation stock owned by Simpson.

The petition sets forth that on June 18, 1928, Christopher obtained possession of the stock, 125 shares in the Artdale Realty Co., and has not compensated the owner. Simpson's attorney, James V. Frank, said the stock was lent to Christopher so he could raise money to invest in an amusement park in Kansas City. Christopher could not be reached.

CLEANING PRICES FOR MEN'S SUITS GO UP

Cash-and-Carry Charge 75 Cents; No Change in Women's Rates.

Higher prices for cleaning men's clothing are to become effective Tuesday, ending a price war among St. Louis dyers and cleaners which began last October. The new price for cleaning men's suits and overcoats will be 75 cents, cash-and-carry, or $1, if the clothing is called for and delivered. This is an increase of 25 cents over the recent scale, but 50 cents below the rate before the price cutting began.

John L. Corley, former counsel for the National Cleaners' Association, who acted as mediator in bringing rival groups into agreement on a new rate schedule, said prices for cleaning women's garments would not be materially increased at this time. Plain silk dresses and plain coats have been cleaned for $1.25 if called for and delivered, or 25 cents less on the cash-and-carry basis.

Corley said the proposed increase follows a survey which disclosed that most cleaners were operating at a loss. The present rates for cleaning women's clothing result in losses of from 12 to 30 per cent, and must be increased eventually, he said.

Agreement to establish a new price schedule was reached after numerous conferences last month between members of the Master Cleaners' and Dyers' Association and the St. Louis Dry Cleaners' Exchange. The 18 members of the former organization and the 19 retailers who comprise the latter have accepted the new schedule, Corley said.

Prices were cut last fall to offset mail order competition from companies located in other cities and from the Howard chain shop organization. This company is not included in the present agreement, but other cleaners point out that it has not expanded and say they no longer fear that sort of competition.

PLANS TO SEEK SHIP WITH BODY OF ANDREE

Norwegian Naval Vessel Due at Tromsoe Tuesday to Prepare for Trip.

By the Associated Press.

TROMSOE, Norway, Aug. 30.—The Norwegian naval vessel Michael Sars, which expects to go into the sealing regions of the Arctic seas to locate the sealer Bratvaag and take Dr. Gunnar Horn and the bodies of the Andree party aboard, is expected to reach here Monday. It will take on a group of physicians and scientists and will steam out as soon as possible.

It is thought that the Michael Sars will be back in five or six days with the Horn expedition, although this is problematical, since the whereabouts of the Bratvaag is uncertain. The little sealer has been wirelessed to come in or to meet the naval vessel at a designated position, but since it has only radio receiving apparatus and no transmitter, there is no way of knowing whether it has picked up the messages.

A. Sivertsen, owner of the sealing vessel Terningen, which Capt. Gustav Jensen commands, declared today that the message which Capt. Jensen brought back from Dr. Horn, telling of the finding of Andree's party, bore Horn's own signature.

Jensen himself showed the Associated Press his log, telling of meeting the Bratvaag carrying the Horn expedition, and Herr Krane, a partner of Sivertsen, said Capt. Jensen told him that the find had been made and that the original message from Dr. Horn telling of the discovery had been delivered to British Vice-Counsul Saether.

This message and two others—one to the Spitzbergen mission office in Oslo, which backed Dr. Horn, and one to Horn's aged mother in Oslo—were taken as additional proof of Capt. Jensen's report.

The letter bore the date "Between Victoria Island and Franz Josef Land, 8-8-30, 11:00 p. m." The letter reads:

"Dear Mother in haste, these lines sent with Terningen of Tromsoe. Up to now everything has gone according to program.

"We have found Andree on White Island. Further information about this and about expedition I have sent t the office.

"With many greetings from Gunnar."

The office to which Dr. Horn refers is that of the Spitzbergen Mission to which he is attached.

Andree Once Swept Streets in American City, Friend Says.

By the Associated Press.

TROMSOE, Norway, Aug. 20.—Sallomon Auguste Andree, Swedish baloonist explorer who lost his life after an attempt to cross the North Pole in a Balloon in 1897, once swept streets in an American city to get money for food.

Oluf Olsen, 90-year-old sailor friend, tells the story and quoted as an appropriate comment: "Seven great cities mourn for Homer dead, through which the living Homer begged for bread."

Oluf and Andree were buddies in an expedition to Spitzbergen in 1882 and during the long winter night there Andree used to tell stories of his adventures in many lands, and how he had had to sweep streets in America—Oluf doesn't remember the city—in order to eat.

"Andree was interested in all sorts of odd things," Olsen says. "I remember one time on our expedition he made me shut myself up in a hut in the dark with him for a month so that he could study the effect of darkness on the eyes. That was a job. Every little while Andree would measure the pupils of my eyes to see what had happened to them and occasionally a doctor would come in and stab the ends of our fingers with lances to get blood to test. Andree was as excited as if he had discovered the North Pole.

"Well I didn't mind so long as it pleased him, for he was a good fellow. Always he was like that. He wanted to study. He told me he had been to the United States to study. But I don't know what he studied there, because he told me he had to sweep streets to get money to live."

Olsen hopes to see the body of his friend when it reaches here en route from White Island where it was discovered after lying in the ice for 33 years.

HOLDUP FUTILE; BUTCHER'S SON HAD NO MONEY

He Had Made Deposit Instead of Withdrawal at Bank; Truck Taken but Abandoned.

Two men were waiting at his truck when Oliver Quade, 17-year-old youth employed by his father, a butcher at 3527 North Twenty-second street, came out of the Water Tower Bank, yesterday afternoon. One of the men placed a pistol against Oliver and forced him to get into the rear of the vehicle. The other drove the truck to the center of Fairground Park. There they searched young Quade, who instead of returning from the bank with cash, was returning after making a deposit. He had no money.

The men took the truck, which was recovered later in the 3800 block of Sullivan avenue.

City of Brentwood Sued.

Two suits for $2500 damages each were filed at Clayton yesterday against the City of Brentwood by residents who allege their property was damaged by raising the grade of Madge avenue 16 inches. The paintiffs are Miss Laura Frey of 8910, and Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Lucas of 8919 Madge avenue.

FOX AND ST. LOUIS TO DROP ORCHESTRA

Mechanical Music to Be Heard Beginning Monday—Union Negotiations Fail.

With the rejection by the musicians' union of a proposal that the orchestras at the Fox and St. Louis Theaters continue at work during negotiations for a new contract, there will be only mechanical music at the two theaters after tonight's performances unless some unexpected action is taken. The old agreement between the union and the two theaters expires at midnight.

The difficulty over a new agreement resulted from an effort by the union to force the St. Louis Theater to employ an orchestra of 20 men, instead of 12. The Fox has a 20-piece orchestra. The union wants the St. Louis to change its status from that of a vaudeville house to a movie house with stage programs, but the management is prepared to discontinue vaudeville and present sound movies only. The Fox and Skouras interests have joined the St. Louis in a theater owners' association to negotiate all contracts with unions.

The musicians' contracts with the Missouri and Ambassador Theaters and neighborhood shows expire Sept. 19. The union was asked to extend the agreement with the Fox and St. Louis Theaters to that date, but declined on the ground that the extension would be a temporary measure having no bearing on the issue at stake.

Union representatives requested a meeting to discuss a new contract six weeks ago, but say the theater owners failed to meet them until last week. The meeting failed to bring about an agreement, and no conferences are scheduled to discuss a renewal of the contract for the Ambassador, Missouri, and neighborhood theaters. The Missouri management is said to be anxious to discontinue its stage shows because of the heavy expense, and it is probable that only movies with mechanical music will make up the future programs.

CEMETERY FOR PETS TO HAVE MAUSOLEUMS COSTING $1500

Burial Ground of 45 Acres Being Established on Manchester Road, Near Ellisville.

A cemetery for pets, with separate sections for dogs, cats, birds and miscellaneous pets and with mausoleums costing up to $1500, is being established on Manchester road, near Ellisville, Leslie Olian, retired dress manufacturer who is promoting the project, said yesterday.

The cemetery will have a winding drive, rustic benches, a rustic bridge, all built by hand, a chapel of colored imitation stone, an electric sign, huge ornamental urns and a marker for every grave, Olian said.

Olian's partner in the enterprise is Joseph M. Goldman of the Goldman Realty Co., 709 Pine street, and the organization which two men own is the Forest Hills Pet Cemetery Association. The cemetery covers 45 acres, it was said at the real estate office, and was purchased for $22,300. It is just west of Hillside View Inn, three miles west of Ellisville.

ST. LOUIS FIRM GETS CONTRACT FOR 1931 AUTO LICENSE PLATES

Adams Co. Bid of 15.78 Cents a Pair Accepted; Colors to Be Selected Later.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 30.—A contract for manufacture of the State automobile license plates for 1931 was awarded today by Secretary of State C. U. Becker to the Adams Stamp & Stationery Co. of St. Louis, on a bid of 15.78 cents a pair of plates. The colors for the 1931 license plate in Missouri will be selected later.

The bid by the Adams company, which held the contract for this year's plates, was .21 of a cent less than their contract price of 15.99 cents a pair for the 1930 plates. Higher bids were submitted by three other companies, ranging up to 17.5 cents.

The bids were based on the manufacture of 675,000 pairs of license plates, the State reserving the right to buy additional plates, if required, at the contract price.

GRAND DRIVE IN FOREST PARK TO BE CLOSED EARLY TUESDAY

Roadway to Be Shut Off Because of Reconstruction of Wabash Bridge and Tracks.

Grand drive, in Forest Park, will be closed to traffic between the Kingshighway-Lindell entrance to the park and Round Lake, beginning at 6 a. m. Tuesday, due to construction of the new Wabash Railway tracks. It may be reopened by Wednesday evening, after the tracks have been laid across this gap.

City officials think the Wabash may be running over the new tracks within 10 days. The line was shifted in connection with the viaduct being erected at Union boulevard and Lindell. Eventually Grand drive will be relocated to cross over the new tracks.

HIT BY CAR; DIES OF INJURIES

Zolmin Friedman, 66 years old, a janitor, of 1123 North Eleventh street, died at St. Mary's Hospital Friday night of internal injuries suffered Aug. 17, when he was struck by a northbound City Limits street car at DeMun and San Bonita avenues, Clayton, as he was crossing the street.

His widow and two sons survive.

HOME DAMAGED BY VANDALS DURING OCCUPANTS' ABSENCE

Rugs and Curtains Cut in Residence of Mrs. Helen Goellner; Furniture Marred.

Rugs and curtains at the home of Mrs. Helen Goellner, 5445 Thrush avenue, were slashed, furniture damaged and two watches stolen during the last two weeks she has been away, Mrs. Goellner reported to police Friday. Entrance to the house was gained by forcing a basement window. Obscene notes, signed "Mysterious Man," were pinned on the walls.

Mrs. Goellner, who said she had been living with her mother at 4130 Clara place, for two weeks while her husband was out of town, was at loss to explain the vandalism. She told police that several guests at a party at her home three weeks ago had become angry and departed.

WIDOW OF SLAIN CONVICT SUES LOUISIANA GOVERNOR

Claims $25,000 Damages Declaring Use of Prison Labor on Rice Farm Was Illegal.

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 30.—Gov. Huey P. Long was made a joint defendant in a suit for $25,000 damages filed today in District Court by the widow of Curtis Blackwell, a Negro convict, killed last Monday by prison guards on a rice farm operated by John P. Burgin, Inc., in Pointe Coupee Parish.

The petition set forth that the Governor became a defendant by "coercing" Clay J. Dugas, general manager of the penitentiary to enter into a contract with Burgin, Inc., to operate the rice farm with convict labor, with an agreement to divide the crop equally between the contracting parties. The petition charges that Long, Dugas and Burgin entered into the arrangement for their personal profit. The petition charges the contract was illegal, as the farm had not been designated as a penal institution and Blackwell was illegally confined there.

The convicts were driven to revolt, the petition said by "cruel and unusual punishment and slavery, laborius toil and meager rations doled out to them."

INDICTED BOOTLEGGER HELD IN CHICAGO AS COUNTERFEITER

Vito Canfilis Identified as Vito Cutillio; Arrested After Passing Fake $10 Note.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Arrested early today by secret service agents as a suspect in a counterfeiting ring, Vito Sanfilis was disclosed tonight as an indicted bootlegger, known to prohibition agents as the bootlegger for wealthy residents of the North Shore suburbs.

The Federal agents said Sanfilis had used the name of Vito Cutillio, and John Dean, was arrested in his expensive foreign-made automobile after he had cashed a spurious $10 note at a filling station. The officers said he had $700 in genuine money and $100 in the bogus bills when arrested.

Authorities stated they suspected Sanfilis of being the leader of a ring which has passed $25,000 in fake money in the Chicago area in a week. They found no counterfeiting apparatus in Sanfilis' luxurious home.

ANTI-TRUST SUIT LIKELY TO BE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

19 Los Angeles Oil Companies and Broker Charged With Price-Fixing Agreement.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure was informed today the suit of the United States Government against 19 oil companies and F. R. Long, a Los Angeles oil broker, charged with conspiracy to violate the anti-trust laws by price fixing, probably would be settled out of court.

The Government charged the oil companies and Long entered into a conspiracy in 1928 to fix the price of oil. Long and the defendant companies admitted entering into an agreement, but contended it was not in violation of the anti-trust laws, but was a legal marketing code. Further, it was contended, the prices affected only intrastate shipments.

BUTLER DENIES SPENDING $500,000 IN SENATE RACE

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—William M. Butler, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, today denied charges made by Conrad Crooker, general counsel of the Liberal Civic League, Inc., and Martin Joyce, secretary-treasurer of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, regarding his candidacy.

Butler said: "These statements are untrue and full of misrepresentation. I shall deal with both of these at another time."

He is opposed for the nomination by Col. Eben S. Draper.

In a telegram to Senator Gerald P. Nye of the Senate Campaign Committee, Crooker charged that the Butler forces had expended half a million dollars in an effort to "steal this nomination from the people."

THREE ACCUSED OF KILLING

Oklahoma Deputy Slain Trying to Seize Still on Truck.

By the Associated Press.

ALTUS, Ok., Aug. 30.—The arrest of Ernest Jackson at Frederick, Ok., late today brought to an end a search for the third man sought in connection with the killing last night of Elmer Carter, 32-year-old Deputy Sheriff of Jackson County, and the wounding of Joseph Whitt, Altus policeman. Jackson was arrested at the home of Vernon Robsion, one of two brothers held for the crime.

Meanwhile County Attorney Rutherford prepared murder charges against Jackson, Vernon L. Robsion and his wounded brother, George, of Frederick, Ok., who are alleged to have opened fire when the officers halted their truck, in which they were carrying a still. Vernon Robsion is quoted by police as admitting he took part in the fight.

BABE RUTH ALL-AMERICA TEAM CONTEST WILL CLOSE AT MIDNIGHT

TAYLOR SPINK, JACK FOURNIER AND A. E. "ARTIE" EILERS TO ACT AS JUDGES IN COMPETITION

By Damon Kerby.

Babe Ruth's annual All-America team contest, the sixth to be conducted by the Post-Dispatch, will close tonight at midnight. Selections which bear a postmark showing that the letter was mailed before midnight will be judged.

The committee, which will judge the selections, will be composed of J. G. Taylor Spink, publisher of the Sporting News; Arthur E. Eilers, business manager of athletics at Washington University, and Jack Fournier, former major league first baseman. The three men served in the same capacity last year.

Thousands of selections have been received, and a great number will undoubtedly be mailed before midnight tonight. The judging will probably not begin before the middle of the week, in order that selections mailed today from distant points may be filed with the selections that are to be judged.

Babe Ruth.

Babe Ruth's official team will be announced Sunday, Sept. 7, and the winners of the contest will be announced two weeks from today.

The work of judging the selections this year will be more difficult than in previous years. Indications are that a new record will be set in the number of all-star teams submitted by Post-Dispatch readers. Entrants have shown that they have given studious attention in making their selections, and the judges will have to go over the selections with great care.

How Selections Are Separated.

In judging the selections, the first step will be to separate all of the all-star lineups which have the same players that Ruth has named. When this task is completed the real work will just be getting under way, for then will come the job of finding which lineups are exactly similar to the Babe's, which come within one position in naming his exact batting order; within two of his batting order, etc.

Then comes the real hair-splitting in the judging of the all-star teams. Many contestants will doubtless be tied for the various awards, and the judges will go over each eligible lineup and the essay in connection, in deciding the various winners.

Winner in Contest Will Receive $100; Second, $75; 31 Other Awards to Be Made

The winner will receive a check for $100. Second prize will be $75; third, $50; fourth, $25, and five awards of $10 each will be made. In addition, 12 autographed Babe Ruth bats and 12 baseballs, autographed by the Babe, also will be given, making a total of 33 awards.

Fewer "Standouts" This Year.

In some of the previous contests sponsored by the Post-Dispatch the contestants have had an easier task in naming Ruth's team than this year for there were a number of "standouts" among the eligible players. This year the so-called standouts are few.

In the number of times contestants have named the stars, only Lefty Grove among the pitchers, Hack Wilson at center field, and Al Simmons in left, have been named almost unanimously. Mickey Cochrane of the Athletics also has been named very frequently as catcher.

But at the other positions the popularity of the players is divided. Terry, Gehrig and Foxx are three strong candidates at first base; Frankie Frisch, Charley Gehringer, and Tony Lazzeri have starred at second, among others; Pie Traynor, Freddy Lindstrom, Pinkey Whitney, and Marty McManus and Lazzeri all have their admirers at third, while at shortstop the fans are divided between a number of A1 men, including Glenn Wright, Rabbit Maranville, Joe Cronin, and Travis Jackson.

Right field furnishes one of the hardest problems in naming an all-star team, with one man to be selected from a list that includes such stars as Babe Herman, Chuck Klein, Melvin Ott, Dick Porter, Paul Waner, and Kiki Cuyler.

It is again pointed out for contestants who intend to pick their teams today, that a player is eligible for any position at which he has appeared in at least one league game this year.

Zero Hour Is Near.

Remember, today is the last day in the contest. Selections should be made at once and mailed to the Babe Ruth Contest Editor, care the Post-Dispatch.

Henry A. Carlton, 3737 Washington avenue, has named the following all-star team:

Frisch, Cardinals, second base.
Klein, Phillies, right field.
Simmons, Athletics, left field.
Wilson, Cubs, Center field.
Gehrig, Yankees, first base.
Cronin, Senators, shortstop.
Lindstrom, Giants, third base.
Cochrane, Athletics, catcher.
Grove, Athletics, pitch.
Ferrell, Indians, pitch.

Frankie Frisch is also named as leadoff man in a team submitted by Edward P. Dowling, 5182 Vernon avenue. Dowling's selections:

Frisch, Cardinals, second base.
Cochrane, Athletics, catcher.
Simmons, Athletics, left field.
Terry, Giants, first base.
Klein, Phillies, right field.
Wilson, Cubs, center field.
Lindstrom, Giants, third base.
Jackson, Giants, shortstop.
Grove, Athletics, pitch.
W. Ferrell, Indians, pitch.

Alice Thierman, 421 Antelope street, has chosen as her team the following players:

Lindstrom, Giants, third base.
Frisch, Cardinals, second base.
Simmons, Athletics, left field.
Klein, Phillies, right field.
Wilson, Cubs, center field.
Terry, Giants, first base.
Cochrane, Athletics, catcher.
Wright, Robins, shortstop.
Ferrell, Indians, pitch.
Grove, Athletics, pitch.

Rules Governing Babe Ruth's All-America Team Contest

The contest is open to everyone, except employes of the Post-Dispatch and their families.

Entries will close Aug. 31 at midnight and letters bearing postmark up to that time will be considered eligible.

The contestant naming the same players in the same positions and batting order as Babe Ruth wins the first prize; but in event no contestant duplicates Ruth's picks, the one nearest will be considered the winner.

In addition to naming the players to conform to those chosen by Ruth, contestants must arrange them in the same batting order as Babe Ruth. The Babe has agreed to place his choices in the order in which he thinks they should go to the plate.

An explanatory letter of not more than 250 words must accompany the selections and will be passed upon by the judges. This is as important as selecting the players. Babe himself will write an explanation of his choices. In event of a tie, excellence of the compositions would determine the winner. (Write on one side of the paper only and make your selections on a separate sheet.)

Ten players will make up the team, two pitchers and eight other players, one for each position. Only one team may be submitted by each contestant.

No correction will be accepted once an entry has been received and filed.

Babe Ruth is not eligible. He will not pick himself.

Players must be selected on the basis of their play in the 1930 season only. Performances of previous years do not count.

A player may be placed in a position other than the one he regularly occupies, provided he has played such position in one or more championship games. Otherwise regular positions must be rigidly adhered to. For instance, a regular left fielder may not be placed in right field, unless he has played there at least once in 1930.

The trophies will be $100 cash for first, $75 for second and $50 for third, $25 for the fourth and five others of $10 each. A dozen autographed Babe Ruth bats and another dozen autographed baseballs will be the other mementoes for successful contestants.

Mail selections to the BABE RUTH CONTEST EDITOR, care the Post-Dispatch.

Connie Mack Is Unable To Explain Collapse of Pitcher 'Rube' Walberg

By Connie Mack,
Manager World Champion Athletics.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—All through the second half of the pennant race the eternal question hurled at me is: "What is the matter with Rube Walberg?" For a number of years this left hander has always been one of my principal winners. Last year he won 18 games and lost 11 and when he started the present season by winning a lot of games in a row, I believed he was going ot have the most successful season of his career.

All of a sudden Walberg stopped winning and in the last half of the race so far as he was not much help to me. I soon had to quit giving him a regular turn. Why did Walberg suddenly slump? It's one of the things hard to explain when a pitcher is burning up the league and then all of a sudden he will go to the bad. The affair is as much of a mystery to me as it is to the fan. There is no inside story to tell.

CONNIE MACK

I want to point out that this is not the first time that a great pitcher has had a bad streak in a season and then come back as good as ever.

Best Against Good Clubs.

There are those who are unkind enough to hint that the left-hander lacks courage. Walberg's own record is the best answer to this charge for he has pitched his best, even this season, against the strongest clubs. If he lacked courage he could not possibly do that Walberg's defection so far this season has been against the comparatively weak teams.

I have taken the trouble to analyze Walberg's record during his slump and I find that he has had fiendishly bad luck in that his rivals collected a lot of scratch hits at a time when he seemed to have the game won. As I look over these scores, I find that Walberg has had scarcely one good break. The way I feel about Walberg is that he is going to come back fast and be a big help to us in the remaining days of the season.

I am going to give Walberg a regular turn from now to the finish and I will be greatly chagrined if he does not win for me regularly.

Last week we lost two games in a row for the first time in many weeks and that had all the earmarks of a slump in the light of the gait we had been traveling.

I have pounded it into my players that they must keep their heads up for the rest of the season. We are not going to take any chances of our men letting up in their playing as long as there is a possible opening for a contender.

Critical Point Reached.

The critical point of the National League was reached in Chicago in the series between the Cubs and the Giants. After dipping colors to the Giants in the first game, Joe McCarthy's men started a real championship drive and captured the next three.

As a result of winning these three games, it now looks as if it will be improbable for the Cubs to lose the pennant as they have a big margin of advantage to work on.

At the critical time, the Cubs rose to the occasion and knocked off the Giants and are now at the peak of their game after being uneven performers before they tackled New York.

The Cubs' pitching has tightened infinitely, they are hitting the ball hard and seem better equipped than any of the leaders for the finish to the wire.

New York still has a sporting chance but it is based largely on the promise that the Cubs will crack and just now the McCarthy ensemble is playing its best ball of the year.

After a courageous fight until well in August, the Robins can be saved only as a result of some mighty upheaval that does not seem at all likely.

KNOST AND PIVAC TO BOX AT MEMPHIS

Dave Knost and Tom Pivac, local heavyweights, will take part in the two main fistic matches on a boxing card at the Auditorium Tuesday night in Memphis. Knost will be seeking his sixth straight victory, faces Tommy Davenport, an Arkansas fighter, and Pivac battles James Russell, a big fighter from Detroit. In his last five matches, Knost stopped Pat Fay, Jack Brian, Jack Carney and Tim Charles, and outpointed Joe Lohman. Pivac's last victim was Eddie O'Day of Philadelphia, whom he knocked out in an early round. George Wilsman, manager of Knost, and Tom Conroy, manager of Pivac, will accompany their fighters. Jack Dempsey will referee the bouts, according to word from Memphis.

Radio Show In St. Louis Sept. 15-20

Nationally Known Artists to Appear in Person—All Important Makers of Receivers Will Be Represented in Exhibits—Local Stations to Co-Operate.

Arrangements have been virtually completed for the sixth annual Southwest National Radio Exposition which will be held in the Coliseum, St. Louis, Sept. 15-20, it is announced by Fred A. Wiebe, chairman of the show committee of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association.

Wiebe said indications were that features of the coming show would surpass anything yet presented at a radio show in this country. Almost every manufacturer of receivers and equipment in the country will be represented in the exhibits.

The exposition will introduce to the public the latest developments in the radio industry. All that is new in cabinets and receiver chassis will be on display.

An array of artists and announcers who have been heard in St. Louis over the National networks will appear in person at the exposition. Most of these stars will make their first St. Louis appearances at the show.

Local radio stations will cooperate by broadcasting the entertainment features of the exposition from a studio in the Coliseum. The program arranged includes features by entertainers who appear before the microphones of St. Louis stations.

A convention of radio dealers from all parts of the St. Louis trade territory will be held at the show on Sept. 17-18. Invitations to attend have been extended to all dealers in this area and thus far 1000 have indicated that they will be present, according to Dan Hylan, chairman of the convention meetings committee of the Radio Trades Association. He says that special emphasis will be laid on the retail merchandising of radio and plans outlined for retail progress.

The exposition will be held under the auspices of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association. The committee in charge of arrangements includes: F. A. Wiebe, chairman; George F. Gaertner, hall arrangements; H. B. Levy, advertising and publicity; Samuel B. Singer, broadcasting and public address system; George H. Niekamp, entertainment; John C. Schmitt, finances; W. A. Ward, prizes; N. E. Hill, convention; Julian Sampson, reception; O. C. McCanne, program, and John Meyn, space arrangements.

Nationally Known Artists to Appear in Person—All Important Makers of Receivers Will Be Represented in Exhibits—Local Stations to Co-Operate.

Arrangements have been virtually completed for the sixth annual Southwest National Radio Exposition which will be held in the Coliseum, St. Louis, Sept. 15-20, it is announced by Fred A. Wiebe, chairman of the show committee of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association.

Wiebe said indications were that features of the coming show would surpass anything yet presented at a radio show in this country. Almost every manufacturer of receivers and equipment in the country will be represented in the exhibits.

The exposition will introduce to the public the latest developments in the radio industry. All that is new in cabinets and receiver chassis will be on display.

An array of artists and announcers who have been heard in St. Louis over the National networks will appear in person at the exposition. Most of these stars will make their first St. Louis appearances at the show.

Local radio stations will cooperate by broadcasting the entertainment features of the exposition from a studio in the Coliseum. The program arranged includes features by entertainers who appear before the microphones of St. Louis stations.

A convention of radio dealers from all parts of the St. Louis trade territory will be held at the show on Sept. 17-18. Invitations to attend have been extended to all dealers in this area and thus far 1000 have indicated that they will be present, according to Dan Hylan, chairman of the convention meetings committee of the Radio Trades Association. He says that special emphasis will be laid on the retail merchandising of radio and plans outlined for retail progress.

The exposition will be held under the auspices of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association. The committee in charge of arrangements includes: F. A. Wiebe, chairman; George F. Gaertner, hall arrangements; H. B. Levy, advertising and publicity; Samuel B. Singer, broadcasting and public address system; George H. Niekamp, entertainment; John C. Schmitt, finances; W. A. Ward, prizes; N. E. Hill, convention; Julian Sampson, reception; O. C. McCanne, program, and John Meyn, space arrangements.

KDKA Licensed To Use 400,000 Watts In the Early Morning

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—KDKA, Pittsburg, Pa., has finally been authorized by the Federal Radio Commission to operate experimentally on its present wave length with power ranging from 50,000 to 400,000 watts.

The commission restricted this high powered broadcasting, the highest ever attempted anywhere in the world, to the hours between 12 midnight and 5 a. m., St. Louis time, daily.

Here and There on the Air

Both Networks to Broadcast Big Football Games—Texas to Have Seven-Station Chain—Schumann-Heink to Sing on 17 Sunday Evening Programs—New Detective Series on Air—Would Sell Advertising on Short Wave Broadcasts.

Stories dealing with forgers, bank embezzlers, safe crackers, holdup men, bootleggers, trusted employes who absconded with their firm's deposits, servants who cleaned out their masters' homes of silver and jewelry, and criminals of every description, may be heard over an NBC chain beginning Wednesday evening, Sept. 3, at 5:15. The new series will be called "National Surety's Secret Cases." For the first time, the National Surety Co., sponsor of the program, will open its files to the public. An NBC writer and former police reporter will dramatize crimes and criminals handled by Surety detectives. The audience will "see" how a real detective works, how he finds clues in what to the average man would mean nothing, how he builds his case against an apparently innocent offender, how he breaks down an alibi, and tracks a criminal to an arrest.

Application for permission to broadcast and rebroadcast commercial programs on short wave channels has been made to the Radio Commission by the Westinghouse Co., which operates KDKA, Pittsburg, Pa., and short wave stations, including the 40,000-wat W8XK. The company desires to sell time on the short waves to advertisers. Sponsoring such short wave programs, the company tells the Commission, would enable United States firms to build up good will and sell more goods in Latin American countries.

Helen Morgan, of "Show Boat," "Sweet Adeline" fame, is billed for the first of a series of Friday night Nestle's programs at 6:30 the evening of Sept. 5. She will be the first of 26 Broadway actors engaged for this series, which will be broadcast over KWK and allied NBC stations.

"Big Bill" Tilden will be interviewed by Grantland Rice in a Coca Cola broadcast over KSD at 8:30 Wednesday night.

It is planned to broadcast over WLW the sensations of Edward Ballish, who will attempt a parachute drop of 28,000 feet at the Cleveland air carnival on Labor day. Ballish is to have a miniature short wave transmitter strapped on his chest.

Leopold Stokowski is reported to have perfected a device by which he hopes to remedy tone production defects when his Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra broadcasts the first of its four special Philco concerts Sunday, Oct. 12, over an NBC chain. Stokowski developed the device after weeks of experimenting in the NBC studios at 711 Fifth avenue, New York. He is being secretive about it. But it is said the device enables an orchestra leader to listen to his orchestra's tonal and dynamic effects as broadcast, as well as to wield the baton. Tests thus far indicate that, using the device, a conductor can go much farther than is now possible toward giving listeners the true tone and effects of crescendo and diminuendo that the concert hall audience gets.

Donald Novis, young California tenor who won the 1928 Atwater Kent National Radio Audition, has scored a "hit" in the new talkie, "Monte Carlo." In the picture, Novis appears as "M. Beaucaire" in a scene from the operetta of that name which is produced as one of the climaxes of the talkie.

The Columbia network has billed these major football broadcasts: Sept. 27, Army-Boston University; Oct. 4, Southern Methodist-Notre Dame; Oct. 11, (break for world series); Oct. 18, Army-Harvard; Oct. 25, Notre-Dame-U. of Pittsburg; Nov. 1, Princeton-Chicago; Nov. 8, U. of Illinois-Army; Nov. 15, Yale-Princeton; Nov. 22, Penn-Cornell; Nov. 29, Army-Notre Dame.

One-Day Motor Trip Leads Into Illinois Ozarks

Grand Canyon of Jackson County Only Recently Made Accessible.

By F. A. BEHYMER.

The late summer, when, with good weather, dirt roads provide not only feasible but pleasant driving, is the time for a one-day automobile trip to the scenic region to the south and southwest of Murphysboro, Ill., where the Illinois Ozarks are at their best, and particularly to the Grand Canyon of Jackson County, which is claimed to excell in geological grandeur and botanical interest anything that can be found in the Missouri Ozarks.

This canyon, a mile long and 400 feet deep, has, in a manner of speaking, only recently been "discovered." Hidden away in the hills that border the Big Muddy, few of the residents of Murphysboro, even, have visited it and there has not been until recently any attempt to bring it to the attention of the outside world. Now, however, the Murphysboro Chamber of Commerce has marked the trail to it and is calling attention to it as the outstanding feature of a region that is rich in scenic attractions.

For one thing, it is only recently that Murphysboro has had complete and direct hard road connection with St. Louis. It now has such connection by a combination of routes that reduces the distance to 90 miles and the driving time, because of open country and comparatively light traffic, is considerably less than is usually required for 90 miles.

The way from St. Louis is over the Municipal Bridge to Tenth street, in East St. Louis, turning right into either Bond avenue or State street, according to which of the optional routes to Belleville is preferred. Out of Belleville Route 13 is followed through Freeburg, New Athens, Lenzburg and Marissa to junction with Route 152 between Marissa and Tilden, following 152 to Pinckneyville, picking up No. 13 there again and following it through Pinckneyville and Vergennes to Murphysboro.

Where Illinois Ozarks Begin.

The trip so far has been through level or gently undulating country, for Murphysboro lies on the north bank of the Big Muddy, where the Illinois Ozarks begin.

It would be well, in Murphysboro, to follow the trail markings as far as the courthouse and turn west in Walnut street, and stop at the Chamber of Commerce, on that corner, or at Clyde Wisely's place of business at 1412 Walnut street, and inquire the way to Grand Canyon. This Clyde Wisely is the unofficial guide to the Grand Canyon. It is largely due to his interest and enthusiasm that the region has been brought to public notice. He is never happier than when directing strangers to the canyon or heading exploring parties.

In a general way the directions are to continue on Walnut street to the southern end of the town, turn left and cross the Big Muddy and proceed out the Sandridge road to Poplar Ridge, turn west and go about two miles to Reeder's Hill, a distance altogether of nine miles. It is dirt road most of the way, narrow and crooked and hilly but presenting no hazards if ordinary care is observed at the sharp curves, and it is a ridge road, well drained, which dries quickly after an ordinary rain. It penetrates hill country of increasing ruggedness and picturesqueness as the canyon is approached, although this is so completely hidden from the high road that there is nothing to indicate its nearness.

At Reeder's hill, which commands a view of the surrounding country, a right turn is made into a side road which is passable only a few hundred feet to an abandoned log house, where it is necessary to park and make the descent to the canyon on foot. Follow the abandoned road down hill to the creek and the path along the creek for less than half a mile through the valley and one comes suddenly to a deepening cleft that is the beginning of the canyon.

A Difficult Descent.

Right at the beginning is the only difficulty in making the descent. The walls there are so narrow and steep that it has been necessary to cut steps and rig up a wire on the edge of the declivity to safeguard against an ugly fall.

Below this point the cleft widens and although there are steep descents and much clambering over rocks there is no lack of sure footing. Very shortly the floor of the canyon, between widening walls, is reached and progress is unhindered through a mile of amazing geological formations and a richness of rare and curious botanical life that has been little disturbed by vandal hands.

For the greater part of the length of the canyon the south wall is the more abrupt and spectacular, being in most places perpendicular or overhanging, with waterfalls at wet seasons. At one point there is a massive overhang the dry shelter of which is the favored place for starting a camp fire and having luncheon.

This south wall is unscalable for most of its length but there are two lateral gorges which may be traversed by hardy climbers. The face of the north wall for most of its length is more sloping and can be scaled. As the canyon nears the bank of the Big Muddy, however, it widens considerably and the north wall is perpendicular and even higher than any part of the south wall, culminating in Swallow Rock, which rises sheer 400 feet. The south wall terminates in Chalk Bluff, so named because the frowning front that it presents to the Big Muddy is much whiter than the other bluffs.

Uneven Rock Formations.

There is everything but uniformity in the rock formations. Around every promontory there are different structures to be found. At one point the wall is sheer and unbroken. At another it is broken up into all sorts of fantastic whorls and convolutions. At another there are alternating with faces of rock, terraces of soil, one above another, where vegetation has found root and flourishes.

In the depth of the canyon there is silence save the chirping of birds that tarry in its protection even after the migrating season, and the dripping of water, busy about its age-long task of shaking the rock into new forms. Even the voices of exploring companions are not heard if a projection of the wall intervenes. There are no echoes. The loudest call is heard only a short distance.

Geologically, the canyon presents no novelty. It is of a kind with other familiar faults of the earth's surface, the product of the same causes and telling the same story. Its claim upon admiration is the beauty and grandeur that have been wrought with familiar materials.

Botanically, however, it is unique not only in the perfection of familiar varieties of flower and shrub and tree but in the number of rare plants, some of them so rare indeed that they baffle identification, and have no place with known classifications.

Will Test Road With Iron Base

Curb to Be Made of Same Metal in Experiment on Illinois State Highway in Sangamon County, Near Springfield.

Brick pavement with an iron base and iron curbing is to be laid experimentally on a 150-foot stretch of highway in Sangamon County, Ill., on the Grand avenue connection, near Springfield, with the Rochester road. The paving is designed by William H. Mosely, a manufacturer of Springfield, who has applied for a patent.

The American Rolling Mills Co. of Middletown, O., is manufacturing the metal, ingot iron a fourth inch thick. The iron base and curb will be laid on the leveled roadway. A mastic sand cushion will be placed over the plates. Brick will be laid on the sand with an asphaltic filler.

Frank Sheets, State Highway engineer, said a careful check will be made on original costs and that a record will be kept on maintenance work. The original cost is expected to be higher than the conventional pavements. Quantity production would give a competitive cost. Maintenance should be cheaper than for concrete.

"Brick on a mastic cushion and with an elastic filler, is the only one of the conventional road materials suitable for the experiment," Mosely says. "We couldn't use concrete; the purpose of the steel base is to overcome the weakness of cement. The bituminous materials are too soft in hot weather or too brittle in cold.

"I'm not a blind enthusiast for the steel highway. But I'm thoroughly convinced of the inadequacy of present materials and designs to meet the needs of traffic, with its ever increasing volume and speed. Possibly the road of the future will consist of a steel base with a coating of rubber composition to cushion the blows of rolling wheels, to furnish traction better than metal or the present common forms of hard rubber, and to prevent rust to the base.

"The conventional materials have shown unsatisfactory weaknesses. Concrete, in the state's standard slabs or as base for asphalt or brick surface, cracks with changes of temperature, explodes with excessive heat, and develops frost boils. Without the concrete base, brick and asphalt sag and rut. These are established facts that can be verified by the lay motorists by a 500-mile drive over any of our state highways three or four years old.

"Highway engineers always have looked upon steel as a desirable pavement foundation, but never have given the material a thorough test because of high cost and rust. However, much has been done in the iron industry lately to cut the costs and retard erosion.

"There are several ways of treating steel to resist rust. One of the most common is by a coating of bituminous preparation such as is used on the thousands of miles of transcontinental oil and gas pipe lines. Galvanized iron and ingot iron are among the other processed materials. Also the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. recently has perfected a method of welding rubber onto steel."

New Bridge at Hermann Will Benefit St. Louisans

Circle Tour to St. Charles and Daniel Boone Country Can Be Made Comfortably—Wide Region South of Missouri River Given Outlet to the North as Uncertain Ferry Is Replaced.

Opening of the new bridge across the Missouri River at Hermann last Friday makes the circle tour from St. Louis to Hermann and back through St. Charles possible, regardless of conditions on the river. The scout car of the Automobile Club of Missouri has just gone over these roads and has found them in splendid condition. So there is no physical annoyance to detract from the enjoyment of the interesting and beautiful country through which this trip takes one.

There are two routes south of the river by which Hermann can be reached, each of which has its merits. One runs through Drake and thence north. The other goes through Washington, Mo. The road through Union and Drake to Hermann traverses a region of pastoral beauty. Gently rolling hills, dotted with cultivated fields and patches of woods, and with an occasional herd of cows grazing leisurely on their slopes, stretch as far as the eye can reach. Now and again the air is pungent with the slightly acrid odor of damp woods and dead leaves; another time there is the clean, bracing smell of lush green fields. There is never anything robust and exciting about this scenery—it is unassuming and charming, and its quiet simplicity cannot fail to endear itself to one. This route runs over U. S. 50 from St. Louis to Drake; then No. 19 to Hermann. There is concrete to Union and gravel to Hermann.

As one enters Hermann there is a high bluff with what appears to be a cloister extending along the edge and a church looming up in back of it. The City Hall is also located on top of a hill. This is a pretty, substantial town. Once celebrated for its excellent wines, it is now known for its mushrooms. Its spacious caves, accustomed for so many years to the heady bouquet of fragrant vintages, are now redolent of mushrooms.

The other route follows U. S. 50 to the intersection with No. 47 at a point 41 miles out of St. Louis, then No. 47 to Washington, then a gravel county road to Washington and on to Hermann. This county road is dusty and quite rough, but it is 10 miles shorter than the smoother route through Drake. There is another feature that compensates for the roughness of this road, for it parallels the Missouri River and presents many stunning panoramas. While this route is not so good as the one through Drake it is more interesting scenically. Washington is an attractively quaint place, and is famed throughout the country as the home of the "Missouri Meerschaum" and for the manufacture of zithers. Completing the circle, one can cross the bridge at Hermann and follow No. 19, an all-weather road, for 16 miles to the intersection with U. S. 40, then into St. Louis on U. S. 40.

If one has not exerienced the bother incident to getting to a ferry in times of low water, it will be difficult to realize the irritation of the writer when forced to use the ferry instead of the bridge. Here was a most imposing bridge with a fine straight concrete roadway that was mightily inviting. But the guard was large and inflexible in the discharge of his duty, so back and around for a drive to the ferry. But now the bridge is officially open.

The bridge is quite impressive, with its 20-foot concrete roadway, which stands 55 feet above the standard high water level and 163 feet above the bottom of the piers. Last year's floods on the Missouri River seriously curtailed work on the bridge and finally destroyed two piers, delaying completion a year and involving a loss of $200,000. It was necessary to penetrate 105 feet below the surface of the water before striking a solid rock foundation.

The cost of construction was $1,068,000. No local capital is invested in the enterprise, which is owned by the Hermann Bridge Co., a subsidiary of the National Toll Bridge Co. of New York. The Chamber of Commerce of Hermann collected $1500 for the initial survey, which amount was returned by the owners of the bridge. Local interests are represented by Judge R. A. Breuer of Hermann, who was named by the County Court to be a member of the board of directors of the Hermann Bridge Co. The bridge was designed by Sverdrug & Parcel of St. Louis.

The tolls on the bridge are as follows: Any size pleasure vehicle with any number of passengers pays 60 cents one way, $1 round trip. For a truck of any tonnage the toll is 75 cents one way, $1.25 round trip. Commutation books of 10 tickets may be had, which reduce the toll to 40 cents one way and 45 cents round trip. Pedestrian fare is 10 cents.

Canada Has 400,000 Miles of Highway Open to Motorists

Canada has approximately 400,000 miles of highway open for traffic, with around 83 per cent earth roads and the remainder gravel and hard-surfaced, according to the American Automobile Association.

The A. A. A. pointed out that 40 per cent of all Canadian highways were in Saskatchewan; 17 per cent in Ontario and 8 per cent in Quebec, with the remaining 35 per cent distributed among the other provinces.

What's New in Radio Industry

X-ray Used to Detect Defects in Raytheon Tubes —Lindemann-Hoffer, Inc., to Distribute Audiola Sets —Trade Notes.

X-Ray Test for Raytheon Tubes.

Development of a new industrial use for the X-ray, which is expected to increase the average life of radio tubes and solve one of the most difficult problems facing tube manufacturers, is announced by the Eveready Raytheon Tube Co. of Newton, Mass.

Following extensive experiments with X-ray pictures as a method of revealing defects in tubes undetectable by any other method, Raytheon officials say the new testing method may eliminate as much as 5 per cent of all tube trouble.

Despite numerous tests at factories, manufacturers have not been able to prevent the disagreeable experience set owners have in buying a new tube which, according to tests at the dealers' counter were perfect, but fail to function after a few hours' service.

The reasons such efforts were unsuccessful was due to the location of the trouble. Inside the cathode of the tube and out of sight when the tube is assembled, is the small spiral wire heating coil. In stretching these coils, some of them become almost, but not quite, short-circuited. As a result they test as normal tubes, although they are doomed to an early end when placed in a set.

By placing finished cathodes in trays of 100 and making X-ray pictures of the concealed heating coil, the defectives are revealed and removed.

Lindemann-Hoffer Add Audiola Receivers.

Lindemann-Hoffer, Inc., has been appointed distributer of Audiola receivers, made by the Audiola Radio Co. of Chicago.

These sets have a new triple screen-grid, four-tuned circuits, full-sized electro-dynamic speaker and translucent dial calibrated in kilocycles.

Cabinets are in modernized Gothic design, with cathedral grille effects.

Model 70 is done in an interesting linen-fold effect.

Edwin Stanley Seder, a noted classical organist, is to give a series of recitals at 7 o'clock Saturday nights over the NBC WJZ chain including KWK. He has played 216 times over WGN, Chicago.

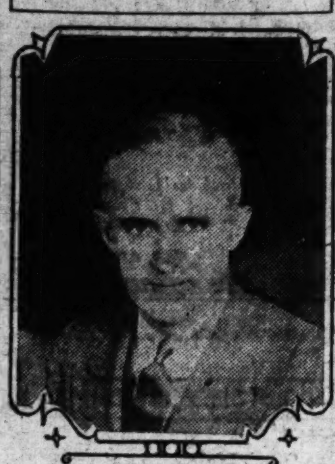
Visits St. Louis



L. M. Simpson, general sales manager of the tire department of the U. S. Rubber Co., who visited St. Louis the past week.

Tire Executive Finds Reasons for Optimism on Tour

Business conditions in the St. Louis district are among the best he has found on a tour to check the tire outlook, according to L. M. Simpson, general sales manager for the tire division of the U. S. Rubber Co., who was in St. Louis last Saturday. Simpson expressed himself as believing that the upturn has come and that conditions generally will steadily improve.

Unit sales of tires to U. S. Rubber Co. dealers in July were the highest in five years, and were exceeded in only one July in the company's history, according to Simpson.

Sales in August are holding at a comparatively high level, and indications are that the last six months of this year will show a comfortable increase in dealer sales over the same period last year, Simpson declared.

Ton and a Half Chevrolet Truck Is in Production

Dual Wheels Optional Equipment—36 Body Types for It Are Available.

Introduction of a new one and one-half ton truck by the Chevrolet Motor co. is announced. Dual wheels are optional equipment. The truck has a heavier rear axle; new pressed steel wheels, interchangeable front and rear; new one-piece steel channel frame, and internal expanding brakes on all four wheels. It lists at $520. Dual wheels and six truck-type cord tires are $25 extra.

Following announcement that production of Chevrolet light delivery trucks in the first six months of this year exceeded the same period last year by 20 per cent, the introduction of this improved larger truck is regarded by the Chevrolet Motor Co. as destined to add to the growing importance of Chevrolet in the low-priced commercial car field. More than 1,160,000 Chevrolet trucks have been built since the company began to turn out this type.

The new chassis is built complete with cab. Affiliations with body manufacturers enable one to choose the exact type of body for the work to be done from 36 different types. Chevrolet dealers are supplied with complete details of the bodies available.

Production of the new truck is in full swing, and dealers throughout the country are being rapidly stocked with it.

Capt. Hawks to Fly Texaco Monoplane in Big Race Tomorrow

Installs Racing Wings and Streamlined Landing Gear to Increase Craft's Speed.

The monoplane Texaco No. 13, in which Capt. Frank M. Hawks, superintendent of aviation for the Texas Co., recently set two transcontinental records, is being made faster than ever in preparation for the Thompson Trophy free-for-all race tomorrow in the national air meet at Chicago. Already this craft is regarded as the fastest commercial plane in the world. Capt. Hawks has had racing wings and stream-lined landing gear installed.

The Texaco No. 13 should be 15 to 25 miles an hour faster than the 240 to 250 m.p.h. that the ship has reached in Capt. Hawks' hands. The 400-h.p. Wright Whirlwind engine is being retained. Even though he flew from New York to Los Angeles in 14 hours 50 minutes 43 seconds, clipping 3 hours 52 minutes from the time of Col Roscoe Turner, and then from Los Angeles to New York in 2 hours 20 minutes better time than Col. Lindbergh made, Capt. Hawks said he never opened the throttle completely. He averaged almost 200 m.p.h. in the New York-Los Angeles flight and on the return trip never ran less than 200 miles and frequently approached 260.

Capt. Hawks will fly tomorrow against two Travel Air "Mystery" planes, Capt. Arthur H. Page of the Marine Corps and his special Curtis Seahawk monoplane, which is credited with speed "in excess of 200 miles an hour," and Major James Doolittle. The Seahawk has a 650-h.p. engine.

Work Under Way On Phillips' Gasoline Pipeline to St. Louis

Progress at Rate of 10 Miles a Day Expected — 1000 Men to Be Employed.

The Phillips Pipe Line Co. announced that 51 miles of eight-inch pipe has been shipped them and that construction work on its gasoline line was started at Borger, Tex., Aug. 4 and at Laverne, Ok., Aug. 1. This will be the first gasoline pipe line to St. Louis from the Mid-Continent Field.

Construction is complete from Borger to a point 10 miles north of the Canadian River and at Laverne, Ok., over 12 miles have been laid, and other crews expected to be at work in a few days at Medicine Lodge and Wichita. Progress at the rate of 10 miles a day is expected within two weeks, at which time over 1000 men will be employed.

Elevations for all pump stations are complete from Borger to St. Louis, and at Borger construction has been started on four storage tanks with a total capacity of 270,000 barrels. Pump station equipment has been ordered consisting of 21 centrifugal pumps to be directly connected to gas engines by gear increasers. The engines will use Butane as fuel, which will be pumped through the line without intermingling with the transportation of gasoline.

A contract has been let for the telephone line which will parallel the pipe line and work will be in progress Sept. 1.

Phillips Petroleum and Independent Oil Concerns to Merge

TULSA, Ok., Aug. 30.—R. C. Sharp, president of the Independent Oil and Gas Co. and Frank Phillips, president of the Phillips Petroleum Co., announce that the executive committees of the two companies have agreed on terms and conditions for consolidation of the concerns, on the basis of an exchange of Independent Co. stock for Phillips Co. stock at the approximate book value as of July 31. This agreement is subject to approval by the directors of the Phillips Co. and stockholders and directors of the Independent Co. No change in management or employes of either company is contemplated.

The merged companies will have assets of $316,000,000, of which more than $103,000,000 has been charged to reserves of all kinds. Net cash and current assets will total more than $40,000,000. The physical properties of the companies are of such a character as to effect an immediate reduction in capital expenditures, and so located as to supplement each other without duplication, thus making possible economies of several million dollars annually.

LABOR DAY TOMORROW, PUBLIC OFFICES CLOSE

Department Stores Open Till 1 P. M. — No General Celebration by Union.

Labor day will be observed tomorrow with the closing of banks, courts, public offices, exchanges and markets.

Union building workmen, who have a five-day week, are on a three-day holiday, and a number of office workers will have the day off. Department stores will close at 1 o'clock. Many neighborhood stores will be closed all day.

There will be no general celebration in St. Louis, Labor day parades having been discontinued in 1923. At that time it was explained by union leaders that the working man preferred driving out in the country with his family to marching over hard pavements to the tune of a brass band. An effort was made several years ago by cooperative labor business organizations to revive the celebration through automobile parades and public picnics, but the movement was not popular.

This year East Side labor groups are sponsoring a racing meet at Fairmount Jockey Club. The two-day meeting opened yesterday and will be concluded tomorrow. The various labor organizations participating are to receive half the gate receipts. Among speakers at the track tomorrow afternoon will be Maurice J. Cassidy, secretary of the St. Louis Building Trades Council.

OBEYING ANONYMOUS LETTER, DESCRIBES LOST RING IN 'AD'

Texas Woman Told Dying Man Requested Valuable He Found Eight Years Ago Be Returned.

A valuable platinum ring, set with diamonds and emeralds, lost eight years ago in Denison, Tex., is described in the Lost and Found columns of today's Post-Dispatch by the owner, who was advised by letter that if she furnished a proper description the writer would return the jewelry to her.

Last week, Miss Eloise Munson, secretary-treasurer of the Munson Realty Co. of Denison, received the following unsigned communication:

"Dear Miss Munsing: There was a ring found in Denison eight years ago believed to belong to you. The party who found it died but if you will give a perfect description of the ring in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch on Aug. 31 and it tallies with this will send it to you. Give your present address and name. I found through old files something, and the man who found it told the town he was passing through. It was his dying request we find out and return it. Am traveling through this place. Will be gone tonight. Will get St. Louis Post Aug. 31, so get busy."

SON OF 'BAD JOHN' WRIGHT ONE OF TWO SHOT TO DEATH

Arrest Made After Killings in Kentucky Mountains Which Were Setting for Novel.

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Aug. 30.—Melvin Branham, 35 years old, and Sam Wright, son of "Bad John" Wright, one of the characters in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" was found shot to death in the Wright front yard today. Both were shot through the head.

The shooting occurred at Three Mile Crook, 25 miles south of here, in an almost inaccessible part of the mountains.

Charles Ray, brother-in-law of Branham, was taken into custody for investigation. Deputy Sheriff Childers said he had received no details of the affair, as there are no telephones in that section. The officer said Sam Wright also is known as Bentley.

Sam's father, "Bad John," was one of the mountain characters in the days when Letcher County was known as "Bloody Letcher."

EIGHT ARRESTED IN SEVEN DRY RAIDS BY THE POLICE

All Released on Bond and Will Not Be Prosecuted Because of Absence of Warrants.

In raids last night on seven saloons and other places where police suspected liquor was being sold eight men were arrested. They were released on bond and will not be prosecuted as the raids were made without warrants. Quantities of home brew, and in some cases, whisky, were confiscated, police reported. Those arrested, according to police, were:

WISCONSIN SALOON OBTAINS LICENSE, OPERATES A MONTH

County Official Drops In and Permit Issued by Township Clerk Is Revoked.

By the Associated Press.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Aug. 30.—A township that "forgot" the prohibition law is dry again after a month of unrestricted sale of beer and hard liquor.

Wisconsin has no enforcement act, a circumstance which led an official of the township to decide that prohibition must be at an end. The township remains unnamed, but the Fond du Lac Commonwealth Reporter, which published the story, vouched for the facts.

Recently a saloon keeper applied for a license and was presented with an elaborate document which the Township Clerk found in his old files. It permitted the sale of intoxicating liquor. With the license framed above his bar, the saloon keeper kept beer on tap and provided hard liquor for those who wanted it.

All went well until a county official dropped in. The official went to the Township Board and the "license" was revoked. The township official explained he understood there was no law against liquor and that "anyway, we wanted him to sell good beer."

Former German Soldiers' Meeting.

About 200 former German soldiers are in St. Louis for the annual convention of the North American Kriegerbund, being held at the German House, 2345 Lafayette avenue, today and tomorrow. New officers are to be elected today. A street parade will be held tomorrow.

The Circus Here For Shows Today And Also Monday

THEY'RE due early today—the four long trains of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus, bearing the show's personnel of 1600 people, 43 elephants, hundreds of wild animals, almost countless tons of equipment and 800 horses. On board the third section will be the weird Ubangi savages, with their famous disc-lipped women whose mouths and lips are of enormous size. They were imported this spring from the deep interior of the French Congo, as the feature of "the greatest show on earth," and they will be seen in the menagerie and in the show performances today and tomorrow at Grand and Laclede.

The performances will begin at 2 and 8 p. m. daily, with the doors open one hour earlier so that all may view the Ubangis and the zoo at leisure.

Among the outstanding features offered with the Ubangi savages are Goliath, the monster sea elephant; Hugo Zacchini, who will be shot from the mouth of a siege gun; Lillian Leitzel, "queen of the air"; Con Colleano, bounding, tumbling, somersaulting genius of the tight wire; the Flying Codonas; the Wallendas, dome-high thrillers on the 150-foot steel thread; Luicita Leers, Europe's foremost aerialiste; Miss Winnifred, soaring aerial marvel, and the Rieffenachs, the Ernestos and the Davenports, famed riders.

Simplicity Music Keynote

At Least Vladimir Golschmann, Who Will Conduct Symphony Here in January, Says it Is No Longer the Fashion to Write Big, Complicated Works—Wishes To Be Known as Exponent of Modern French Element.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

WHEN Vladimir Golschmann comes to St. Louis next January to direct four pairs of concerts given by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra it will be his fifth musical venture in the United States even though he is still an unknown quantity to most of the country.

Golschmann came first to America during the war. He was drafted by Messager, the French conductor who later went to Boston for a short visit to play in the first violin section of the Paris Conservatoire Orchestra. This organization made a successful good-will tour from coast to coast.

Golschmann's second visit was in 1922 when he was brought over as musical director of the Swedish ballet. He came again in 1923 at the invitation of Walter Damrosch and made successful appearances as conductor of the now disbanded New York Symphony Orchestra. He was invited to come again the next season but his first concert did not go down very well with the critics for one reason or another and he was not included in the following year's schedule though it was understood that he was to come the year after.

The dissolution of the New York Symphony put an end to his aspirations in that direction. Since then he has prosecuted his career in Europe. In addition to special concerts in Paris he has conducted in Stockholm, Glasgow and for the last three seasons has been in charge of the summer concerts at Bilbao, Spain.

Golschmann's musical associations have been such as to leave with the public the impression that he is a special pleader for the ultra-modern French and Russian composers. He was the first conductor to introduce Ravel's "La Valse" to the public and his interpretation of that important work is even now regarded as a model. He was also entrusted with the first performances of a number of works by Honneger, Milhaud, Poulenc and other modernist French composers.

* * * *

BUT whether it's because he is a little older or because he was misunderstood in the first place, Golschmann no longer wants to be known as an exponent of the modernist French element in music. His emotions could hardly be described as disillusionment for the reason that his interest in this music was always a product more of curiosity and personal friendship for the composers than of any strong belief in its importance.

Now he says frankly that there is nothing in contemporary composition which gives any evidence of being a lasting contribution to the world's store of musical ideas. When I came on Golschmann in Paris last month just before he left for Bilbao he seemed more interested in Haydn than in Milhaud and confessed that reams upon reams of modern scoring could be displaced in his consciousness by five bars of Schubert.

"Just after the war there was a flare-up among French composers that made you sit up and open your ears," he said. "Sparks were flying through the air and the reputations of classic composers were being slaughtered overnight. You didn't have time to ask yourself whether you believed in all this but you were stimulated and you were hopeful perhaps that something would come of it. You thought that the boldness of these young men would take them somewhere if nothing else did.

* * * *

"AFTER a while you began to question their boldness. I have heard a young composer playing a new composition—a very creditable piece of work too—stop in the middle and ask 'Do you really think it's dissonant enough?' And then you would see a score by Darius Milhaud that was a perfect marvel of complicated, ingenious and original orchestration but which, in the last analysis didn't mean a thing because it couldn't be articulated musically. I mean by that that Milhaud himself when he went to hear the first performance of that work couldn't possibly tell whether it was being executed correctly. It was like having nine thousand, nine hundred and ninety-nine persons assemble in the Place de la Concorde and

Are Criminals People?

By Robert Littell

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.

NO—do not take alarm from the title of this piece, and think that I am going to spin you a long sermon on prison reform, or ask you to give five minutes of your valuable time to a consideration of the tough breaks the boys get in the Big House, or urge you to join a society, each member of which promises to write, once a month, a nice, long, gossipy letter to some poor fellow behind the bars.

No, all that is for another time, when my deep concern for the poor criminal and my conviction that we are all murderers at heart, etc., etc., can all have free play unimpeded by the spectacle of the New York drama. For the present it is the drama and not the state of society that is on my mind, and what galls me until I cry for reform is the treatment of the criminal and the victim of crime by his arch enemy, the playwright, who causes one of them to kill the latter long before we have had a chance to become better acquainted and interested in the character of either of them.

What makes crime interesting off stage, as anyone can tell me who reads his daily paper properly, is not only the circumstances of a crime, the mechanics, locality, motive and technique of it, but the character of the victim and the murderer.

THE better we get to know him, the more interested we become through the details of his private life revealed to us in the papers, the more likely are we to jump to the proper column on page one and read it through while our coffee cools in the cup. The Elwell case, for instance, while a beautiful crime in itself, was 10 times more absorbing by reason of the fascinating details about Elwell which slowly came to light and built up in our minds a solid picture of a real man.

But the crime dramatists, bless them, are so much more interested in the crime itself that they fail to enlist our interest in the characters whom it enmeshes. And that goes for the detective story writers as well, who would as soon as not strangle a complete nonentity, a stuffed shirt, a puppet so long as the winding and unwinding of the crime itself seemed to them satisfactory.

All wrong. By not caring sufficiently about the kind of people they are killing, the kind of people into whose hands they are putting guns and phials of poison, they handicap themselves and forfeit a large part of our possible attention.

Again and again, in the blood-and-maxim-silencer plays you can see the dramatist perfunctorily pasting a few identifying labels onto his characters and then pushing them headlong into the machinery, which is nearly always the only part of the business he really cares about. With what result? With the result that unless his machinery is magnificently thought out and beautifully oiled, we lose much of our curiosity to know how it all happened, and we greet the unravelling of the puzzle with less excitement than at the common spectacle of a spider making a meal of a fly.

A SAFE rule to follow in the choice of crime plays is that the more the gadgets, the weaker the play. Knowing it is weak, the author often fills up the chinks with extra revolver shots, trick poison flasks, sliding panels, and no end of expensive furniture. Forgetting the simple fact that the greatest thrills in life as on the stage, are produced by the effect that one human being has on another, and that 10 deaths, or 10 revolver shots, are not necessarily 10 times more startling than one.

These remarks are prompted by one of the first of the new season's crop of pulse-jumpers, a play which Owen Davis has fashioned from an unpublished story by Gwen Bristow and Bruce Manning.

"The Ninth Guest," which is perhaps Owen Davis' ninety-ninth opus, has the highest death rate among its characters of any play since Hamlet. In fact all but—no, I won't spoil your possible fun by giving away its vital statistics.

I'll merely hint that hardly a guest is now alive who came onto the stage of the Eltinge Theater (A. H. Woods, owner and manager), Aug. 25. Well, anyhow, it is a heavy handed and gadgety piece, with some breathless moments, some good material, some more good material thrown away, and a lot of pretty bad acting.

Yes, lots of good material. In fact a rather juicy idea for a thriller. Eight people, most of whom turn out to have excellent reasons for disliking each other, answer a mysterious invitation signed "Your Host" and turn up at a strange penthouse to find the host missing.

AFTER 10 minutes devoted to getting all the characters straight, which wasn't nearly enough time for my slow brain—the host mysteriously speaks up through the radio. It's going to be a battle of wits. He's going to kill them all, or rather let them be killed by their own weaknesses. And that's just what happens. The guests die off like flies in a frost.

The death of the first guest was fairly exciting, the death of the second less so. Along toward the fourth and fifth guests one began to feel like cheering, gently but firmly whenever one of them swallowed prussic acid or was winged by a Maxim silencer or took hold of the handle of an electrocuting door.

And I'm sorry to say that when the surviving guests, after playing button-button to find the gadget that ungadgeted the electrocuting gadget, escaped, I felt cheated. This is due partly to innate brutality, and partly to the fact that the dialogue was not of a kind to make one love the people who spoke it and the actors a good deal too solemn to keep one from wanting to laugh in the wrong place.

And yet—you know how it is—I enjoyed it. More or less.

THE season being still young, there is little yet worthy of mention. A possible exception, for various reasons, is with Morrissey's all Negro revue, Hot Rhythm.

The first 10 minutes of this much postponed and more than shoestring colored revue are quite funny. From then on—and on and on and on—it is second-rate Harlem night club without drinks or tables, and without the feeling that having come all the way to One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street, you'd better try to enjoy yourself. Even as cabaret, Hot Rhythm is not much of a show. In a big downtown theater it seems several degrees worse than that.

The few bright spots (you could leave at 9 and have seen most of them), include Mr. Morrissey himself, wisecracking at late comers, shaking hands with them and saying "Morrissey's the name," and Mae Barnes and two blackface comedians, and the chorus and a tenor called Vigal. Miss Barnes is pretty good at the boop-a-doops, very good at pretending she can't dance, and her straight face and solemn eyes are extremely comic.

The two blackface comedians stroll on at inappropriate moments and are promptly told to get off because we don't want comedians. As they go off one of them stops long enough to say, ever so reproachfully, "But we're comedians." This doesn't seem so funny now, but the way he said it made me laugh—oh, boy! Oh, baby! as they so frequently remark in all-colored revues—oh boy! how it made me laugh at the time.

German Opera Here January 15, 16 and 17

PLANS for the engagement of the German Grand Opera Company at the Odeon for four performances, Jan. 15, 16, 17, assume special significance with the announcement of Max von Schillings as musical director of the tour which starts in Washington the same month. Von Schillings, an outstanding musical figure in Berlin, is best known to the American public through his opera "Mona Lisa" produced at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York in 1923.

Dr. Von Schillings is a former director of the Prussian State Opera in Berlin. He was born in Dueren in the Rhineland in 1868 and studied in Bonn with Brambach and Von Koenigslow. He spent three years of study in Munich. In 1892, he was appointed director of rehearsals for the Bayreuth Festivals and in 1908 became assistant to the Intendant of the Stuttgart Court Theater where he was afterwards appointed musical director. He was knighted by the king of Wurttemburg in 1912 and in 1919 assumed direction of the Prussian State Opera in Berlin.

Television Is Really Here

Moving Pictures Successfully Sent Through the Air and Received on home Sets—Showing of New Form of Amusement in Theaters Merely Question of Short Time—The Shuberts Going Into the Movie Production Game.

By NIE.

FOR a year or more this captious critic of the movies has been pointing out in these columns that television was on the way to offer a new form of amusement and now it is knocking at the door of the already sadly harassed theater—the legit as well as the movies. The first city wide public test of the new entertainment which I saw in Chicago during the past week was a rather crude affair. The images flickered and sometimes died out altogether but, all the same, moving pictures were sent through the air and picked up by not excessively expensive receiving sets at widely scattered points. So far television is a plaything. But the phonograph and the movies and the radio were only toys for a while and the advancement in sending action pictures—and then plays—through the air is certain to be rapid.

For the time being Chicago and nearby points will have a monopoly in the new field for there is only one radio-television station, that of the Chicago Daily News, broadcasting pictures and, so far, can send them successfully to sets but a few miles away. Other broadcasting stations will spring up quickly enough. The General Electric Co., according to report, is about to put a receiving set on the market and send out moving pictures far and wide.

At first there will probably be no attempt to show these television movies in the theaters except where some enterprising cinema palace manager puts one in as a novelty act. The receiving sets will be sold for home use just as the radio sets are but the time is coming when plays will be produced in central studios and flashed to audiences in theaters everywhere.

In the meantime, however, the home sets, when they come within the range of the average purchaser, will, like the midget golf course, keep a lot of people away from the show places.

* * * *

SO far the two local legitimate theaters have not announced any extensive program of plays to come here this winter. New York manager have been talking about a bigger and better season of dramas with many good shows to be sent on the road but Lee Shubert, the largest offerer of affairs theatrical, announced during the week that he will soon commence making moving pictures. He is to begin production in the near future, according to word from the Shubert offices, on Elmer Harris' adaptation of Prince Antoine Bibesco's comedy, "Ladies All" current at the Morosco Theater in New York. Walter Woolf, Violet Heming, Germaine Garoux and May Collins, members of the cast, will be seen in the picture version and perhaps other members of the company. While the play has only six characters, the scenario for the talkie calls for 22 people, and a number of extras.

Shubert has been quietly negotiating for six months with Oscar Lissau, a Swiss inventor, who has perfected a new voice recording device which projects human speech. Last week a contract was consummated with Lissau, by Shubert's representative whereby the producer becomes sole owner of the invention. Lissau will come to America early in September to supervise the mechanical work on the first picture.

"Ladies All" will be made at a studio near New York, which is being leased for a short period, to be used until a permanent location can be found to make future talkies.

Arrangements are also being made for the nation wide distribution of "Ladies All," which will have its premiere at a Shubert house in New York.

The second picture to be made by Shubert will be "Stay Overnight," an original story by Naomi Royd-Smith, the English novelist.

Two other pictures will be made by Shubert, to complete a production of four talkies which he plans for this season.

THE regular movie makers, meanwhile, are searching for novelties for the screen and Pathe is trying to find a girl with nerve—and beauty—to recreate the spectacular film career of Pearl White whose well remembered serials of daring romance are to be

Behind the Screens

The Latest News and Gossip of the Film Actors in Hollywood Appears in the Daily Magazine of the Post-Dispatch Every Tuesday and Thursday and in the Sunday Drama Section.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 30.

INA CLAIRE again is having her hour in Hollywood. And this time it appears as though she will become to the movies what she has been to the New York stage—Ina Claire, and not merely Mrs. John Gilbert.

INA CLAIRE

She came to the talkies about a year ago, preceded by all the trumpeting and awe-inspiring fanfare a movie publicity force could arouse to herald to Hollywood that a really great Broadway star would soon be here.

Miss Claire came, very charming.

Teas were given in her honor, she made a picture or two, and after it all Hollywood was still waiting to be shown.

And she was without a contract, the talkie means of showing Hollywood.

MISS CLAIRE, so powerful on Broadway, was just another "stage importation" in Hollywood, and when she married the screen's own romantic hero, it became more difficult to retain her professional identity in movie circles.

Hollywood, she confesses, gave her an inferiority complex.

For the first time she began explaining who Ina Claire was and what she'd done, whereas before, even to people who didn't know her, she would never speak a word of her own fame.

She made plans to return to the stage, and Hollywood, perhaps, chuckling with its usual tender sympathy for famous stage stars whose light meets a dimmer in pictures, thought Ina Claire was through.

Apparently she was.

Rumors of an impending separation, however strenuously denied by herself and Gilbert, persisted, and made things no pleasanter.

BUT Ina Claire kept on working.

Came the opening of her stage play, Donald Ogden Stewart's "Rebound." And what an opening—a sparkling Ina right in her element.

Immediately the talkie offers poured in. Somehow producers who had overlooked her before began wondering how they possibly could have done so—the same producers who had similarly over looked Bessie Love, Lois Wilson, Florence Eldridge, Mary Astor and many others, until they suddenly loomed large on the stage horizon.

That is vindication: "They've discovered I can do something, and it's most satisfactory!"

She has accepted the lead in the talkie of "The Royal Family."

FOR all that the microphone has proved its right to travel far afield with the camera, long location trips, while fairly numerous of late, still are unusual events.

CHARLES BICKFORD

And that they are not often necessary is one of the reasons that Hollywood first gained importance as a movie center.

In an earlier movie day, when artificial lighting had not reached adequate development for photographic purposes, picture people were attracted to California largely because of its sunshine, so necessary to proper filming then.

When set-lighting began, in time, to shame the sun for brilliance, pictures remained in Hollywood partly no doubt because near here can be found "locations" to duplicate almost any natural or man-made setting.

DESERT scenes near Mojave, Cal., about 100 miles away, pass easily for any of the kind anywhere, and at Truckee, in the mountains 400 miles north of movietown, snow can be found nearly the year around.

For Alpine settings the movies have the country north of Bishop. South Sea islands? They go to Catalina and there the clear water facilitates submarine photography also.

An "uninhabited desert island"? There is Santa Cruz, just 29 miles off Santa Barbara.

"Plains" are more difficult, but when haze envelopes the San Fernando valley, hiding the distant hills—well, you have "plains."

For wharf scenes, San Pedro is at Hollywood's elbow.

As for "small towns," there are any number of those "on file" in studio location-hunters' records.

HEADED by Evelyn Brent and Joel McCrea, "The Silver Horde" company returned recently from Alaska, but "The Spoilers," also an Alaskan in setting, was filmed in an "early Nome" on the Pacific beach—in California.

A small troupe is touring Oriental island for "Ourang," probably intended to rival "Trader Horn," made largely in Africa.

For "The Sea Bat" Charles Bickford, Raquel Torres and others sailed into Mexican waters and ports but perhaps the most pretentious recent location trip was that of "The Big Trail," depicting the pioneers' westward march.

But for the average talkie, regardless of setting, cameras and "mikes" can still be set up within or near California's borders—close to Hollywood.

KAY FRANCIS

Recently, however, she has proved her right to more sympathetic roles.

Opposite Ronald Colman in "Raffles," in fact, she is as sweet as she is strong and impressive, and more nearly a conventional "heart interest" than she perhaps has been on the screen to date.

But if talkie directors were misled at first in considering her only as a "feminine heavy," perhaps it was because Kay at as tender an age as 3 was laying a foundation for blaseness.

AT that time her mother, also an actress, was appearing in a drama wherein, in one sequence, she was shot.

In a little Midwestern theater, Kay, who had seen the show before, occupied a box up front with an older friend.

The drama waxed high, the audience was tense. The shot—and the actress fell to the floor. Again tense silence.

Into which the piping, complacent voice of Kay, reassuring her companion: "Don't be afraid. Muvver's not really dead. She's only acting."

THE lily-white skin still has a few devotees in Hollywood.

June Collyer, Bessie Love, Mary Brian, Fay Wray, Marjorie White, Janette MacDonald, Jean Arthur and Marlene Dietrich are among the few stars who refuse to acquire even the suspicion of a sun-tan.

Edwina Booth, who went to Africa for "Trader Horn," saw enough of the blazing sun over there, and agrees with them.

Nancy Carroll's screen charms frequently inspire amateur songwriters among her fans to burst into lyrical admiration.

Autographed copies of privately printed tunes constantly are bobbing up in her fan mail—and they're usually, of course, very, very bad.

And Richard Arlen received unusual fan tribute in the form of an expensive silver service, sent by a young boy admirer.

Investigation revealed that the lad had appropriated his "gift" from the family dining room. It was returned.

LEW CODY

That goes to show how firmly these adopted screen appellations become fixed, and how useless it is to try to preserve one's real identity once a change has been made.

Frank Cooper's parents probably had to practice to become accustomed to calling him Gary after the movies had dictated the alteration, just as Lucille LeSeuer used to be startled at hearing herself called "Miss Crawford" and "Joan."

Louise Dantzler is Mary Brian to everybody, even her mother, and Charles Rogers' brother, who has trouble answering to his new name of Bruce, soon will be equally surprised at being called anything else.

LEW CODY once tried to convince an Italian bit-player called Guglielmi that he should adopt a short and snappy name instead of the longer one already chosen as substitute for the original.

But the young Italian already had cards printed with the name "Rudolph Valentino," and he couldn't afford to replace them. And Cody's argument was that the people wouldn't bother to remember a name as long as that.

Fan mail still comes addressed to Valentino.

Cody, personally, likes to be known to everyone as "Lew." He shies at "Mr. Cody."

WHENEVER a Hollywood star finds local studios lacking in interest in her services, the one alternative to "hanging on and waiting for a break" is to go to England and work in pictures there.

Betty Compson did that and returned to a greater career here, and Blanche Sweet, though with less impressive later success, followed the same course.

Now Louise Brooks, the former Follies girl, has returned from a sojourn abroad and has found the charm still works. She will be featured with Buck Jones in a Western talkie.

Here and There, on the Screens or in Person for the Amusement Fans.

Mary Nolan in "Outside the Law," at the St. Louis Theater.

Ann Pickles, a fair equestrienne with the circus.

made all over again with sound. The new "Perils of Pauline" and "Exploits of Elaine," titles that were known to millions in 1913-15, will be modernized, of course, to meet the current situation. Where Pearl White sprang from a moving train to the saddle of a careening horse, the girl who aspires to her place will step from a swaying plane to a speeding automobile.

Pearl White was a trained athlete, naturally, and acquired her extraordinary skill as a circus performer. She was beautiful, as every nickelodeon fan of the period will remember, and possessed of a figure that was sought after by artists eager to catch its classic lines in lasting oils.

So it is that Pathe will conduct immediately a nation-wide search for the girl who possesses the skill, the beauty and the daring to equal, if not excel the feats which made Pearl White the most spectacular performer of her time. The details of Pathe's proposed method of research have not been completed, but it was indicated in the statement that beauty, skill and courage would necessarily form the basis upon which final judgment will be made.

"The Exploits of Elaine" series was based on the Craig Kennedy detective stories by Arthur E. Reeve. "The Perils of Pauline" is a serial remembered by that generation of picture enthusiasts which recalls the piano accompaniment and the local baritone singing with lantern slide illustrations.

With sound and dialogue, and with the vast possibilities of the present day, it is anticipated that the stories will carry the new heroine into the air and beneath the water, through adventures more fantastic than even Jules Verne conceived in his most imaginative moments.

GOLSCHMANN ON THE MODERNISTIC TREND OF THE COMPOSERS

shout 'Vive le Roi' while the ten-thousandth person was shouting 'Vive du Bois.'

"But now it is no longer the fashion to write big, complicated works. Everything is for simplicity and musical gems in miniature. Some of the things are so simple that you wonder why they bother to put them on paper."

Nevertheless, Gloschmann expects to play modern French compositions when he is in St. Louis.

"I have been asked by the orchestral management to include some of these works in my programs at St. Louis," he said, "and I shall, of course, do so. There are a number of interesting things one can give. I believe St. Louis audiences would like to hear Honneger's 'Pastorale d'Ete,' for instance, and there are others, even if one does not include Debussy and Ravel. But I should like very much to play a Haydn Symphony—the G Major or the 'Surprise,' at my first concert."

TOUCHING on the question of music in Paris, Gloschmann said that conditions did not favor the preservation of high standards either in the opera or among the various symphonic bodies. On the previous evening I had attended a performance of Strauss' "Rosenkavalier" at the Opera. I shall always remember that evening. To begin with, I was not allowed to enter the building on my first attempt because I was wearing white flannel trousers. Impressed by this rigid standard of decorum, I hurried back to the hotel, changed my clothes and finally got to my seat without missing too much of the first act. What I heard wouldn't have been good enough for a man wearing overalls. Gaubert, the conductor, achieved the distinction of playing the first two acts as if they were chamber music. I had heard of the French conductor who boasted of conducting "Goetterdammerung" "with the greatest finesse," but this went a step farther.

Golschmann was not surprised.

"The opera is better in the winter, but not much," he explained. "Thereare plenty of good musicians in Paris. The best wood wind players in the world are to be found here. But there are no first-class musical organizations. Where the orchestras are controlled by the musicians as a co-operative enterprise they refuse to rehearse anything but new music. Where the control is exercised by a separate management and the conductor, it's still impossible to get enough rehearsals because neither the ticket sales nor private subscriptions provide enough money for it."

Golschmann will be the youngest conductor to appear in St. Louis next season. He is about 35, is dark-haired, slender, animated and handsome. He speaks English fluently.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.

SOME purely personal opinions: The naughtiest play of the year is "Lysistrata."

Rudy Vallee seems as popular as ever.

Anyone with enough money to get out is foolish to remain in New York in July and August.

The silver needle-point of the Chrysler Building is the prettiest spire in town.

No professional ball room dancers have ever touched the Castles for grace.

Never in its history has the motion picture as an amusement faced such a testing time.

The smoothest of the suave stage talkers is Frank Fay.

Writers who accept Hollywood studio jobs, then give out interviews poking fun at producers, were fired, and don't let them kid you.

When waiter captains begin suggesting food while I read the menu I suspect something or other.

New York waiters are filled with motor-beat drunk show-offs who should be in jail.

The prize hard luck story is from Variety and concerns the actor who, pawned his coat to buy a meal in a cafe. The cafe refused him admission because he was coatless.

The plight of many along the Rialto is no laughing matter. The movie and legitimate theater business shows no sign of change for the better. The Friars recently dropped 40 members for non-payment of dues. The Lambs have been dropping them by the dozen for the same reason. Of course, the suggestion that many of them might try to hunt work in other fields would be futile.

I do not know many movie directors, but the two most intelligent of my acquaintance are Alan Dwan and Marshall Nielan.

London is raging with the slang saying: "Everything will be all right in the autumn." And Broadway is wearing out: "Strictly the Malarky!"

Casey Players Season Opens September 27

Five New Members Coming With Old Favorites in "Apron Strings" at the Orpheum Theater.

THE ARTHUR CASEY PLAYERS will reopen the Orpheum Theater on Sept. 27 with the comedy, "Apron Strings." Mary Hart, co-producer with Mr. Casey last season, will continue in the same capacity this coming year, as well as appearing in several roles. Many of last year's patrons at the Orpheum will remember her excellent work in "The Shanghai Gesture" and "The Royal Family."

Many of last year's favorites will be among those present in the new company of this year. May B. Hurst, popular character woman, Pierre Watkins, character leading man, Louis Tanno, Willard Robinson, Cyril Raymond, director, and Miss Hart, herself, were all seen last year and will be in the plays to be presented this season.

Five newcomers have been added to the company: Arthur Pierson and Ted Dean, juveniles, Philip Lord, character man, Catheryn Capel and Sue Conroy, ingenue.

Although none of the original company of "Apron Strings" will been seen in this city, the visiting star system will be the rule rather than the exception during the season.

Following this play the comedienne, May Robson will be seen in "Mother's Millions," which is said to be a perfect vehicle for her type of comedy. "Nancy's Private Affairs," another comedy is next on the program. The cast for this play is not definitely set at present. After this the well-known stage and motion picture star, Bert Lytell, will be presented in "Brothers," in which he was seen here last year at the American Theater.

Other attractions which are promised, but for which the dates have not been set as yet are Elsie Ferguson in "Scarlet Page," Pauline Frederick in a new play, Frank Craven in "Salt Water," and Frieda Innescourt in two or three New York Theater Guild plays.

R-100 TO BE LENGTHENED

Passenger Quotes Designer as Saying It Will Be Remodeled.

By the Associated Press.

QUEBEC, Aug. 30.—The British dirigible R-100 is to be lengthened by 200 feet with a new middle section, says Jacques N. Cartier, Montreal newspaper man, who made the flight to England with the air leviathan.

He said the designer told him that he planned to cut the R-100 in two, make it longer and change the interior arrangement. The renovated craft will have a smoker and will be the largest airship in existence, Cartier said.

FRANCE BARS GERMAN GENERAL FOR WAR CRIMES, PAPER SAYS

Berlin Lokal Anzeiger Declares Von Moltke Wanted to See Son's Grave.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—The newspaper Lokal Anzeiger says France still maintains a "black list" of so-called war criminals and recently caused Gen. Conrad von Moltke to abandon a visit to that country, where he desired to see the grave of a son.

The paper asserts that when Gen. von Moltke requested a visa he was asked whether he was the Gen. von Moltke blacklisted for alleged war crimes, in which case a visa would be refused.

Gen. von Moltke wrote a reply, Lokal Anzeiger continued, saying it was beneath his dignity to enter a discussion about a war criminals list, which he did not recognize, and said that anyway there was no such General. He added that he now refused to enter a country "which perpetuated war hatred for 12 years."

The most famous German soldier of the name von Moltke was Field Marshal Count Hellmuth Karl Bernhard von Moltke, who was the chief German strategist of the Franco-Prussian War in 1870-71. He died in 1891.

DEATH OF NEGRO DOCTOR HELD TO BE ACCIDENTAL

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned yesterday in the death of Dr. Bernice A. Yancey, Negro interne, electrocuted Friday afternoon in the X-ray room at City Hospital No. 2 when he touched a high-tension wire leading to an X-ray machine. Dr. Yancey was 25 years old, a native of Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Othello Ennis, an interne, who had requested Dr. Yancey to make an X-ray examination of his chest, testified he was removing his shirt when he heard the sound of a crackling spark, and saw Dr. Yancey poised with his left hand touching an overhead high-tension wire, and his right hand on a control knob of the machine. Dr. Yancey cried out and fell to the floor. Efforts to resuscitate him were unsuccessful.

The hospital, for Negroes, is at 2945 Lawton boulevard.

ST. LOUIS SCOUTS BACK FROM TOUR OF WEST

Meet Indians, Encounter Bears, Climb Glacier and See Mountain Storm.

Tales of Indians, a bear raid on the commissary, a two-day climb up a glacier, and a storm on the peak of a mountain were brought back to St. Louis by 12 members of the St. Louis Boy Scout Western Roving Tour, which has returned after a 30-day bus tour of the West. The tour, which had Yellowstone Park as its turning point, was the third conducted by the local Boy Scout Council in as many years.

The bear raid had nothing to do with the stock market, but was most literal, according to Charles H. Mills, activities director of the council, who had charge of the tour. It occurred while the scouts were camping in Yellowstone Park. Experience in former years had led the campers to pack their food in heavy wash-boilers with special lids, weighted with rocks and stored between the tents.

Despite these precautions, however, they awakened to find a family of bears finishing the raisin pies and a 20-pound sack of sugar. The animals were driven away, but at 5 o'clock Field Executive Max Nusser, assistant director of the trip, was awakened by one of the cubs licking the top of his head. A guard was maintained till breakfast.

The Indians were met near Deadwood, where the scouts witnessed the "Days of '76" celebration. Several tribes, with 80 covered wagons, took part in the celebration. The boys visited their encampment and were given an interview in sign language by Chief Crazy Horse, one of the chiefs said to have taken part in the Custer massacre. Although the chief, who is 82 years old, served for years as a scout in the United States Army, he can speak only very little English.

During the celebration, which reproduced the old mining days of the town, the scouts visited the "Bucket of Blood Saloon," and witnessed the re-enactment there of the murder of Wild Bill Hitchkok.

An entire day was spent climing an 11,000 foot glacier near Jenny Lake in the Teton Mountains. Camp was made 10,000 feet up, in the snow, the summit not being reached until the next morning. Here the scouts, in the middle of August, held a snowball fight. They also gathered some rare geological specimens, including garnets and fossil leaves. The trip up the glacier was made entirely on foot, the baggage being sent ahead by a pack train.

Encounter Mountain Storm.

The greatest excitement of the trip, however, occurred in the Black Hills, where two days were spent at Sylvan Lake. During the stay the scouts climed Mount Harney, the highest peak east of the Rockies, and arrived on top in the midst of a mountain storm. Few of them were familiar with the sight of lightning flashing below them, in clouds down on the mountain-side, but the climax was reached when a bolt struck and demolished a flagstaff 30 feet from their shelter.

All told, the scouts traveled more than 4600 miles, starting from Camp Irondale and swinging through the Bad Lands, the Black Hills, Yellowstone, the Jackson's Hole country and Denver.

Those making the trip, in addition to Mills and Nusser, were Scouts William Cook, Ferguson 2; Walter Boettger, Webster Groves 8; Robert Todd, Troop 102; Howard Mueller, 98; James Howard, 153; James Meadows, 98; Frank Hearne, Poplar Bluff 1; and Wilbert Meyer, Troop 178.

William S. Puffer, a member of the summer headquarters staff, who has been on every roving tour conducted by the council, acted as business manager, while LeRoy Benson, the regular roving camp chef, again held that position.

HIRTH DENIES SAYING HE WAS FARM BOARD'S CHIEF OBSTACLE

Head of Missouri Association Corrects News Report on Sedalia Convention Speech.

William Hirth of Columbia, president of the Missouri Farmers' Association, has written the Post-Dispatch taking exception to a report, in a Sedalia dispatch on the association's annual meeting there last week, that "Hirth called himself the chief obstacle in the way of the Farm Board."

Hirth wrote that the substance of what he said was this: "During recent months I have often been held up in the newspapers as almost the chief objector to the Federal Farm Board, and after listening to the prominent farm leaders who have addressed our convention from outside states, I am glad that our delegates have been made aware of the fact that I am by no means alone in my criticism of Farm Board methods."

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

Eleven scouts, Scoutmaster Fichtel and Committeeman O. Olsen of Troop 57 spent last Saturday and Sunday at the Meramec State Park near Sullivan. The troop drove to the park in automobiles furnished by Fichtel and Olsen. After attending church at Sullivan Sunday morning, the scouts visited Fisher's Cave in the park, went horseback riding and swimming, and participated in different scout activities. Each scout did his own cooking for the meals during the camp.

An entertainment for their parents was given by the scouts of Troop 247, of the Froebel School, at their cabin two weeks ago. Fifty-three persons were present. The day was spent in games, songs and stunts. Eighteen scouts of the troop, under the leadership of Roy Wagner and Mrs. Sparwasser, wife of Scoutmaster Sparwasser of the troop, performed a troop good turn by helping the Gold Star Mothers with their baggage when the mothers changed trains at Union Station two weeks ago yesterday. The scouts took complete charge of transferring the baggage from incoming trains to the special train taking the mothers east. After the special train had departed, the scouts were treated to a watermelon feast by A. C. Striebel.

Troop 198, of St. John's Episcopal Church, re-registered last week, at the same time qualifying for a standard troop award. This is the second year in succession this troop has won this award. The troop is on an eight-day roving tour of Indiana and Illinois, in a council roving tour bus. They are scheduled to return tomorrow evening. Scoutmaster L. John ("Courage and Endurance") Lewis, is in charge of the tour, the first ever to be conducted by an individual troop in the city.

Troop 183, of St. Paul's Evangelical Church, will resume its regular meetings this month, starting probably next week. The troop temporarily disbanded during the summer because of the number of its members who were out of town.

West District.

A dinner on behalf of the Christian Endeavor of the Second Presbyterian Church, and in honor of the pastor and his wife, was given by the scouts of Troop 106, which has headquarters at the church, last Wednesday evening. After the dinner the troop hiked to its cabin in the county for a two-day camp. They returned Friday evening, but left again yesterday afternoon to spend the Labor day holidays at the cabin. Assistant Scoutmaster Richard Singer is in charge of the camp.

Four members of Troop 30, of the Y. M. H. A., will return today from Camp Irondale, where they spent the last section of camp as an award for winning the West District Camparall this spring. The other four members of the Camparall patrol spent two weeks in the Ranger Camp at Irondale in July. The troop met as usual in Forest Park last week. Outdoor games and tests occupied most of the program.

NORTH DISTRICT.

The Wolf Patrol had charge of the opening ceremonies at the regular meeting of Troop 3, of the Grace Holy Cross Church, last week. A talk on "The Spirit of Old Troop 3" was given by Scoutmaster Simons. Tests also were passed, and patrol meetings held, while plans for a hike today and tomorrow were completed. The troop will leave this morning and return tomorrow night.

A party for the scouts of Troop 1, and their parents, was held at the country home of Mrs. Freeman, president of the troop mothers' club, last Wednesday evening. The party started at 5 o'clock, and continued through the evening. Troop 1 meets at the Benton School.

Suburban District.

The scouts of Troop Webster Groves 8, of the Webster Groves Episcopal Church, are making a collection of native leaves, under the direction of Scoutmaster Dr. Colgate. The leaves will be mounted and made ready for an exhibit that will be held by the troop in some public building in Webster next month.

CITY'S OUTDOOR SWIMMING POOLS CLOSE FOR SEASON

Indoor Plants Stay Open; 1,077,591 Users From June 1 Till Aug. 15.

Marquette and Fairgrounds pools, the city's outdoor swimming pools, were closed for the season yesterday. Soulard and Mullanphy pools, which are indoors, are open all year.

In the two-month period from the opening of the outdoor pools in June until Aug. 15 the four pools together had 1,077,591 users, compared with only 789,890 in the entire fiscal year that ended last April. The great increase is attributed almost wholly to the excessive heat this summer.

St. Louisan Appointed to State Job.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 30.—Appointment of August B. Cramer, 6100 West Park avenue, St. Louis, as chief clerk of the State Game and Fish Department, effective Sept. 2, was announced today by Game and Fish Commissioner John Ross. Cramer will succeed J. O. Cottle of Ironton.

An Attractive Kitchen in a St. Louis Home

—Courtesy Hadley-Dean Glass Co.

This illustration of a modern kitchen was reproduced from a picture taken in a St. Louis County residence. It suggests one of the possibilities of sanitary, colorful treatment of walls and ceiling of a modern-day kitchen.

KEEP COLD AIR OUT WITH WEATHERSTRIP

Cold Air Comes Into a House Through the Cracks Around the Windows.

Comfortable interior temperature of buildings, economically obtained, mainly depends on keeping the warm air in and the cold air out, in the expert opinion of Alfred Lane, president of the Monarch Metal Weatherstrip Co., who holds that just one ordinarily loose window or door can admit enough outside cold air to chill a room.

As explained by Lane, the cracks around the windows of a building naturally increase due to the seasoning and shrinkage of the window frames. As the cracks get larger the volume of inleaking air will increase. In cold weather, the outside air is cold and in whatever volume it leaks into a building through the window cracks, the inleaking air must be heated to render the room comfortable.

There is no season for installing weather strips, according to Lane. He says, however, that a householder before arranging for the installation of weatherstrip should have a heat loss survey made of the home, to determine, in effect, what the saving in fuel will be after the weatherstrip has been installed.

BROKEN FURNACE GRATES

Broken or warped grate bars let live coals through to the ashpit, wasting good coal. They should be replaced by new ones.

Warping of the grate bars is caused by shaking the coal bed down until the live coals rest on top of the grate. A layer of ashes should always be left on the grate bars to protect them from the intense heat. Ashes in the ashpit should never be allowed to accumulate to within four inches of the grates.

Be sure that all dampers fit snugly and are securely fastened on their shafts. Also, see that the exact position of the damper is correctly indicated by the handle.

MODERN KITCHEN UNITS

If a kitchen is dark because of lack of natural light, it usually is possible to enlarge existing windows or install additional ones. Installation of white enameled panels, cupboards and bins will help make a kitchen light.

Drawers, shelves, bins and cabinets, for which room will be found in most old kitchens, make possible an efficient storage of cooking supplies and utensils which will save a housewife many steps.

These units can be so arranged as to greatly reduce the effort required in cooking in an old kitchen where everything is placed in a haphazard manner.

GLASS ROOMS NOW ARE AN ACTUALITY

Glass-Like Substance Now Available for Covering Walls and Ceilings.

Glass kitchens and breakfast nooks and glass bathrooms, at least as far as walls, ceilings and wainscoting are concerned, are being featured in many St. Louis private residences and apartment houses, according to W. D. Hadley of the Hadley-Dean Glass Co., local distributers of Sani-Onyx.

The walls of the kitchen pictured here have recently been equipped with a vitreous marbl product, and the result fully demonstrates the possibilities of this, one of the very newest phases of home modernization.

The ultra-cleanliness of this beautiful and attractive kitchen makes the work of the person using it a pleasure and adds a room of beauty to the home.

It is as easy to clean as a china plate, a damp cloth being all that is necessary to employ in cleaning the sanitary glassy surface.

Besides that, it is a permanent surface and will not discolor or grow dingy but will always be an economical feature in upkeep.

EPITHET BEATS JAMESTOWN A NOSE IN $60,000 HOPEFUL STAKES

By the Associated Press.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Dashing over six and one-half furlongs within three-fifths of a second of the world's record, Gifford A. Cochran's Epithet today became an outstanding candidate for 2-year-old championship honors as he lowered the standard of George D. Widener's heretofore undefeated Jamestown in winning the twenty-sixth running of the Hopeful Stakes with a driving finish.

It was only the second time out for Epithet, but his performance in covering the Hopeful course in 1:17 3-5 marked the flashy son of the famous French sire, Epinard, as one of the outstanding juveniles of the year. True, he picked up only 117 pounds to Jamestown's 130, but he handled his weight well, coming up from behind in the final 20 yards to defeat the offspring of St. James by the narrow margin of one-half a length.

Novelist Third.

A nose back followed Joseph E. Widener's Novelist in third place, with Mrs. Victor Emanuel's High Day, fourth. The world's track record of 1:17 flat was hung up by Harry Payne Whitney's Boojum in winning the event last year under the same weight as packed by Epithet today.

Thrown in with 15 of the best 2-year-olds in training and giving away from five to 13 pounds, Jamestown was at a disadvantage from the rise of the barrier, but despite the weight handicap he was made the 7 to 5 favorite with Epithet closing at 5 to 1 and Novelist at 4 to 1. Jamestown, however, ran a great race, setting a burning pace from the time Starter George Cassidy yelled "Go" until he was passed in the final strides by Epithet.

Old Bill Kelsay, who was riding thoroughbreds before many of the present-day jockeys were born, rode one of his brilliant races on the winner. With Jamestown and Novelist eating up the ground with lightning speed, Kelsay kept his mount back in third position but still within striking distance of the leaders.

For the first six furlongs, the chart men droned out the same call at every furlong pole: Jamestown by a length, Novelist by a length and a half, Epithet by two lengths. A furlong from home the calls had shortened to a head between Jamestown and Novelist and Epithet had moved up.

In the last sixteenth, Jamestown suddenly gave way under the crushing weight. In an instant Kelsay had given the Cochran colt the word and in another second Epithet was out in front. Slowly he drew away from the favorite to win in a hard drive.

Victory Worth $55,000.

The trip around the track was worth $55,000 to Cochran, while the owners of the Jamestown and Novelist received $6000 and $3000, respectively.

EPITHET BEATS JAMESTOWN A NOSE IN $60,000 HOPEFUL STAKES

By the Associated Press.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Dashing over six and one-half furlongs within three-fifths of a second of the world's record, Gifford A. Cochran's Epithet today became an outstanding candidate for 2-year-old championship honors as he lowered the standard of George D. Widener's heretofore undefeated Jamestown in winning the twenty-sixth running of the Hopeful Stakes with a driving finish.

It was only the second time out for Epithet, but his performance in covering the Hopeful course in 1:17 3-5 marked the flashy son of the famous French sire, Epinard, as one of the outstanding juveniles of the year. True, he picked up only 117 pounds to Jamestown's 130, but he handled his weight well, coming up from behind in the final 20 yards to defeat the offspring of St. James by the narrow margin of one-half a length.

Novelist Third.

A nose back followed Joseph E. Widener's Novelist in third place, with Mrs. Victor Emanuel's High Day, fourth. The world's track record of 1:17 flat was hung up by Harry Payne Whitney's Boojum in winning the event last year under the same weight as packed by Epithet today.

Thrown in with 15 of the best 2-year-olds in training and giving away from five to 13 pounds, Jamestown was at a disadvantage from the rise of the barrier, but despite the weight handicap he was made the 7 to 5 favorite with Epithet closing at 5 to 1 and Novelist at 4 to 1. Jamestown, however, ran a great race, setting a burning pace from the time Starter George Cassidy yelled "Go" until he was passed in the final strides by Epithet.

Old Bill Kelsay, who was riding thoroughbreds before many of the present-day jockeys were born, rode one of his brilliant races on the winner. With Jamestown and Novelist eating up the ground with lightning speed, Kelsay kept his mount back in third position but still within striking distance of the leaders.

For the first six furlongs, the chart men droned out the same call at every furlong pole: Jamestown by a length, Novelist by a length and a half, Epithet by two lengths. A furlong from home the calls had shortened to a head between Jamestown and Novelist and Epithet had moved up.

In the last sixteenth, Jamestown suddenly gave way under the crushing weight. In an instant Kelsay had given the Cochran colt the word and in another second Epithet was out in front. Slowly he drew away from the favorite to win in a hard drive.

Victory Worth $55,000.

The trip around the track was worth $55,000 to Cochran, while the owners of the Jamestown and Novelist received $6000 and $3000, respectively.

ABERDEEN, S. D., Aug. 30.

ARE you an expert golfer in need of free board and lodging? If so, journey to Aberdeen and enter the South Dakota open golf tournament, which opens tomorrow and continues through Monday. Among the prizes offered is one week's accommodations—at the county jail. Sheriff Lou Geisler of Brown County is the donor of this prize.

However, if prison fare offers no appeal, there's another trophy worth seeking. Frank Brown, attorney, has offered "one first-class divorce, free of all charge," as his contribution to the tournament's reward.

LANSING RAY LOSES IN SEMIFINAL OF GOLF TOURNAMENT

RYE BEACH, N. H., Aug. 30.—E. Lansing Ray Jr. of St. Louis, winner of the club championship earlier in the month, was defeated this morning in the semifinals of the annual invitation golf tournament at the Abenaqui Golf Club today. Ray lost to Wade Roberts of Dover, 5 and 3.

This afternoon, Roberts, who was medalist in the qualifying round, won the championship and a leg on the Studebaker Cup by defeating Hildreth Meigs of Lowell, Mass., by 2 up.

In the semifinal of the four division, E. G. Burkham of St. Louis lost to Grant H. Fairbanks of Haverhill, Mass., who captured the final.

Epithet, under a pull in the weights, was kept close to the fast early pace, moved up fast on outside in the stretch and closed gamely, was going away at the end. Jamestown ran a wonderful race, made all the pace and held on gamely, when passed by Epithet. Novelist away fast, followed the pace and held on well. High Day closed with a rush. Surf Board was well up all the way.

Betting odds: Epithet, win 5-1, place 5-2, show 7-5; Jamestown, 1-7, out; Novelist, show even.

THE HACK WILSON SWING: He Leads Ruth by Two in Hitting Home Runs

The Cub slugger is shown here batting in the Cardinals' 20-inning game at Chicago Thursday. Wilson was injured in the game, and was out of Friday's engagement, but came back yesterday with two home runs, giving him a total of 46, two more than Babe Ruth has. Incidentally, Wilson batted in six scores in the Cubs' 16-4 triumph over the Redbirds. Wilson's short stature—he's five feet, six inches tall—is noticeable in the photograph.

GIANTS DEFEAT ROBINS, 7 TO 4, GAIN AN EVEN BREAK IN SERIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The Giants ended the series with the Brooklyn Robins today just where they started it as a 7-to-4 triumph gave them an even break in the four games. They regained their place one and a half games ahead of Brooklyn and five and a half games behind Chicago.

Clarence Mitchell pitched a splendid game for the Giants, allowing nine scattered hits, while Clise Dudley, who started for Brooklyn, was knocked out in the third inning and Jim Elliott and Hollis Thurston failed to check the Giant slugging.

The Giants went ahead by scoring two runs in the second inning after the Robins had taken a brief lead and never again were headed. Bill Terry led the New York attack, clouting a triple and four singles in five times at bat. Mitchell made three of the 17 Giant blows, of which one or more were made in every inning.

Home runs were made by O'Farrell of New York and Wright and Bissonette of Brooklyn.

Jimmy Moran Wins, Germaine Chauvelot Beaten at Fairmount

By Dent McSkimming.

While the track management found no reason to be hilarious over the size of the crowd, the first half of the two-day race meeting at Fairmount Park yesterday provided better than average race track entertainment. Favorites delivered much as expected, which means that the fans had a fair day. The second half of the abbreviated meeting will be offered tomorrow, Labor Day. About 5000 persons attended the Saturday program.

The feature event of yesterday's card, a handicap at six furlongs, fell to E. K. Bryson's 3-year-old colt, Jimmy Moran, a horse which was at one time rated among the best. He had his work cut out for him from the start, for Fleeting Fire was fairly full of run, broke fast and stole a good lead. The veteran rider, Louie Morris, seemed to know perfectly what he could get out of Jimmy Moran, for he worked his way up steadily, out of the field on the back stretch, and then into a contending position on the turn and finally out on top at the head of the stretch.

Fleeting Fire proved a game horse and was not badly beaten.

Ragabald, coming fast in the last quarter, was third. Morris was looking over his shoulder, nursing Jimmy Moran's speed in the stretch, after having taken the lead. Seven horses started.

The secondary feature was nota-

When Man o' War Failed.

ONE of the sensations of the sale of thoroughbreds at Saratoga two years ago, occurred when a representative of the Three D Stables shouted out: "I bid $65,000!" and had knocked down to him, then and there, a yearling son of Man o' War-Starflight, by Sunstar.

The sequel to the sensation was another one that occurred at Lincoln Fields Race track, Friday afternoon when Broadway Limited, rounding the stretch in next to last position crashed to the track dead of heart disease. Broadway Limited was the yearling that had cost the Waggoner boys $65,000 in 1928.

The Texas horsemen had expected another American Flag or a Crusader of Broadway Limited. They entered him in all the famous stake events of the country and in the Derby. On his breeding he figured a potential world beater.

But on his performance he proved to be a total bust. In his career as a 2-year-old Broadway Limited started five times. This year, as a 3-year-old, he went to the post three times. The net results of all his efforts was that he failed to finish in the money in any race!

There is this to be said about Broadway Limited's career—he was beaten by some famous horses. Among his conquerors were Gallant Fox, Gallant Knight, Ned O, Whichone, Hi-Jack, Boojum, Jim Dandy, etc.

One might add that he was the outstanding failure of all Man O' War's progeny.

CARNERA STOPS BERTAZOLLA IN THIRD ROUND ON TECHNICAL K. O.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 30.—Primo Carnera enjoyed a waltz here tonight in the Mammoth Auditorium to add another knockout to the rapidly mounting list on his great American tour. But in stopping Ricardo Bertazolla, a countryman listed as champion of Italy, there was little glory in the achievement.

From the opening blow struck by Carnera there was little to the so-called battle until Referee Harry Ertle halted the fray in the third round after the session had progressed one minute and 10 seconds.

When Ertle called a stop Carnera had battered Bertazolla into a state of semi-consciousness and had his opponent in a helpless way on the ropes.

20,000 Attend.

A brilliant holiday throng of 20,000, including many New Yorkers, saw the fight.

The bout had only progressed a few seconds before Primo had the champion of Italy groggy. From there on it was a case of Carnera throwing punches at Bertazolla and Bertie was there to take them. The best the champion of Italy could do was to wave wanly now and then at the mountainous Carnera. Ricardo landed only one good punch in the round, a right, which Primo did not bother to block. The second was a repetition of the first, only more so. Primo continued to belabor his opponent with every punch in the category. Still, Ricardo, always plodding in, came back for more.

In the third round, Bertazollas' face was a bloody smear, and when Carnera got him against the ropes and battered him viciously Ertle decided it was time to interrupt the bout.

Bertazolla Has No Defense.

Bertazolla proved an uncouth battler for the fast Carnera. He had no defense whatsoever to offer and took Primo's blows without the suggestion of counter-attack.

As early as the second round there were cries to halt the proceedings.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—There was a lot of noise at Wrigley Field this afternoon and many explosions as bats of wood crashed against baseballs of horsehide and wool, and unless many persons are badly mistaken, there was included among the explosions the bursting of the balloon that for a few days had been nicknamed the Cardinals' pennant hopes.

Somebody had to crack after those two remarkable extra-inning games and somebody did crack—and it wasn't the Cubs. Apparently there was more inspiration in the Chicago victory in 13 innings, 9 to 8, than there had been in the 20-inning triumph of the Cardinals by 8 to 7, for today the league-leading Bruins of Joe McCarthy mauled the Redbirds all over the lot, clawed them, beat them, 16 to 4, and left them bruised and gasping, seven and a half games out of first place and almost willing to forget about the pennant for another year.

What a beating it was! For one thing, Hack Wilson returned to the wars after one day on the bench and what a merry joke that was about his back being sprained. The human barrel, who plays center field for the Cubs, certainly didn't look like an invalid. He knocked two home runs into the center field bleachers, his forty-fifth and forty-sixth of the year, hit two sacrifice flies and a single for a perfect day at the plate. Hack drove in six runs during the afternoon, which constituted much more than the Cubs needed to take the third game of the series.

Wilson's pair of four-baggers put him two ahead of Babe Ruth in the race for home run honors.

Teachout Stops Cardinals.

Before the game the scribes and the fans were pitying poor Joe McCarthy because he had to pick a pitcher to face the Cardinals. But Joe didn't need any pity. He waved the magic wand over his bag of tricks and out jumped Bud Teachout, the hardworking southpaw of the league champions' staff. Bud had pitched two-thirds of an inning on Thursday and two innings yesterday, but that didn't bother him.

The lad must have a rubber arm; he's been that way all year. Whenever the Cubs played a tough game, Teachout's name was sure to appear in the list of pitchers, and if they played two or three tough games in succession, there was Teachout in each.

He got off to a bad start when Taylor Douthit slapped him for a triple to center to open the game, but Taylor obligingly committed suicide on Adams' grounder to English and after that the day was just a breeze for the rubber-armed left-hander.

NEW U. S. NET STARS CRUSH BRITISH TEAM

By the Associated Press.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 30.—A picturesque trio of American youngsters drawn from the East, Far West and South represented their country for the first time in international tennis play this afternoon and gained a 5-0 victory over a touring English team.

Twenty-year-old Cliff Sutter, national intercollegiate champion from Tulane University, opened the series by volleying his way to victory over Harold George Newcombe Lee of England, 6—8, 6—4, 6—2.

Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, Cal., and Sidney B. Wood of New York, who have won a place among America's foremost players at 18, encountered stubborn opposition, but eventually Vines downed Frederick J. Perry, 8—6, 10—12, 6—2 and Wood overcame John Olliff, 3—6, 6—3, 6—4.

This made it unanimous as far as singles were concerned and clinched the series with the necessary three out of five, but Young America was not yet ready to call it a day.

The Lanky Vines teamed up with Keith Gledhill in doubles and this youthful pair proceeded to hand a 6—3, 6—2 trimming to Lee and his veteran partner, L. A. Godfree.

Not even England's traditional skill in doubles play could save John Bull from a shut-out, in the final match of the day Perry and Olliff were beaten, 6—3, 7—5, by Wood and Phil Neer of San Francisco, former intercollegiate champion.

SPARTONS PLAY SALISBURYS IN FEATURE OF MUNICIPAL SEMIFINALS

SENTINELS AND TOWER CAMPS TO MEET IN FIRST OF DOUBLE BILL

By Dent McSkimming.

Out of the host of nearly 200 teams, there remain to compete for the Municipal Baseball Association championship only four clubs and by sunset this evening this number will be cut in half. The semifinals of the elimination series, to be played at Fairground Park this afternoon, bring together the Sentinels and Tower Camps in the first game and the Spartons and Salisburys in the second. The program will be in the form of a double-header and a crowd of 8000 or more is expected to fill the inclosure at Grounds No. 1, where bleacher seats will accommodate more than 6000.

Batters have thus far had the loudest voice in determining winners in the elimination series, but today it is likely that pitchers will have the last word. In advancing to the semifinals these four clubs have had to prove themselves tight defensive units. It now becomes a question of which is the tighter. In pitching strength the Sentinels appear to have an advantage Louis Jordan, strikeout king of the whole Muny League, is a prospective major leaguer. He has proved himself far superior to the ordinary run of amateur hurlers, and if his teammates don't get panicky because of the big crowd, he may very easily dominate the situation. Govenat, who has pitched the Tower Camp team to two victories in the play-off series, has remarkable control and a fair assortment of pitching tricks. He had the Freight Account batters eating out of his hand last Sunday, just as he did the Colleagues two weeks ago. He'll be tough.

In the second game the rival hurlers probably will be Hal Ropiequet of the Salisburys and Hap Currier of the Spartons. Ropiequet is an old campaigner. He has had minor league experience and has learned a lot about putting the ball where it can't be solidly hit. He is a southpaw. Currier's work, too, is effective chiefly because of hooks and breaks. His speed will never cause much comment but when his curve is breaking right he can make a batter look amateurish enough.

Of the four clubs engaged, the Spartons should be the steadiest, if years of experience mean anything. Among their better known stars is Heine Drew, left fielder, who not long ago played a regular outfield berth for an International League club. Scott, at first base, is as big as Lou Gehrig and hits the ball almost as far when he connects. He is a left handed batter and Ropiequet's southpaw shoots may effectually spike his big gun.

The return of Ted Saussele to the Salisbury lineup after several weeks absence, during which he attended summer school in Colorado, adds hitting strength to the Carondelet team's attack. Saussele is regarded as one of the best hitters developed in Municipal and school baseball here in years.

Today's winners will engage in a three-game final series, starting next Sunday. No out-of-town team will be brought here this year but the champion team will instead be sent away to compete for the national municipal title.

the foundation for her rough treatment. As long as there is hope that Hornsby will be right next season Hornsby trade rumors may be discounted. Hornsby is still a potent factor. That he has had only a pinch-hit assignment since the injury to his ankle is not enough to justify trade reports.

A broken ankle isn't healed in a month, nor yet a season. If Hornsby is able to get into the regular lineup before the end of the season (as a fielder that is) it will be a miracle.

In these days of sock artists, no manager is trading heavy artillery as long as his power is still there. Wrigley is wealthy enough not to worry about Hornsby's big salary. He will be traded only when convinced that all is lost.

Hard to Fathom.

JEWEL ENS and Manager McCarthy are both involved in "Here's-your-hat-what's-your-hurry" rumors. What a rank injustice it would seem if the Pirates fired Ens because the Pittsburg club has been a flop this year. No team in either league has been so riddled by mishaps to its players as the Pirates. At times the club has been completely wrecked, with many of its big guns out.

The Pittsburg owners, however, dealt the club its first and worst blow when they let Grimes remain a holdout and finally passed him along.

Today, with its invalids playing in something like form again, Pittsburg is striking its real gait and will be heard from this month and next season.

As for the release of McCarthy, stranger things have happened than that the manager who gave his team one pennant winner and is giving it another, he made the subject of "canning" comment. Hornsby won a pennant and got it in the vertebrae; McKechnie was a winner for Pittsburg, but was shunted along.

On the surface, however, McCarthy seems to have done all that could be expected. He really has had many troubles in his 1930 pennant drive and has been playing a makeshift infield with Grimm and Hornsby out of the running, and Bell out most of the time.

However, heads fall with very little reason, some times. The ax hangs over everybody in the baseball world.

Dick Shikat Explains.

DICK SHIKAT, who in his last wrestling show here against Rudy Dusek showed us an entirely new Shikat, displaying many of the arts of showmanship and violations of the rules such as mark the appearances here of other professional wrestlers, writes an explanation of his change of style. His letter follows:

Sporting Editor,
St. Louis Post-Dispatch,
St. Louis, Mo.
Dear sir:

I read your article with interest in the Post-Dispatch the results of my match with Rudy Dusek in which you state that I was different from any of my former matches here. You are right when you say that I was different, and this gives me an opportunity to explain why I was different. From past experiences I can state that if any opponent of Dusek inclines to let him use all the rough tactics he will be in for a defeat as this fellow Dusek takes advantage of using his elbows and inclines to slug his opponent every chance he gets, and therefore I decided to beat him at his own game.

No doubt you noticed that right from the start of the match Dusek elbowed me a half dozen times, and had I not fought back he would have slugged me all around the ring. My past experience during my 11 years on the mat has taught me one thing, and that is to battle an opponent at his own style. Had Dusek wrestled clean I would have done likewise, but I cannot be blamed for trying to protect myself, especially when I had such a tough opponent as Dusek. I just had to wrestle him at his own game in order to offset his mad rushes and rough tactics.

I wish to call your attention that this is not the first time I wrestled Dusek. In my first match which was held in Memphis at times I was almost knocked out, and in a dizzy, weakened condition from the blows I received from his elbows that landed right under my heart. He has powerful arms, and at times even the referee cannot see the foul blows.

As for crawling out of the ropes, as you stated in your article, it may be poor sportsmanship, but not showmanship. A man has the right to protect himself at all times, especially when my opponent applies a torturing hold with full leverage which at times is difficult to break. I am in the ring with one determination, and that is to win, and therefore will take advantage of every opportunity.

In conclusion I wish to state that there was no stalling on my part, and neither was I making unnecessary facial expressions as you unjustly stated in your article. However, I am deserving some consideration for my efforts in giving the fans the best that is in me.

Yours in sport,
DICK SHIKAT.

As We View It.

THAT'S Shikat's view. It argues that one foul justifies another, for he says that "because Duesk inclines to slug his opponent I decided to beat him at his own game."

Slugging is foul under the rules.

"Had Dusek wrestled clean, I, too, would have done so," Shikat admits. The wrestler's proper redress is an appeal to the referee, not retaliation by violating the rules himself.

If Duesk fouled him, as charged by Shikat at Memphis, it is just another indictment of the failure to enforce wrestling rules by referees and commissions.

"Crawling under the ropes may be poor sportsmanship, but is not showmanship," complains Shikat. We admit the poor sportsmanship, but contend it is worse still—it is a violation of the Missouri wrestling rules, and the referee and commissioner should know it.

"I am deserving some consideration for my efforts in giving the fans the best," says Dick.

Righto, Richard—when you DO give the best. That means wrestling within the Missouri regulations and without any acting.

GAR WOOD WINS FIRST HEAT OF HARMSWORTH TROPHY RACE

DETROIT, Aug. 30.—Gar Wood, guiding his newest speed boat creation, Miss America IX, easily won the first heat of the Harmsworth Trophy race here this afternoon, defeating the British challenger, Miss Marion Barbara Carstairs, guiding her Estelle IV.

Estelle V., admittedly the faster of the two British boats, was forced out by engine trouble at the start of the third five-mile lap.

George Wood, driving Miss America VIII, finished second, about half a mile behind Gar Wood. Miss Carstairs, who calmly stayed in the race although badly beaten after the fourth lap, crossed the finish line about three miles behind the American team.

Gar Wood's average speed for the 30 nautical miles was 75.177 statute miles per hour. His fastest speed was in the third lap at 77.44 statute miles per hour.

Miss America VIII had an average speed of 74.059 for the race and the Estelle IV averaged 70.117 miles per hour. The Estelle V, with Bert Hawker at the wheel, apparently was headed for a record when engine trouble overtook him at the start of the third lap. He had just covered the course at a speed of 78.547 miles per hour when forced out.

The record for the Harmsworth is 79.467 miles per hour, made by Gar Wood last year.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh with Mrs. Lindbergh and his mother were among the spectators, being guests of William B. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford Motor Co., on the latter's yacht.

The second heat of the Harmsworth race will be held late Monday afternoon.

Just as Bert Hawker, driving Estelle V, seemed about to overtake Wood, a broken feed line forced him off the course.

Wood covered the 30-nautical mile course at an average speed of 75.177 statute miles an hour in winning today's heat.

The Miss America VIII, with George Wood at the wheel, finished second about half a mile behind Miss America IX, and Estelle IV, driven by Miss Carstairs, was third.

100 BIKE RIDERS RACE TOMORROW IN TITLE EVENTS

The Century Road Club of America will hold a bicycle derby in O'Fallon Park tomorrow with 12 races on the program. About 100 bicycle riders will compete.

The program will get under way at 9 a. m. when boys under 14 years old will compete on a one-mile event. Among the other events will be a one-mile race for boys 14 to 16 years of age.

The prize event of the day should prove to be the two-mile race, open only to messenger boys. And then, an interesting event should be the two-mile race for Negro boys to decide the champion Negro rider of St. Louis. This race, it is expected will be bitterly contested.

Novice riders who have never placed in a bike race before, will have their big chance when they will be asked to ride the one mile in the Novice event. A two-mile race for A. B. & C. class cyclists as well as an eevnt open only to fellows with service bicycles will be held.

The final and biggest event of the day will be the Midwestern championship which will bring together star cyclists from Chicago, Louisville, Ky., and Kansas City, Mo., as well as other out of town cities.

The championship races will include a half mile sprint and one mile, two-mile and five-mile. All scratch races. Riders will score on points of five for first, three for second, two for third and one for fourth. This was held in Chicago last year with Eddie Triese, a Chicago entrant, emerging the victor. He will defend his championship here.

Trophies including silver loving cups, gold, silver and bronze medals as well as gold watches and many valuable merchandise prizes will be awarded the winners in the various events.

White Sox Buy Player.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 30.—Bob Tarleton, of the Dallas Texas League club, announced today the sale of Hughie Willingham, infielder and outfielder, to the Chicago White Sox for an unannounced cash price and two players to be selected later.

Kaufmann, Recalled by Cards Has Won Five Games, Lost Two

Pitcher Recently Allowed Only One Hit During Nine Innings—Has Batting Mark of .304.

TONY KAUFMANN.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 30.—In recalling Tony Kaufmann, the St. Louis Cardinals are getting a pitcher, who, apparently, has recovered much of the wizardry that was his several years ago when he was with the Chicago Cubs, and rated by Branch Rickey the most promising young pitcher in the Majors.

President Fred Ankeman of the Houston Buffs declared today, Kaufmann would join the Cardinals when it became mathematically impossible for the Houston Club to win the second half of the Texas League race. After last night's game, Houston was five games behind the league-leading Fort Worth Club. Houston and Fort Worth each have 11 games to play, hence it is quite probable Kaufmann will join the Cardinals within a week at the latest.

Five Victories, Two Defeats.

To date, Kaufmann has won five and lost two games, and his last two efforts have been masterpieces.

Last Monday night he tangled with Lil Stoner of Fort Worth, former Detroit and Pittsburg pitcher, in a 14-inning classic, which Fort Worth won, 3 to 1.

Houston should have won the game in nine innings, during which period only 28 men faced Kaufmann. The only batter to reach first off Kaufmann in nine innings was Stoner, who in the sixth inning got a Texas Leaguer to center field.

Four hits in the fourteenth enabled the Fort Worth team to score three runs.

In Houston's half of the fourteenth, Kaufmann led off with a single, and scored on Watty Holm's double for Houston's tally.

In the 14 innings, Kaufmann fanned nine and walked not a single man.

Kaufmann's career as a big league pitcher seemed ended several years ago when he injured his right arm bowling during the winter and lost his curve ball.

Pitching for Last Month.

He essayed a comeback as an outfielder, and in 1928, playing with Rochester, he led the International League in hitting, with .402. In 1929, he was with the Giants as a pinch hitter, but saw little service.

The Cardinals claimed Kaufmann from the Giants and sent him to Houston, where his heavy batting featured the early 1930 campaign. The Texas sun worked wonders with Kaufmann's arm, and about a month ago he tried a mound comeback with rare success.

Last Monday, Kaufmann had a variety of stuff, much speed, a fine curve ball and a fine change of pace. Best of all, his control was perfect. A week ago Friday night, Kaufmann beat the heaviest hitting team in the league, Wichita Falls, 12 to 3, allowing only four hits and fanning 10 batters.

Averages released for Sunday show he is batting .304.

With men on bases, Kaufmann is about as dangerous as any hitter in the league. He has made 102 hits and knocked in 100 runs.

been laying great store by the right arm of Jim Lindsey. He thought that the Texan's high fast ball would make the Cubs lie down and roll over or do whatever tricks Cubs are supposed to do when they're not hitting home runs for Joe McCarthy. But Street was all wrong about it.

One of Jim's first high fast balls hit Blair in the ribs to start the Cubs' first inning and after English lined to Douthit, Lindsey threw four high fast balls so high that Cuyler walked. Then Jim threw a high fast ball to Hack Wilson and the human barrel apparently didn't think it was high enough or fast enough, because he raised it and gave it a great deal of speed and when the speed was spent among the bleacher seats in center field, Hack had his forty-fifth homer of the year, crossing the plate behind Blair and Cuyler.

That was all the important damage to the high fast ball in that inning, but when Teachout led off in the second with a double and reached third on Blair's single to center, Street realized that it was no day for hight fast balls and perhaps a left-hander of Polish descent might do better.

Score Goes to 10 to 0.

Gabby was wrong once more, but he called Grabowski just the same and English greeted the Polish left-hander with a triple to right, scoring Teachout and Blair. In this same inning, George Kelly hit a homer over the left field fence with a runner on base and as in the meantime English scored on a sacrifice fly, the frame netted five runs, giving Teachout and the Cubs a lead of eight runs.

Other resounding wallops merely made the Cubs' victory more one-sided. After Cuyler walked in the fourth, Hack Wilson hit his forty-sixth homer of the season to make the score 10 to 0.

In the fifth the Cardinals became a 10-to-1 shot, though still looking like at 100-1 shot, when Blades hit into Hack Wilson's private bleachers for a four-bagger.

Puccinelli Does His Stunt.

A pass to Cuyler, two sacrifice flies and Kelly's fourth hit, a single, produced the Cubs' eleventh run in the sixth and in the seventh, Maucuso's double and a tremendous homer by Puccinelli over the left center-field fence brought the unimportant Cardinal total to three.

English's single, Cuyler's double, Hack Wilson's single, Dan Taylor's sacrifice fly, a pass to Kelly and a homer over the left-field wall by Jack Taylor added five runs to the Cubs' total in the eighth inning, and in the ninth the Cards tallied their fourth unimportant run on Puccinelli's double and a single by Blades.

This George Kelly person has been a great help to the Cubs since they called him in to sub for the injured Charley Grimm, and he has been especially troublesome against the Cardinals.

When George was with the Reds he couldn't get the ball out of the infield and he was said to be through. So they sent him to Minneapolis.

Kelly Fills the Gap.

Since joining the Cubs, however, he has been clubbing the ball to all fields. Perhaps it is the scent of the greenbacks that has sharpened his eyes and put pep in his muscles. At any rate, the Cubs didn't waste any time getting help when Grimm was hurt and they are cashing in daily on their investment in the aged Kelly.

That's one advantage of the purchasing system over the chain-store or farm system. The Cards don't want to disrupt any of the farm teams, so they'll have to worry along with what they have in Cardinal uniform, until the minor league races are settled.

When the Cubs needed help, they laid the money on the counter and got it.

Redbird Notes.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.

BILL HALLAHAN will face the Cubs in the series final tomorrow and he will be trying to give the Redbirds an even break on the four-game struggle. Jess Petty is likely to work for the Cubs, unless McCarthy pulls another Teachout out of the bag.

Despite threatening skies and a sprinkling rain that started shortly after noon and fell until game time, more than 30,000 persons attended.

George Watkins bruised a heel bone yesterday and after three innings, Blades took his place in right field.

Puccinelli batted for Fisher and hit into a double play in the fourth inning, but he went to left field and in the seventh he hit over the high brick wall in left center for one of the longest homers ever seen at Wrigley Field. Puccinelli was making his first appearance in the field, as previously he had served only as a pinch hitter.

There's no doubt about Puccinelli's ability to hit, but he needs another year or two before he can qualify for a berth in the outfield.

Branch Rickey, who this morning announced that Tony Kaufmann had been recalled from Houston, sat through the game and wished that Kaufmann had been called sooner.

WESTBURY, N. Y., Aug. 30.—With the opening of the series for the international polo cup just a week off, Captain Tommy Hitchcock's American "Varsity" four today gave its worst exhibition of the test matches and met defeat for the first time.

The Reds, with Earle A. S. Hopping doing great work at No. 2, and the British reservist, Humphrey Guinness, a spectacular exhibition at back, won by the decisive margin of 8 to 4.

SMALL CROWD SEES JIMMY MORAN WIN FAIRMOUNT FEATURE

ble for the manner in which the favorite was beaten.

Melvin Knight had much the best horse under him when he went to the post on Germaine Chauvelot in the fourth, but Christie Flanagan won the race. Germaine beat all the others away from the barrier, but Knight took her up with a strong pull at the half-mile ground, enabling three other horses to catch and overtake the mare.

Then, with the race lost, Knight let Germaine go, and she proved herself much superior by running around the field and all but overtaking Christie Flanagan. Sambo G was third.

It was one of the wierdest exhibitions of riding that has been witnessed at Fairmount in a long time. Christie Flanagan evidently didn't win because of his burning speed, for his time was only 1:13 2-5, which was two-fifths of a second slower than that of The Moon in the second race, and The Moon doesn't class with Germaine Chauvelot.

Margaret Parker Wins.

Margaret Parker, which is entered in the second race tomorrow, was under heavy wraps in winning the opening event. Louie Morris rated Joe Engel close to Margaret as they went down the back stretch, and he tried vainly to send Joe to the front as they went around the turn, but the filly always had speed in reserve.

Malolo, running in the colors of A. J. Pershall and making his first start since last spring, engaged in a thrilling duel with The Moon in the second race. It was the ability of The Moon to break quickly from the barier that enabled the Black colt to win by a length and a half. The Moon appeared fit and fast, ready to repeat in the first race tomorrow when he meets cheaper company.

Regular Feller Is Right.

Regular Feller, which is owned by the St. Louis banker, F. O. Watts, proved himself a real guy when he stepped out to take the third race, a dash for 2 year olds. Knight had him off in full stride and at the half mile ground he had established a winning lead.

Jockey C. Edwards rode his second winner when he hustled Gaineswood into the lead at the start of the sixth race and kept him there in spite of the mad rush of Sweep Net, hard urged by Joe Cavens.

Edith Grey ran in third position for more than three-quarters but weakened as Ed Reese came with a rush to take third money. The winner paid $8.02 for $2.

Bellarion, a red-hot bronco from the Dillon & Ferris Stable, displayed astonishing speed to set the early pace in the seventh race.

It was a long race, however, and Southland Belle, running in second place, seemed to be in the strategic position. Meyers made his drive at the far turn, but, as he did so, Horvath also brought Mysterious up on the outside and as they turned into the stretch, the three were running together, noses apart. Horvath sent Mysterious over to the rail, cutting off the other two, but both continued to fight gamely Bellarion, with the greater staying qualities, outlasted Southland Belle for the place money.

Sterling Silver, a big horse that takes a seven-league stride, overtook Thistle Jean and Foxy Seth in a spectacular finish to win the closing race of the day.

LOS ANGELES POLICE TEAM WINS SOBEL TROPHY AT CAMP PERRY

By the Associated Press.

CAMP PERRY, O., Aug. 30.—The Los Angeles five-man police team today won the right to compete in the international police team match against a team of the Canadian Royal Mounted Police, by winning the Sobel trophy pistol team match for United States peace officers, at the national pistol and rifle matches here. The international shoot will occur next Thursday.

The Los Angeles team scored 197 points out of a possible 250 in winning the Sobel trophy. Second place went to Detroit policemen, who scored 192. New York City officers were third with 185; Portland, Ore., fourth, with 184, and Hartford, Conn., fifth, with 174. Sixteen teams competed.

The match was fired from two stages, with five single shots at field targets 20 to 50 yards distant and at various angles, and five shots at a running human figure target at a distance of 50 yards. Portland won the match last year.

The police match with Thompson sub-machine guns was fired late today but results will not be announced until tomorrow.

The national individual junior rifle championship was won today by Lawrence A. Wilkens, 18, Norwood, O., who scored 380 out of a possible 400. Milton Miller, 17, of Columbus, O., won second with 375 and James White, 16, Altoona, Pa., third with 364. Fifty-eight juniors from 12 to 18 years old fired. Ten shots each from prone, sitting, kneeling and standing positions.

By Herman Wecke.

Lu Blue, who already had hit two doubles against right-handed pitchers from the right side of the plate, turned around to the left side with Chad Kimsey resting on second base in the thirteenth inning of yesterday's game with the Tigers. The result was a line double to right field, which scored Kimsey and gave the Browns a 6 to 5 victory over the Detroit Tigers. It was the fourth victory in the series for the Browns and enabled the men of Killefer to increase their hold on sixth place inasmuch as the White Sox lost to Cleveland.

It was a great victory for the Browns. Going into the ninth two runs behind, the Browns rallied to send the contest into extra rounds, and after that it was the sensational pitching of Kimsey, who allowed only three hits in his six innings, coupled with some brilliant fielding, which enabled the team to make off with the decision.

Hoyt Routed in Seventh.

The winning run came against a young right-hander named Sullivan, who replaced the faltering Waite Hoyt in the eighth inning. Kimsey started it with a single to left, and advanced to second, when Stone fumbled. Then followed Blue's smash to right for a double and the long-drawn-out battle was over.

Roland Stiles started pitching for the Browns and he did fairly well, but for some reason or other could not confine the Detroit hits to one-baggers. This finally proved his undoing and he was benched in favor of a pinch-hitter. In his seven innings he was found for seven blows.

For the fourth day in succession, the Browns outhit the supposedly hard-hitting Tigers, getting 15 swats in the 13 rounds, whereas the Detroit totals stopped at 11.

Tigers Score First.

Detroit was first to score, putting over a run in the second, when Stone tripled and Easterling singled. In the third, Funk walked, and Gehringer hit a home run into the right field pavilion. Another was added in the fifth on Hayworth's double, a sacrifice and Gehringer's infield hit.

Although they made at least one hit in each of the first four rounds, the Browns failed to break through until the fifth, when Blue made his first of three doubles and scored on Goslin's two-bagger.

That ended the scoring until the eighth when McManus greeted Kimsey with a smash into the left field sunseats.

The Browns went to work in the eighth. Metzler singled and so did Goslin, sending Metzler to third. The outfielder scored on Kress' drive to Funk. Ferrell singled, sending Goslin to third and Hoyt to the showers, Sullivan coming in to take up the burden. Melillo's long fly to Easterling sent Goslin across.

Browns Tie Score in Ninth.

Then came the ninth. Kimsey started it by beating out a slow roller to third. Blue hitting right handed, caught one on the handle of his bat and a pop fly, which landed just inside the right field foul line was good for two bases, Kimsey pulling up at third. Metzler's fly to Easterling scored Kimsey and sent Blue to third. Goslin then drove across the tying run with a long foul to Easterling, who made a wonderful throw to the plate, which just did miss retiring Blue.

Followed a fine pitching duel between Kimsey and Sullivan, which ended when Blue banged out his third double—this time batting left-handed.

Brownie Notes.

Walter Stewart, the ace of the Browns' hill staff, who has won 16 games and lost but 10 this season, to be some 200 percentage points ahead of his team, will open the series against the Indians this afternoon. Four games will be played with Cleveland, the double-header on Labor day starting at 1:30 o'clock.

Though it was Saturday and the Browns had won three straight games, the fans refused to budge and not more than 1200 were out for the final with the Tigers.

"Rip" Collins still has a perfect fielding record. Collins was charged with an error in the seventh inning of Friday's game but after explanations from the various athletes, it was taken from his record. As a result his fielding figure for the last three campaigns is 1000.

Bill Killefer said there was a possibility that Shortstop Levy, Second Baseman Storti and First Baseman Burns of the Wichita Falls club, might be brought up for trials before the end of the present campaign. It seems that the Spudders' are not doing so well in the Texas league and the Browns officials are anxious to see just what three new comers can accomplish in the big tent.

Wonders will never cease. Bucky Harris failed to change his lineup for the first time in the series.

Lu Blue pulled one in the first. He batted right-handed against a right-hand pitcher. He did no better than he has been doing from the left side of the plate. He struck out.

There may be a better second baseman than this Gehringer, but it would be hard to find him. He made a back-hand stop of Blue's smash near second in the third that was as pretty a bit of fielding as has been seen here in many a day.

When the frost is on the pumpkin and the bloom is on the rye,
And the crocodile is crooning to the mike;
It's time for good Missourians to sing that lullaby

Good Indian.

Wilson Charles, an Oneida Indian, won the National decathlon. It was a well deserved victory and all we can say is we are glad an American won it.

It was one of the most notable achievements since Chief Gall took Custer and Sitting Bull took the credit.

Gall did the fighting and the "Bull" made the medicine. It was bad medicine all right but the credit belongs to the guy who administered it.

By and large, probably the world's champion four-flusher was none other than old S. Bull himself in person.

LOTT AND DOEG KEEP NATIONAL DOUBLES TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 30.—George Lott and Johnny Doeg, national double tennis champions, and one other pair of title defenders, J. D. E. and Arnold Jones of Providence, the father and son champions, survived the week of tournament play that ended here today at Longwood. Both of the 1929 winners went down to defeat in the other competitions, the mixed and veterans' doubles.

Lott and Doeg held over for another year by defeating the holders of the British title, Johnny Van Ryn of East Orange, N. J., and Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., 8—6, 6—3, 4—6, 13—15, 6—4, in one of the most exciting matches played here in many years.

The Jones' won their fifth father and son championship in eight years by overwhelming Donald M. and Malcolm T. Hill, Boston, 6—2, 6—1.

Edith Cross, San Francisco, and Allison became the national mixed doubles champions by defeating Marjorie Morrill, Dedham, and Frank Shields, New York, 6—4, 6—4, in the title round. The Eastern girl's service was broken in both sets and these fractures gave the match to the Sears-Davis Cups combination. The vanquished pair eliminated the defending champions, Betty Nuthall of England, and Lott in one of yesterday's semi-finals.

Dr. William Rosenbaum and Fred C. Baggs of New York were stripped of their national veterans' titles by S. J. Adams and H. H. Bassford, New York, 6—2, 6—1.

NUTHALL AND MARLOWE TEAM BEATS PALFREY SISTERS FOR THE TITLE

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 30.—Betty Nuthall of England and Helen Marlowe, Los Angeles, defeated Sarah and Mianne Palfrey, 6—4, 6—3, in the final match of the women's invitation doubles play that was conducted in conjunction with the national tournament.

Hamilton Keeps Sunday Schools Championship

The Sunday School baseball championship remains in possession of the Hamilton Avenue Christian Church, as it defeated Bethel Mission, 6 to 1, yesterday in Forest Park, in the final game.

Harrison, Hamilton's pitching ace was in rare form yesterday, for he held the slugging Bethel nine to eight hits and struck out seven, and walked one. Baldwin, the losing hurler, only allowed 11 hits, but errors by Lottman and Falk at critical times, enabled Hamilton to score its first three runs.

The champions will travel to Memphis, Tenn., next Saturday to play Temple Baptist, in the first of a two-game, home-and-home series.

PIRATES DEFEAT REDS TWICE, 5-0 AND 3-2

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 30.—Charley Wood, rookie hurler, and Larry French turned in two excellent southpaw pitching performances today to give Pittsburg a double victory over Cincinnati, 5 to 0 and 3 to 2. Wood was particularly effective in the opener, giving six hits and fanning five. French curbed a potential Red rally in the ninth by fanning Pinch Hitter Dressen. Kolp worked on the hill for the Reds in the opener and Benton in the night cap.

MRS. TYSON WINS WESTERN GOLF CROWN FROM MISS PAGE 5 UP

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 30.—Mrs. G. W. Tyson of Kansas City, queen of the nation's golfers in 1927, regained the women's Western golf championship today by defeating Miss Dorothy Page of Madison, Wis., 5 and 4, in the final match of the twenty-eighth annual tournament at the Hillcrest Country Club.

Mrs. Tyson, who won the National Women's title as Miriam Burns Horn three years ago, and has been virtually retired from competition since, shot sub-par golf on the afternoon round to subdue the Wisconsin woman who yesterday eliminated Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, defending champion.

Mrs. Tyson, then Miriam Burns, won the women's Western first in 1923.

Miss Page had been favored to win today not only because tournament followers considered her game the stronger, but because they believed the sturdy Wisconsin girl was better physically equipped for the gruelling 36-hole match over the rough Hillcrest course.

These predictions seemed realized when Miss Page led 3 up at the end of nine holes, but on the second nine Mrs. Tyson's game improved, Miss Page lost her putting touch, which brought her an eagle and three birdies in the first nine, and only by sinking a 20-foot putt on the eighteenth was the Wisconsin girl able to square the match at lunch time. Mrs. Tyson had drawn even at the sixteenth and gone ahead on the seventeenth.

After four halved holes on the first nine of the afternoon round, Mrs. Tyson swept to a two-hole lead and although Miss Page cut it to one hole by a brilliant birdie two on the twenty-fourth that was virtually her last offensive thrust. From then on she tried doggedly, but unsuccessfully, to overtake the former national champion, who seemed to tire less than her opponent—thus confounding all the critics. Miss Page had difficulty with her putts after lunch and also caught the rough many times from the tee, something she has done rarely in the tournament.

After a 43, one over women's par, on the out nine of the morning round, Mrs. Tyson came in with a 37 for an 80, two under women's perfect figures, for the morning's work. On the first nine of the afternoon struggle she had a 39, three under par, and was one under par for the five holes she needed on the last nine of a scheduled 36-hole match.

Only once during the tournament was Mrs. Tyson forced to the eighteenth hole to win and that was by the youthful Florence Beebe, Chicago, whom she defeated 1-up after being dormie four at the end of the fourteenth.

The champion eliminated Miss Edith Gegg, Cleveland, 7 and 6; Miss Helen Lawson, coast star from Los Angeles, 5 and 4; Miss Beebe; Mrs. Gregg Lifur, Los Angeles, runnerup to Mrs. Hill last year, 3 and 2, and then conquered the golfer who upset the champion.

Mrs. Tyson's long game was as good as Miss Page's in the final match, another puzzle to the experts; and her approaching and putting were much better than her opponent's after the first nine. Her pitch and run shots to the green went true to the pin.

GOLF

by W. J. McGoogan

Benny Goodwin and Charley Collins, youthful Algonquin stars are to play Harold McAninch, Crystal Lake amateur and Jack Burns, Creve Coeur professional in an 18-hole match at Crystal Lake Country Club tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Ray Gates, policeman, has found that walking a beat is a help to his golf game. Gates, one of the best drivers in the District, belongs to the Forest Park and shoots the difficult 18-hole Municipal course consistently in the 70s.

Ray Gates.

Mrs. Wallace Will Be Missed.

Women's teams representing the various clubs in the district will resume their schedule Monday, Sept. 8 at North Hills. The St. Louis Country Club team is far ahead of the play for the season but will be without its star, Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr., for the rest of the season.

Another Inter-City Match Oct. 4-5.

Art Sweet, Chicago, who is handling the details of the Chicago-St. Louis match there Oct. 4-5 has written a letter to Elliott Whitbread suggesting that the St. Louis team be made up of either 12 or 16 men. Sweet says that the Chicago course on which the match will be played has not been chosen but adds rather ominously "you'll get licked, no matter where we play."

Perhaps so, but the St. Louis team this year should be one of the strongest that ever played in such a match.

Four September Tourneys.

Three tournaments, in addition to the St. Louis Open, under the auspices of the St. Louis District Golf Association are scheduled for September.

The senior tournament, for which men 55 years of age and older are eligible is to be held Friday Sept. 12 at Westwood.

The first annual father-and-son tournament is scheduled for September 26.

The regular monthly handicap event is scheduled for Sept. 25 at Midland Valley and Normandie.

Albert R. Gates, business administrator of the Professional Golfers' Association, in a letter to Sid Le Gear, chairman of the St. Louis Open Tournament committee, states that he is sure that all of the leading professionals of the country will appear here Sept. 19-21 for the $10,000 Open event.

Gates has been working among the professionals and promises to have all of them here on time.

GROVE SCORES 22ND VICTORY; ATHLETICS BEAT RED SOX, 11-0

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Lefty Grove won his twenty-second victory of the season as the world's champion Athletics swamped the lowly Red Sox 11 to 0, here today. Grove held the Red Sox to six hits, no two of which were made in the same inning, and he struck out eight batters.

The Athletics found the Boston brand of pitching served up by, Gaston, Russell and Bushey to their liking. All except Grove hit safely at least once and Bishop and Boley each got three.

PHIL COLLINS WHOLE SHOW AS PHILLIES BEAT BRAVES, 5-4

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30.—Slugging Phil Collins was the whole show in the 5-to-4 triumph hung up today by the Phillies in the last appearance of the Boston Braves in this city.

The fidgety flinger, in addition to holding the Braves in the palm of his hand and hanging up his fourteenth victory of the season, hit a home run with Thevenow on base in the fourth inning.

This homer was the winning margin, for the Braves put on a three-run rally in the ninth, which threatened to upset Collins' well-earned victory.

200 BUSINESS MEN TAKING DAILY SUN BATHS ON ROOF

Seeking health and that youthful feeling from the sun's rays, more than 200 business men have taken to sunning themselves each day on the roof of the Missouri Athletic Association. From 11:30 a. m. to 2:30 p. m. daily, about 50 men are stretched out on their backs or stomachs absorbing sun rays under the supervision of Carl Baur, the club's athletic director.

Baur, a stanch advocate of sunbathing as a tonic, started a class early in the summer. Now he has sun bathers on his hands from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., with the largest attendance during the luncheon hours. His patients range in age from 35 to 55 years.

"I start them off with 12-minute periods, six minutes on the back and six minutes on the stomach," Baur explained. "Then the periods are increased a minute a day until they are taking 30 minutes on each side. The treatment peps up the whole system."

Skin Beauty Depends On Mercolized Wax

Any complexion can be made—and kept—young and beautiful by caring for it with pure Mercolized Wax. When used as directed, Mercolized Wax renews the complexion by freeing it of the film skin, once this surface cuticle begins to appear aged or blemished. The under skin then revealed is velvety-smooth, soft and youthfully beautiful. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty. Keep your hair beautifully wavy and curly by setting it with Liquid Silmerine. It forms soft, natural waves that last. Removes dandruff and oiliness. Gives hair a neat, well groomed effect. At all drug and dept. stores.

So far France seems to have escaped serious damage. The explanation is to be found in the special circumstances of that highly favored nation. Whilst that country is about the richest in the world and its resources are highly developed, at the same time the population falls so far short of the labor needs of such development that it has annually to invite workers from lands beyond its frontiers. But the deluge has reached even the prosperous land of France. This year there is a serious fall in its external trade. So far there is comparatively little unemployment. Bad trade in France will take time to affect the native worker. The first brunt will fall on immigrants, and they will return to their own countries when there is no further need for their labor. The result is that the workless in France number their thousands, whilst in Britain, Germany and the United States they run into millions.

Statistics of unemployment are ascertainable with accuracy in almost every country except the United States and perhaps also Russia. Students of this tidal wave which has submerged every land and which is now creeping up even the steep slopes of the French Ararat experience greater difficulty in eliciting and determining the true facts in the United States than anywhere else.

It is not easy to explain why that should be so, for America is the parent of statistical information upon industrial and commercial conditions. The United States was first in the field with the complete and detailed census of production. But when you come to trade depression it is almost impossible to arrive at the true estimate of the American position. In Britain the figures are published every week, and they are computed by methods which are unchallengeable as to precision. The published weekly reports represent the aggregate of men and women who have applied for work at Labor Exchanges throughout the country during the preceding week, and as their allowance under the Unemployment Insurance Acts depends upon their demonstrating each week that they have not yet had a job, they never fail to put in an appearance.

If statistics err at all, it is on the side of exaggeration. Men and women who are not altogether workless but who are employed part of the time are included in the list. Hoover's Greatest Opportunity Is to Find Work for America's Unemployed, Lloyd George Says

Even Return of Prosperity Would Not Absorb Labor Surplus, He Asserts, Citing British "Folly," Italian Wisdom.

LONDON, Aug. 30.

THE world, from the Antipodes to the North Cape, is suffering from a trade depression quite unparalleled in its magnitude. British unemployment is now over 2,000,000, and the figure is swelling week by week. Germany has well over 3,000,000 workers out of jobs and the figures there are ascending rapidly. All reports from the United States indicate a slump the depth of which has not been reached within living memory. Italy is also amongst the sufferers.

So far France seems to have escaped serious damage. The explanation is to be found in the special circumstances of that highly favored nation. Whilst that country is about the richest in the world and its resources are highly developed, at the same time the population falls so far short of the labor needs of such development that it has annually to invite workers from lands beyond its frontiers. But the deluge has reached even the prosperous land of France. This year there is a serious fall in its external trade. So far there is comparatively little unemployment. Bad trade in France will take time to affect the native worker. The first brunt will fall on immigrants, and they will return to their own countries when there is no further need for their labor. The result is that the workless in France number their thousands, whilst in Britain, Germany and the United States they run into millions.

U. S. Facts Hard to Get.

Statistics of unemployment are ascertainable with accuracy in almost every country except the United States and perhaps also Russia. Students of this tidal wave which has submerged every land and which is now creeping up even the steep slopes of the French Ararat experience greater difficulty in eliciting and determining the true facts in the United States than anywhere else.

It is not easy to explain why that should be so, for America is the parent of statistical information upon industrial and commercial conditions. The United States was first in the field with the complete and detailed census of production. But when you come to trade depression it is almost impossible to arrive at the true estimate of the American position. In Britain the figures are published every week, and they are computed by methods which are unchallengeable as to precision. The published weekly reports represent the aggregate of men and women who have applied for work at Labor Exchanges throughout the country during the preceding week, and as their allowance under the Unemployment Insurance Acts depends upon their demonstrating each week that they have not yet had a job, they never fail to put in an appearance.

If statistics err at all, it is on the side of exaggeration. Men and women who are not altogether workless but who are employed part of the time are included in the list. Those who are entirely out of a job number 1,218,228. The German State also makes some provision for the maintenance of those who are out of work. The German register of unemployment has therefore a solid basis of computation. Inasmuch as in Germany, unemployed pay is not accorded to those who are not completely out of work, the number of unemployed there, if calculated upon the British basis, would be nearer four millions than three.

In the United States provision for the workless is left almost entirely either to the reserves of the workers themselves created during periods of prosperity, or to the agency of voluntary associations and to the general good will of the community. There may be a few firms with organized schemes of unemployed insurance. In the absence, therefore, of official records, statistics must necessarily be conjectural. That is undoubtedly the reason why it is almost impossible to find out within a million or two how many men have been thrown out of work in America owing to the industrial depression. I have had figures supplied to me all on "highest authority" which vary from 3,000,000 to 6,600,000. These again only represent the number of workers who are completely out of a job. No doubt political bias has a good deal to do with these fluctuations in estimates.

A World Problem.

In every country it is supposed to be the political interest of the Government in power to minimize the extent of any industrial calamity which has befallen the nation during its period of office. On the other hand, the opposition parties conceive it to be in their political interest to emphasize and accentuate the greatness of the catastrophe. However, it will be admitted that no amount of manipulation can conceal the gravity of the crisis through which the States are passing, and the multitude of those who walk the streets of American cities in search of a job is now so vast that every effort to hide the dimensions of the emergency must be futile. In fact, unemployment is a world condition, and the method of dealing with it is a universal problem.

Will it last long? There is the usual turning on of the band to jazz optimistic tunes in order to keep up the spirits of the people. and to make them feel that all will soon be right. The clangor of hopeful paragraphs is designed to encourage the belief that the worst is over, and that the clouds will soon clear. I have noticed a distinct reluctance on the part of business men from the United States to admit that anything serious has happened. Some of them go so far as to say that the crash will have beneficial results and that henceforth trading will be placed on a sound basis. Mr. Ford seems to be taking this line, and he is no mean judge. I hesitate to controvert so high an authority, especially on a subject where he is necessarily much better informed than I am.

But I cannot help remembering how British business men also passed through this phase. For a long time they were extremely reluctant to own up to the depression. They resented any and every reference to it. They insisted upon treating it as a temporary symptom—a mere reaction from the war and postwar boom. It would soon pass away, and business would be stronger than ever. Industrialists of America and Germany are adopting the same attitude towards their trouble today. They seem to think it will be short and sharp. Perhaps they are right. Let us hope for the best.

A Statesmanlike Policy.

All the same, I think national statesmanship would be wise to assume in its plans that the crisis will not pass away for some time yet, and that it ought to make provision for the needs of unemployment on an estimate of its continuance on a large scale for some months at least. It must be borne in mind that the return of prosperity does not necessarily mean the immediate absorption of the unemployed in industry. The process of what is known as ra-

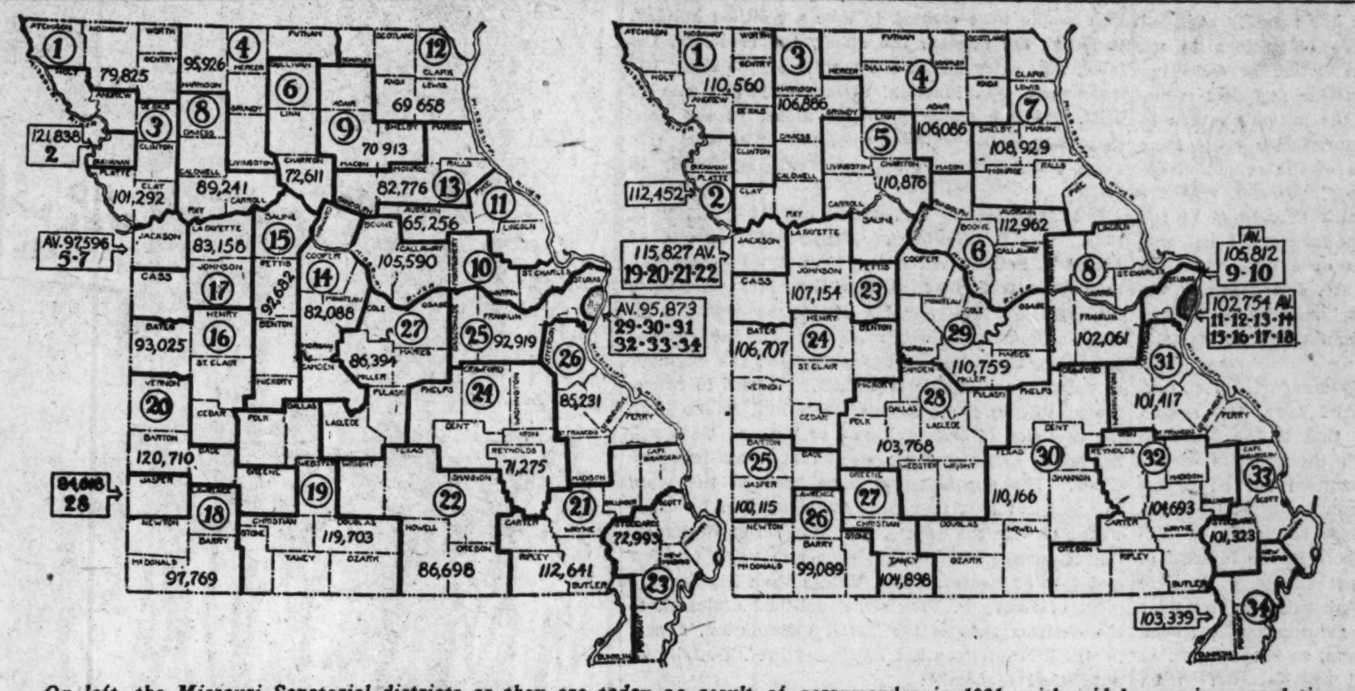
Missouri's Chance to Right a Wrong Imposed by Politicians 30 Years Ago

Unfair Boundaries of State Senatorial Districts Can Now Be Revised.



On left, the Missouri Senatorial districts as they are today as result of gerrymander in 1901, with widely varying populations; on right, a proposed allocation of boundaries to put city and rural sections on almost uniform equality of representation.

When Legislature Meets, Redistricting of State Will Be In Order, and Gerrymander of 1901 Should Be Corrected to Give Cities and Rural Areas Equal Representation—Nothing Can Be Done as to Apportionment in House, Due to State Constitutional Requirements.

By Curtis A. Betts,

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 30.

METROPOLITAN areas of Missouri, which almost since the formation of the State have been denied the proportionate representation in the State Senate to which their populations entitled them, will get that fair representation if the next Legislature subordinates political expediency to equity and redistricts the State according to the plain intent of the Constitution.

The present arrangement of the districts was worked out by a Democratic Legislature in 1901, just as Republican gerrymanders frequently have been made effective in states in which Republican Legislatures have been in power. It has continued for 30 years in spite of a specific Constitutional direction that the state shall be redistricted each 10 years, and under it rural communities have far greater representation than their populations justify. These districts will remain as they are unless the Legislature and the Governor can come to an agreement on new boundaries.

Though there can be a redistricting which will be fair to the cities and fair as between counties, which is far from an assurance there will be, there cannot be an equitable reapportionment of the membership of the House of Representatives of the State Legislature. The Constitution provides that each county, no matter how small, is entitled to one member of the House, and a limitation is placed on the number of members from large counties. The effect of this is to reduce proportional representation the larger the population of a county becomes.

Establishing a Ratio.

The system provided for determining the number of House members is to divide the total population of the State by 200 to establish a ratio. Each county having this ratio or less is entitled to one member. Each county having two and one-half times the ratio is entitled to two, each having four times the ratio, three, each having six times the ratio, four, and for each additional two and one-half ratios a county is entitled to one additional member.

Carter County, with a population of only 5495, less than one-third the ratio, has one representative, while St. Louis with a population of 822,032, or 45 times the ratio and 149 times the population of Carter County, has only 19 representatives.

A reapportionment of House members which probably will be made in accordance with the Constitution, will increase the membership from 150 to 154, but St. Louis will not get an additional member. St. Louis county will get six, an increase of three, and Jackson County will get 11, an increase of one. The representation of other counties will remain unchanged.

No equitable representation for the cities and larger counties in the House being possible under the Constitution, interest at the next Legislature will lie in the Senatorial districting.

The facts of the inequities of the present gerrymander will be gained from these figures:

The metropolitan areas (St. Louis, St. Louis County, Jackson County, including Kansas City, and Buchanan County, including St. Joseph), have 44 per cent of the population of Missouri, and pay 70 per cent of the taxes collected for the general operation of the State Government; yet they have only 29 per cent of the membership of the State Senate, and only 23 per cent of the membership of the House of Representatives.

Unchanged by Republicans.

Such a fair redistricting as that shown on the accompanying map would give them 44 per cent of the membership of the Senate, and would give to separate rural counties their just representation in comparison with the cities and with other counties.

The Constitution provides that at the first legislative session after the United States census the State shall be divided into convenient compact districts. of as nearly equal population as is possible. This means that the total population of the State shall be divided by 34, the number of Senatorial districts, and that the counties shall be so grouped as to form districts with populations as nearly as possible equal to the quotient obtained by this division. It does not mean that merely because a political party is in power it can use that power to create shoestring districts of uneven population for the purpose of creating more Democratic than Republican districts, or more Republican than Democratic.

When the present districts were created back in 1901, the Democrats controlled all the State machinery. Politics was played ruthlessly by those old fellows, who, having the power, used it, and used it so effectively politically that in 30 years the Democrats have had a majority in the Senate in every session of the Legislature except one, that of 1921 following the Harding landslide of 1920. This, notwithstanding that the Republicans have carried Missouri in five of the seven presidential elections held since that time. Two years ago Hoover carried Missouri by 171,000, but, due to the gerrymander, the Senate remained Democratic.

Working Out a Gerrymander.

A political party desiring to make certain its supremacy in the Senate will group the counties in such a way as to make more districts which will send Senators of that party than districts which will send Senators of the opposing party. In the main this was accomplished by the old time Democrats grouping as many Republican counties into as few districts with large populations as possible, and as few Democratic counties into as many Democratic districts with small populations as possible. When it became necessary through location of the counties to put Republican counties in with Democratic in a district, care was taken whenever possible to so group the counties that Democratic votes predominated.

The Republicans have not stood uncomplaining under this gerrymander. They have howled frequently and long, and have tried ineffectually to change it.

Supreme Court Takes a Hand.

There is a provision in the Missouri Constitution authorizing three State officers, the Governor, Attorney-General and Secretary of State, to redistrict the State in case the Legislature fails to do so. The 1911 Legislature, which was Democratic in both branches, failed to pass a bill, and the then Secretary of State, Cornelius Roach, and the Attorney-General, Elliott W. Major, Democrats, prepared new districts. Herbert S. Hadley, Republican, Governor, refused to issue a proclamation legalizing them.

The Republicans charged that the proposed districting was a more unfair gerrymander than the old. The Supreme Court, which temporarily was Republican, upheld the Governor.

The next chance for redistricting was in 1921 when the Republicans controlled both branches of the Legislature and all State offices. They were unable, however, to pass a redistricting bill in the Legislature, a situation due to the refusal of Senators who would be shifted to new districts, to agree upon any plan.

After the adjournment Gov. Hyde, Attorney-General Barrett and Secretary of State Becker outlined new districts. The proposed changes speedily got into the Supreme Court, which was Democratic. The Court held that by the adoption of the initiative and referendum amendment to the Constitution the people of the State had reserved to themselves all legislative powers not expressly given to the Legislature, that the redistricting of the State was a legislative act, and that the amendment to the Constitution had had the effect of repealing the section authorizing the State officials to do the redistricting job. So the old districts remained another 10 years.

Another Clever Bit of Tactics.

This attempted Republican redistricting was neater than the one of the Democrats in 1901. Times had changed and the Republicans were not as ruthless. They prepared districts which varied less widely in population than those formed by the Democrats, but there was a trick in the game which they could use, that was in the system in numbering the districts.

Under the law Senators are elected in odd numbered districts in the years of presidential elections, and in even numbered districts in by-election years. In presidential years Missouri almost invariably goes Republican. In by-election years it almost invariably goes Democratic, so a little manipulation of the numbers of the districts can mean a lot in results. A close district which would go Democratic in by-election years would go Republican in presidential years, so it could be made a Republican district by giving it an odd number.

This system was not a discovery for the Republicans. The Democrats, too, had used it back in 1901 along with the creation of the districts on political rather than population lines.

In the 1901 districting, the populations of

Nation Faces a Billion-Dollar Pension Bill, Annually, if New Law Continues for 40 Years

How Political Necessity Forced Congress to Pass Legislation to Aid World War Veterans Just Beginning to Show Disabilities.

By Raymond P. Brandt,

Of the Washington Staff of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.

WHILE the House was marking time last January, Representative William F. Kopp of Iowa, a member of the House Pensions Committee, in a set speech told his colleagues that the time had come for the United States to start a comprehensive pension program for World War veterans. No one took the speech seriously except a few obscure members who wanted the Congressional Record to show that they had a few thoughts about pensions. The speech was generally accepted as one of those oratorical effusions which Congressmen frank to their constituents to show that they are on the alert for the constituents' interests.

Yet less than six months elapsed before Congress and the President, after a series of hysterical political maneuvers, approved a general disability pension bill, the forerunner of more generous and comprehensive laws which after a lapse of 30 to 40 years will cost the Government more than a billion dollars annually and in the aggregate about as much as the total national debt at its peak—namely, 25 billion dollars. Representative Kopp can point with pride to the fact that he saw the inevitable approaching.

Enactment of the pension legislation in the last session of Congress dispelled the roseate War Risk Insurance dream of many war-time Government officials who foresaw what a tremendous burden the historical pension system would put on the Government if a large portion of the 4,000,000 men in uniform became Government pensioners. But as a substitute for pensions the War Risk Insurance plan has flopped. Less than 650,000 former service men have carried on with their government insurance.

Could Not Sell Idea.

The wartime advocates of the Soldier and Sailor Insurance system hoped that their plan, approved as it was by President Wilson and Secetary of the Treasury McAdoo, would eliminate the need for pensions. Every soldier was to be persuaded to carry as much insurance as he could afford up to $10,000, and the Government was to bear the expenses of administration. This insurance would take care of the soldier's dependents in case of death of complete disability. In addition, there was to be complete hospitalization for all service-incurred disabilities.

There were several reasons for the failure of the insurance plan, but the principal fault was the inability of the Government, both under Democratic and Republican administrations, to "sell" the idea to the service man. Justice Brandeis in his earlier writings has declared that insurance offered wonderful possibilities for government management, perhaps the best of any business. In war risk insurance this country had an opportunity to save enormous amounts of the tax-payers' money by persuading the service man to carry on with the Government's cheap premiums. That opportunity has been lost, although the Veterans' Bureau still makes feeble attempts to interest veterans by pointing out that Government insurance is still available to them.

Few veterans, however, seem to be interested, despite the fact that Government insurance is cheap and the medical inspection liberal. During the war, insurance was virtually compulsory, generally to the maximum $10,000. After the war, the bulk of the former service men, some without jobs and many without much ready cash, let their premiums lapse. Only one out of six have continued the payments.

Failure of the insurance plan made the eventual return of the pension system inevitable. But the United States has World War pensions today, and not five or 10 years hence, because a fiery Southern Democrat, Representative John E. Rankin of Mississippi, caught the Republican leaders in a jam, and forced them to propose a pension plan in order to deprive him of the credit for enactment of a law acceptable to Congress but unacceptable to President Hoover.

The Soldier Vote.

At the beginning of the session of Congress just ended, the Republican leaders gave little serious thought to the possibility of a general World War pension bill. The American Legion prepared a bill for Chairman Royal Johnson of the House Veterans Committee, proposing an appropriation of $30,000,000 for routine changes in World War Veterans' Act of 1924. The Legion sponsored amendments calling for "presumption of service" for constitutional and chronic diseases; for prohibiting the Comptroller-General to pass on compensation awards of the Veterans' Bureau Director, and for repealing the restrictions regarding the filing of claims. Chairman Johnston introduced this bill with one of his own calling for an additional ap-

GAVE each service man and woman $60 at the time of honorable discharge.

Granted adjusted compensation certificates (bonus) with a potential value of $3,000,000,000 to 3,500,000 veterans.

Made 2,225,259 loans, amounting to $202,650,601, to veterans on their compensation certificates.

Erected 47 hospitals and established 54 regional offices of the Veterans' Bureau to care for veteran hospitalization. Five new hospitals and major additions to six others, providing 3,247 additional beds, are under construction and will be finished early next year. Nine new additional hospitals and additions, providing 2000 beds, have been authorized. By pooling the resources of other veteran relief, including 11 national homes for volunteer soldiers, 6699 hospital beds and domiciliary facilities for 12,842 veterans have been made available. Present hospital facilities have 30,000 patients at all time and receive and discharge between 8000 and 9000 veterans monthly. Other medical treatment is given to 70,000 veterans monthly.

Rehabilitated and restored to useful participation in commercial and social activities 128,283 veterans.

Is paying monthly war disabilities compensation to 279,522 veterans, and death compensation to 91,711 dependents of deceased veterans; 17,110 veterans are drawing insurance for permanent complete disability.

Has agreed to pay a general disability pension to veterans not paying a Federal income tax who have been more than 25 per cent disabled, provided the disability was not caused by willful misconduct.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

For the Cabinet System of Government.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE weakest link in our antiquated system of government is the failure of the Constitution to establish personal responsibility for legislation. No person or group in either house has official respnsibility for congressional action. Fancy the British Parliament, the German Reichstag, the French Chamber attempting to carry on the government without a cabinet. They would exclaim, "Impossible!" Yet that headless method is what we are messing along with here. The President is responsible only so far as the power of an arbitrary veto makes him. Think of one man having the power to nullify the will of the elected representaitves of the nation. Such power has no place in a democracy; it belongs to a dictatorship.

Who was responsible for the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill? Not Hawley and Smoot. They were merely two out of a majority in the House and Senate. How many of that majority can you name? And that majority knows you cannot name them and that you cannot fix personal responsibility. It is that knowledge of irresponsibility that constitutes a secure paradise for the present grade of politicians we are sending to Washington.

A high order of statesmanship (and God knows we are gasping for it) can be developed only under the cabinet system, which definitely fixes responsibility. Every other great Power has adopted the cabinet as the only practical and efficient system. It was quite open to France, Germany and Japan to model their Governments after ours. It is significant that we have no imitators among the Powers. None of them covets our creaking ox-cart. L. R. JOHNSON.

Legge, Hyde and Six Per Cent.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN common with many other citizens of the republic, I have been watching with much interest "The Strange Case of Dr. Legge and Mr. Hyde." It intrigues my fancy. But what has become of Dr. Legge and his "aid" to the farmer? Can it be the drouth has accomplished what the Doctor set out to do, or has he changed to Mr. Hyde and become normal once more? And, too, let us not forget the beneficence of the Super-Man in Washington and his commission! Out of the conference to aid our sorely-stricken farmers has come the glorious promise of borrowed money at 6 per cent interest, and the opportunity to labor on the highways of our states with advanced Federal road money. Surely, now the farmer will throw his hat high in the air and huzzah till the cows come home for the fodder that should have been theirs! Money at 6 per cent interest and a mortgage on their right eyes!

DON C. GRAFTON.

Joplin, Mo.

Wants a New Kind of Newspaper.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"THE man in the street becomes articulate only on election day," says a recent Post-Dispatch editorial. Here is an opportunity for a philanthropic service in a new way: A discerning millionaire may inscribe his name on the scroll of the immortals by establishing the first "popular views" paper. Its motto should be, "We shall have full-time articulation." The paper should be concerned with the interpretative nature of political economy exclusively; its columns should be open to all. A man may learn from his teacher and his pupils, and this should be a meeting of many minds. The "popular views" paper should have no advertising, no editorial policy, no news, no pictures, no unsigned or nom de plume letters, no suggestions of violence to person or property and nothing to buy or sell. Its circulation should be limited to the United States except on request, and its retail price should be figured on a cost basis.

The Pollyanna newspapers are futile, the serious newspapers are fettered, and the man in the street and at the crossroads is worse than dumb.

J. HALLORAN.

An Appeal for Charity.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THINGS seem to me to have come to a pretty pass or impasse when our big charity organization is so tied up that it can't ask the people of St. Louis for help when hundreds are asking it for help. Why should it tie itself up in any such fashion? There must be a good reason, or what seemed a good reason.

But they have kept their pledge long enough now. There may be other organizations of different kinds in St. Louis of great degrees of merit, but no matter what the merit, no matter how great the service rendered to some or many, nothing should ever come before downright charity. And that is what most people understand the Provident Association to be, plain, simple charity. If a poor family has nothing to eat, if a family has no coal in winter, they go to the Provident Association.

Of course I am not meaning to detract in any way from other organizations that are doing straightforward charity work also. But I suppose the Provident is the big brother and does by far the largest part of charity work done in St. Louis. HUDIBRAS.

WANTED—ANOTHER LIBERAL ADMINISTRATION

For ten years the administration of the Federal Government has been in the hands of reactionary Republicans. Its record of accomplishment is not an impressive one, nor is the condition of the country to its credit. There are things more eloquent than the text book it has just issued taking to itself the flattering unction that except for it things would be even worse. Only a feeble-minded people could believe that. The country has had ten years of government for privilege, and even a blind man can see what it has come to.

The Republican party has to its credit the Washington arms conference, the Kellogg pact and the London naval treaty. It has "settled" the inter-allied debt. It has reduced taxes and retired a portion of the national debt. It has extended "relief" to the farmer through the agricultural credits act of 1923 and the agricultural marketing act of 1929. But in the arms treaties and in the Kellogg pact, in which it has received the full support of the Democrats, it has but timidly approached the open international co-operation envisaged by Woodrow Wilson in the League of Nations.

In the debt "settlements" it has actually canceled substantial portions of Europe's obligations to us, while officially upholding the fiction of collecting "the last red cent." Tax reduction and debt reduction inevitably resulted from the nation's return to a peace time basis. No administration could have avoided it. The chief feature of the reduction enacted under the "Mellon plans," however, was the disproportionate decreases which it granted to the multi-millionaire taxpayer. The farm law which was enacted, following the party's open opposition to Federal subsidies to agriculture, has thrown the Government headlong into a perilous experimentation with agricultural subsidies from which it is itself backing out.

To the discredit of the party stands the fact that it has enacted two high tariff laws, the second even worse than the first; that it has failed to enact legislation to cope with the problem of unemployment; that it has permitted the power resources of Muscle Shoals to run to waste for a decade; that it has failed to take any steps to control the growing power monopoly in the interest of the people; that it has so packed many Federal agencies with reactionary administrators as to render them well nigh ineffectual as guardians of the common welfare. The common man, as a consumer, as a worker, has received scant consideration from Washington during this period.

In clear contrast stand the records of the Roosevelt and Wilson administrations, which fought privilege and plutocratic control. The first two years of the Wilson administration were unique in our national annals for constructive accomplishment. A reduction of customs duties lifted the burden of taxation from the shoulders of the consumer. The creation of the Federal income tax placed the obligation of supporting Government activities upon those who were most able to pay. The creation of the Federal Reserve banking system gave us a currency which is responsive to the demands of the trade, lessened the severity of industrial fluctuations and effectively prevented the recurrence of the financial panics which had cursed the business world.

The Clayton anti-trust act gave teeth to the Sherman law and provided the Government with a means of protecting the consumer against the extortionate practice of monopoly. The creation of the Federal Trade Commission set up an agency which has safeguarded the interests both of consumers and of business men by forbidding unfair trade practices and preventing further monopoly growth in many fields.

In the Federal Tariff Commission there was established a non-partisan organization of scientific experts which rendered valuable technical service until it was unwisely thrown into partisan politics by the Fordney-McCumber act of 1922. And this is but a part of the story.

Following the emotional stress of the war and the sordid corruption of the Harding regime, the American people were content to take a political holiday. Coolidge, the solemn, the silent, the mediocre, the inert, admirably suited the temper of the time. His watchword was inaction. His policy was one of drift. He left public problems alone, in the hope that they would solve themselves. And for five years the American people were willing merely to drift.

But America, at last, shook off its lethargy in 1928. The nomination of Herbert Hoover and of Alfred E. Smith showed clearly that we were ready to go on from inaction to action, from inertia to achievement. The election of Hoover raised high hopes at home and abroad. He was to be the business executive, the scientist, the economist, the engineer in politics, a veritable superman. He was to rescue the presidency from its low estate and return it to the tradition of Roosevelt and of Wilson. This was the hope. Can any one pretend that it has been fulfilled? His appointments have been in the main so political that they have involved him in bitter wrangles with the Senate. Nothing better illustrates the difference between his economic point of view and that of Roosevelt and Wilson than his appointment of Henry P. Fletcher, a political diplomat, to the chairmanship of the Tariff Commission, a post to which Mr. Wilson had appointed Prof. Taussig, an unpolitical economist.

For ten years the Government has been completely under the domination of plutocracy and privilege.

Our people still cry for action. We need tariff reduction. We want to see power monopoly brought under control. We desperately need an attack upon the problem of unemployment. We demand a program of constructive achievement in legislation and administration. We must have progressive leadership to throttle the greedy elements now in control.

KHYBER PASS ITSELF AGAIN.

Khyber Pass, that narrow defile winding between cliffs of shale and limestone 600 to 1000 feet high on the way from Afghanistan to India, is once more blazing in war. Hardly a day passes but further bloodshed is reported from Peshawar. British forces have suffered severe casualties in hand-to-hand fighting with the fierce Pathans, airplanes have bombed the tribesmen in the mountain retreats. So far the savage looters have been beaten off in their attacks on Peshawar at the opening of the pass, but Kipling's "Kim" country has been in the thick of the fighting. Forts in the mountain opening are heavily armed and gunners command most of its 33 rocky miles.

No other pass in the world has possessed such strategic importance as this gateway to the plains of India. Darius the Great was the first military leader to make it a highway of conquest. From Persia in 516 B. C. he sent one of his captains through to the Indus. Two hundred years later Alexander led his army along the zigzag passage in the course of his subjugation of the world. The Mongol hordes of Genghis Khan, who caused the death of 5,000,000 people, swept through its 40-foot canyons in the thirteenth century. Not long after Timur, pillage-bent, went down from Samarkand. The last great conqueror to use the pass was Babar Baber, who founded the Mongol dynasty which the British found in India. During the Afghan wars Tommy Atkins met the Afridi in numerous battles in the desolate opening. Today rifles are flashing again. Khyber Pass is what it was 25 centuries ago.

TWO PICTURES OF ITALY.

Discussing business conditions from a world viewpoint in the Post-Dispatch recently, Benito Mussolini chose for his thesis the responsibility of government to its people. The duty of safeguarding and providing for the people's welfare is, he contended, one of the first obligations of government in modern political philosophy. He told how his Government had met the problem suddenly thrust upon it by the earthquake in Southern Italy. It was a story of hair-trigger efficiency which, impliedly, could only be instantaneously released and put to work by the governmental organization which he has effected.

But such emergencies, however gratifyingly met, merely exhibit government's capacity. A government proves its capacity by managing its affairs as a prudent business organization does. In its prosperous times it creates special funds on which it can draw in times of need. It continuously provides for lean periods. That Italy is being operated like a competent business enterprise is Mussolini's reiterated claim. At present, for example, the Government is considering the question of next winter's unemployment. The municipal authorities of four large cities have been called into conference to ascertain "what really productive work is available," and the central Government has important projects under advisement. Waiving the details, the point which Mussolini stresses is that Italy is not waiting for a crisis to come, but is preparing in advance for the seasonal slack. The whole article reflects the author's intense personal satisfaction with the dictatorship's superior operating methods.

A far different picture of Italy under its present despotism was recently presented in the New Republic by a former Premier, Francesco Nitti, who believes Fascism is riding fast to a fall. Nitti says the present budget shows a huge deficit; that the Italian pays the highest taxes in the world; that the number of Government employes has been enormously increased, estimating the total at 100,000. He gives figures as to the mounting indebtedness of towns and communes; says military expenditures have been increased 50 per cent; that, in the last seven years, 700 banks have failed; that Italy has more protested and unpaid notes than any other country in the world and the greatest number of commercial failures. In figures, too, he tells of the dwindling remittances from emigrants in foreign countries, the drying up of the tourist source of supply because the objectionable espionage and continuous annoyances have driven visitors away. He says Italians are distrustful of the lira and, in consequence, deposit their surplus capital in foreign banks. With the exception of the electric industries "all branches of economic life are depressed." The prosperity so grandiosely proclaimed is, he insists, a delusion, and he supports his assertions with statistics which, coming from an economist of his standing, may not be dismissed as the arguments of partisan controversy.

The Fascist government, Signor Nitti submits, offers a magnificent field for an "objective and disinterested investigation," because such an investigation would show "whether a reactionary regime produces more useful results than a liberal one, whether a despotism is more efficient than a democracy, and, finally, whether co-ordination enforced from above is better than the free manifestation of individual activity."

There, then, are two pictures of Italy—a splendor of triumph in the rhetoric of the Dictator; a blighted land, materially and spiritually, in the studious analysis of the Italian economist now living in Paris.

CORDELL HULL OF TENNESSEE.

Seldom does the press of the country hail the promotion of a Congressman to a senatorial candidacy with the widespread acclaim that has been accorded to Cordell Hull. The gist of editorial comment in all sections of the country, Republican papers as well as Democratic, is that Tennessee has done belated honor to one of her finest citizens. The reason is not far to seek, as the Post-Dispatch has pointed out before. His long and industrious career in the House has made him one of the most respected members of that body. Only once in 25 years has the Fourth District of his state failed to send him to Congress and that was the occasion of the Harding landslide. Two years later when his constituents returned from normalcy they sent him back.

He was a diligent worker for the epoch-making reform legislation of the first Wilson administration, and himself sponsored the 1913 bill, the introduction of which was followed by the adoption of the income tax amendment to the Constitution. He also sponsored the revised act of 1916 and the inheritance tax law. A volunteer in the Spanish-American War, his World War service was to write bills relating to Liberty Bonds and help draft regulations for operating war tax laws. His well-deserved reputation as a student of economics makes him the logical successor to the late Senator Underwood. He will be a notable addition to the minority, and all the more valuable should it become the majority and take control of the Senate through the fall elections.

WHAT TEN YEARS OF MISRULE HAVE COME TO.

Fletcher and the Tariff Commission

New York financial journal doubts wisdom of appointing a man trained in diplomacy to a job where facts and not finesse are demanded; importance of Fletcher's role, however, has been unduly stressed; obstacles to tariff board efficiency in the past still persist and cannot be leaped by chairman alone.

From the New York Journal of Commerce.

PRESIDENT HOOVER has selected an ex-diplomat and former Ambassador to Italy, Mr. Fletcher, to head the reorganized Tariff Commission. Mr. Fletcher has had a prolonged and fairly conspicuous career in the foreign service, but it is hardly of character to qualify him for the dreary and laborious fact-finding investigations that are the special province of the commission. In announcing the appointment, however, the President is careful to specify that as Under Secretary of State Mr. Fletcher had especial charge of the economic work of the department, while in the course of his diplomatic career he has made a careful analysis of the economic, trade and financial problems of the United States in relation to many parts of the world.

Whether this experience will add to the effectiveness of the new chairman is by no means certain. To most people it seems that diplomatic qualities are worse than wasted in a position where facts and not finesse are demanded. Possibly a chairman with diplomatic address might be better able to propitiate outraged foreigners asked to reveal their cost of production secrets to American investigators for the commission. However, the rebuffs encountered by our special agents leave little hope for progress along this line in the future, whatever means employed.

It is possible that there will be some scope for diplomacy in warding off the attacks of members of Congress and private interests that now show a disposition to bury the Tariff Commission under a load of investigations from which it can hardly expect to emerge with credit.

It may be, too, that diplomatic skill will come handy in enabling the commission to resist the efforts of certain interested groups to utilize it as a tariff-raising agency in the future as in the past. Nevertheless, if the Commission is to remain what the law purports to make it, it needs a body of highly-trained experts to direct and appraise investigations into specific production costs and to undertake various complicated technical inquiries.

Such an environment will be an alien one for an ex-diplomat. However, had President Hoover selected a man eminently qualified by special training to attempt the impossible tasks imposed upon the Tariff Commission, it is highly probable that he would have been severely inhibited by his perception of the hopelessness of effective execution of the duties assigned him.

Some Democratic critics of the President assert that his selection of a man from Pennsylvania to head the Tariff Commission commits that body to a policy of high protectionism which deprives it of all efficacy as an instrument for rate revision downward. Those friendly to the appointee are equally positive that the new chairman will enable the President to carry through his program of converting the commission into an agency for giving real flexibility to the tariff law with a minimum of friction and of congressional interference. Both sides appear to forget that one chairman does not make a whole Tariff Commission. They are equally oblivious of the fact that they are assigning to the chairman powers he was never intended to exercise and does not possess under the law.

One of the obstacles, among others, to tariff board efficiency in the past has been the division of opinion existing within the commission. That has led to internal strife more violent than any of the conflicts that have raged outside over the decisions finally reached. With the newly organized commission divided as before into two parts, half Democratic and half Republican, the opportunities for future deadlocks are not diminished. In the beginning, judicious selection of docile subordinates might reduce the chances of a stalemate to a minimum, but the subject matter with which the Commission is supposed to deal lends itself inevitably to controversy. To the extent, therefore, that the President appoints conscientious trained specialists capable of bringing an independent judgment to bear upon the material with which they deal, the chances for differences of opinion will be increased.

In the next place, the plain intent of the law is that decisions shall be based upon facts so far as they can be ascertained. The new tariff law deprives the President of the discretionary power of fixing the tariff rate within limits and restricts his action to acceptance or rejection of commission findings. This change emphasizes the conviction that such recommendations should be the outcome of impartial study, not the result of presidential desires, policies or instructions to the Commission. Under the law, therefore the chairman is without authority to act as a political agent of the administration in power or the President who appoints him. To the extent that he interprets his duty otherwise he will be exceeding his powers, and may find to his subsequent undoing that he has reckoned without his colleagues.

RUMBLES FROM THE SOUTH.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

THE strike of 500 workers in the textile mills at Bessemer City, N. C., recalls again the troublous situation in the newly industrialized South. For it was in the North Carolina textile belt that the savage outburst occurred a year ago with pitched battles and death in both camps. The latest walkout, however, seems to have been unorganized. It was a spontaneous rebellion against a cut of from 20 to 30 per cent in wages already considered too low.

The whole textile labor question in the South is a result of too rapid industrialization of a people unaccustomed to such work. Operators moved mills into the South from New England to use mountain white labor that would cost less than the unskilled immigrants on the North Atlantic seaboard. When the Southern laborers began to realize conditions, trouble started. Cut-throat competition in textiles added fuel to the fire by enforcing starvation wages.

"Bloody September" last year was the first general uprising, with at least nine killings. Is this to be an annual event, or will the operators some day realize that cheap labor is not an unmixed blessing?

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.

IN the museum of the Postoffice Department in Washington there was deposited the other day an ancient volume which officials will guard closely.

It is a confidential diary—the daily record of one Hugh Finlay, surveyor of the posts in the year 1773 and successor to Benjamin Franklin as one of the deputy postmasters general of the colonies.

Finlay's diary, just recently discovered and given to the Postoffice Department, is regarded valuable because of the graphic picture it gives of early postal service in America.

Finlay, in 1773, made a journey from Quebec to Savannah, Ga., visiting all the principal postoffices of that day. His object was to blaze a post route through the wilds of Maine to Boston. That there is no road worthy of the name along the route even to this day is regarded by postoffice officials as a tribute to his pioneer spirit.

THIS yellowed volume of Finlay's presents a true picture of the postal service in America on the eve of the Revolution. The seeds of revolt were sprouting everywhere. Anything that represented the English Government the colonies were ready to resist. Finlay, observing this tendency, made the following entry in his diary:

"They are, they say, to be governed by laws of their own framing and no other."

Edward Norice, postmaster at Salem, Finlay confided to his diary, "reports that every other day the stage coach goes for Boston, the drivers take many letters so that but few are forwarded by post to or from this office. If an information were lodged (but an informer would get tarred and feathered) no jury would find the fact; it is deemed necessary to hinder all acts of Parliament from taking effect in America."

These conditions distressed Finlay, but as he observed:

"It is next to impossible to stop this practice. . . . Were any deputy postmaster to do his duty, and make a stir in such matter, he would draw on himself the odium of his neighbors and be marked as the friend of slavery and oppression and declared enemy to America."

THE diary is filled with references like these. There is one entry, for example, where it is plain to see that Finlay, the scrupulous postal "surveyor" for His Majesty, was shocked. He writes:

"Many people asked me if I had not met the post driving some oxen; it seems he had agreed to bring some along with him."

But the Postoffice Department of today sees in the postal service of Finlay's time much similarity of spirit.

"It gives an inward glow of pleasure," said one official, "to find this postal ancestor use our familiar phrase 'for the good of the service,' and to declare: 'The public good is the sole inducement for taking so much trouble as we do.' To that sentiment the American postal service subscribes down to this day."

Nation Faces a Billion-Dollar Pension Bill Under New Law

propriation of $5,000,000 to the Veterans' Bureau.

Hearings were begun in January by the Johnson Committee on the various veterans bill introduced in the House of which there were 35 or 40. It soon became apparent, first in the Committee and later in the House, that the Representatives, usually docile under the House dictatorship, were thinking about the soldier vote in the coming Congressional primaries and elections, and would vote for the most liberal, even the most extravagant, bill offered if given a chance.

In the committee hearings, Rankin disclosed that he favored extremely generous treatment for disabled soldiers and sailors, whether disabled during or after the war. He proposed that the Veterans' Bureau should consider a great list of disabilities incurred before Jan. 1, 1930, unless there was direct and contradictory evidence to the contrary, as of service origin. The bill that Chairman Johnson finally reported to the House after the hearings contained the provision that all such disabilities incurred up to 1925 should be presumed as of service origin unless direct evidence were submitted.

Triumvirate Loses Nerve.

When the Johnson bill was reported to the House the hardboiled House triumvirate—Speaker Longworth, Floor Leader Tilson and Chairman Snell of the Rules Committee—which has consistently ignored what would be the will of the House if members were allowed to vote unhampered, lost its nerve. In the past, all Veterans Bills had been considered under a special rule, dictated by the triumvirate, limiting debate to a short period and permitting no amendments from the floor. For some unexplained reason—but probably because the members of the triumvirate come up for re-election this fall and do not care to antagonize the service vote—there was no special rule and floor amendments were permitted.

As is known, Representative Rankin, aided by Republicans and Democrats, had a field day. He offered as amendments to the Johnson bill the proposals which the Republican-controlled Veterans' Committee had rejected. These amendments included the provision for presumption of service disability up to 1930. Chairman Johnson, completely outmaneuvered, gave up in despair and told the House that he would not vote for the amended bill and would never consent to have his name affixed to it. He withdrew this latter remark, however, from the permanent record. The unrestrained House approved the Rankin bill by a vote of 324 to 49. The triumvirate was helpless.

It was estimated that the original committee bill, as reported by Johnson, would have cost annually approximately $89,000,000. Gen. Hines, of the Veterans' Bureau, estimated that the Rankin bill would have cost annually $120,000,000.

The Senate Finance Committee held two hearings on this veterans' legislation. The legion again presented its bill, which would have cost approximately $30,000,000, but the committee by a majority of one vote, approved the Rankin bill, mildly modified, and this action was sustained by a vote of 66 to 6 in the Senate, despite President Hoover's announcement that he would veto the measure.

House Chiefs' Strategy.

Then occurred one of the most curious parliamentary episodes of the last session. The House leaders, panic-stricken with fear that the House and Senate would override the presidential veto, as they had done with Spanish-American War pension legislation, called a Republican caucus for the purpose of pulling themselves and the President out of a most embarrassing political hole.

In the caucus Speaker Longworth and Floor Leader Tilson evolved an ingenious scheme whereby the House without a record vote would approve the amended Senate bill which the President had stated he would veto, and then sustain the President after he had vetoed the measure, a paradoxical parliamentary prearrangement if ever there was one. As compensation for the regular Republicans' sacrifice of voting against the veterans to sustain the President, the leaders, with the President's approval, announced that a general disability pension bill would be offered by Chairman Johnson immediately after the President's veto had been sustained.

The scheme worked. The next day the House steam roller went into action. The Senate amendments were accepted under the unanimous consent rule, and the bill was rushed to the President, who immediately vetoed it. The House sustained the veto with votes to spare, and Chairman Johnston immediately offered his disability pension bill, almost identical to the present act. Under a special rule limiting debate and prohibiting floor amendments, the House by a vote of 365 to 4 approved Johnston's substitute bill. The steam roller had functioned perfectly.

Conferees Recede.

In the Senate, Floor Leader Watson was unable to put over the administration plan, but, aided by the desire of House and Senate members for adjournment before July 4, he contented himself with the hope that the Senate conferees would disregard the mandate from their colleagues and accept the House bill. His hopes were well grounded and the Senate conferees did recede on most of the Senate amendments, which liberalized the Johnston substitute bill.

The fact, however, that the Senate's more liberal provisions were finally rejected make it almost certain that the next session of Congress will see a determined effort to amend the present act. This has been the history of all pension legislation.

The present act is a general disability pension measure. Under it, all permanently disabled World War veterans not paying a Federal income tax, who served 90 days, are entitled to a pension if they can prove they are more than 25 per cent disabled, regardless of cause except wilfull misconduct. The range of the pensions is from $12 monthly for the veteran 25 per cent disabled to $40 monthly for the veteran 100 per cent disabled. For 50 per cent disability the monthly rate is $18, and for 75 per cent, $24.

Director Hines of the Veterans' Bureau estimated that the general disability pension clause in the present act would cost $25,281,000 in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, $55,289,000 in 1932; $68,649,000 in 1933; $74,404,000 in 1943, and $80,570,000 in 1935. He further estimated that 156,000 veterans would be aided in 1931, and that the number would be increased yearly until 380,000 were on the pension list in 1935. While no official of the bureau will make estimates now, these are admitted as too low.

Other Aid Continues.

It should be remembered that the present amendments do not affect the legislation enacted for veterans who have proved or can prove the service origin of their disabilities. Hospitalization and service disability payments go on as before and with a little more generosity. The new names being added to the rolls are those of veterans who were unable to prove service disability or became disabled after their war discharge.

The claims of 566,569 veterans were allowed under the old World War Veterans' act, and 456,539 claims were rejected. Senators, Representatives and American Legion posts are now supplying these 456,539 claimants with blanks to file under the new law. Many of the old claims were rejected because the veterans could not prove the service origin of their disabilities, a requirement no longer necessary. It is too early to say how many of these claims will be granted under the new act, but the 156,000 figure set by Gen. Hines most probably will be exceeded the first year, and his quotas for succeeding years likewise will be found too low.

As stated before, the present act is the mere forerunner of a general pension, applicable to virtually all persons who served in the army navy or marine corps. And if statistics of the administration of earlier pension acts are any criterion, the Government will be paying pensions to a few World War veterans in the year 2000.

Nonservice disability pensions for the Revolutionary War veterans were started in 1818, or 37 years after the surrender of Cornwallis; the first service pension of the War of 1812 was granted in 1871, or 59 years after the end of hostilities—but the Mexican and Civil wars had intervened. President Harrison signed the first disability pension bill for Civil War veterans in 1890, or 25 years after Appomattox, and the nonservice disability pensions for Spanish-American War veterans began in 1920. If this rate of progression is retained it is a matter of a few years before the World War veterans pension legislation will be virtually on a service basis.

Civil War Experience.

The disability clause may be retained but the experiences of the Civil War veterans will show how this is softened to mean little. The old Civil War pensions ranged from $6 to $12 a month, but President Roosevelt approved the famous order No. 78 which declared that the Pension Bureau should consider a veteran 25 per cent disabled if he had reached the age of 62; 50 per cent when he reached the age of 65; 75 per cent at the age of 68, and 100 per cent at the age of 70. This order has remained in force but the pensions have been increased, the minimum to $75 and the maximum to $100. Widows of Civil War veterans, if married before a certain year, are entitled to a pension of $50 a month. Likewise the range for Spanish-American War veterans has been raised from $20 to $50 to $25 to $72.

Pension Bureau records show that the greatest number of pensioners on the Government rolls was reached in 1905 when 1,001,494 names were carried. Most of these were veterans of the Civil War and their widows. About 2,000,000 men enlisted in the Northern armies in the Civil War, while in the World War about 4,500,000 men and women were in the service.

General Hines estimates that the peak of the pension and hospital load will be reached around 1960. It is conservatively estimated that from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 World War veterans will be alive between 1950 and 1960. If the payment averages slightly less than $700 annually, a total of $1,000,000,000 would be attained. A $700 annual pension would be less than $60 a month, a figure likely to be reached when the general decrease in the value of a dollar is considered. The estimate of $25,000,000,000 for all World War pensions is conservative.

The answer: Politics.

Why were Congress and the President willing to add disability pensions to the combined War Risk insurance, service disability compensation, and hospitalization program worked out during the World War? Politics is the answer. More than 4,000,000 active voters can frighten both parties. All of the House and a third of the Senate are to be elected in November. Few members wanted to be on record as ungrateful or ungenerous to the men who served in the war, although less than half the 4,000,000 saw service overseas.

The national office of the American Legion did not ask for the pension system. The legion would have been content with passage of its own $30,000,000 bill. When the prospects became bright for the pension bill, however, the legion officials did not officially support it, but on the other hand, they did nothing to oppose it. But Congressmen were afraid of the veterns "back home," and they took no chances.

A lesser factor which spurred Congress into action on the pension legislation was the red tape of the Veterans' Bureau and the Comptroller-General's office. Congressmen charged, and with some reason, that the Comptroller was passing on medical phases of the Veteran Bureau's awards. The Veterans' Bureau officials in talking with Congressmen claimed that they were hampered by the law in stipulating the necessity of proving the service origin of disabilities. Representative Rankin sought to eliminate this trouble by authorizing the bureau to "presume" that the disabilities incurred prior to Jan. 1, 1930, were from service connections, but President Hoover pointed out that this was a "false and wholly fictitious basis for legislation in veterans' aid," and would present "the spectacle of the Government practising subterfuge in order to say what did not happen in war did happen in war."

The present disability pension plan offered Congress and the President a way out of the embarrassing political situation. The vote on the measure shows the alarcity with which Congress accepted the opportunity.

districts ranged from a minimum of 65,256 in the Eleventh to a maximum of 121,838 in the Second, a difference of 56,582. In the attempted Republican redistricting of 1921 the range was from a minimum of 93,684 in the Second to a maximum of 120,857 in the Nineteenth, a difference of 27,173.

In the fair redistricting map here presented, the districts are compact, the only one having even remotely a "shoestring" appearance being the proposed Third. The range in population of the districts would be from a minimum of 99,089 in the proposed Twenty-sixth to a maximum of 115,827, which would be the average for each of the four districts to which Jackson County is entitled, the difference between high and low being only 16,738.

Dividing the present population of the State by 34, the number of districts, gives 106,510 as a mean population for all districts. As outlined in this map, no district would vary from this mean by as much as 10,000. The district with largest population would have 9317 more than the mean, and that with the lowest would have 7421 less than the mean.

Just what can be accomplished in the way of redistricting in the next Legislature is problematical. Gov. Caulfield, a Republican, will have a veto power over any bill the Legislature may pass. The Senate is virtually certain to be Democratic, and it is not improbable the House will be Democratic. If so, a Democratic Legislature will have the passage of a bill for submission to the veto power of a Republican Governor.

From a purely practical political standpoint the Democrats probably would be content to pass no bill, leaving the gerrymandered districts to stand as they are, confident in the belief that the old Supreme Court ruling that the three State officers cannot legally redistrict the State would be upheld by the present court.

But there are other political considerations. A revision of the State Congressional Districts also is due from this Legislature.

The effect of this may be to bring Republicans and Democrats together in a compromising mood. Under the Congressional apportionment act, Missouri after the next Congress will have only 13 instead of 16 members of Congress. If the Legislature fails to create 13 congressional districts out of the present 16, the 13 members of Congress will be elected at large after this year.

Neither party wants Congressmen elected at large, and the Congressional candidates much prefer comparatively, inexpensive campaigns in small districts to expensive campaigns of the whole State. Then, from the Democratic angle, election of Congressmen at large might be expected to give the entire State delegation to the Republicans in presidential years, and, from the Republican angle, it might give the entire delegation to the Democrats in the by-election years. With the State districted, each party would have some of its members in Congress all the time.

On the whole the Republicans probably would gain the advantage by election of Congressmen at large, and consequently with a Republican Governor holding a veto power over both congressional and senatorial districting bills, there ought to be a basis for compromise along fair lines.

The Democrats, however, are going to be called upon for unselfish action on senatorial redistricting. In fact, they are going to be called upon to pass a bill which will take away their control of the Senate and pass it over to the Republicans. Any senatorial redistricting bill which follows the Constitution will do that.

This is true because the addition of two Senators in St. Louis will mean the addition of two Republican Senators, and the enlargement of the rural districts. Such enlargements will mean more counties to a district; and it will be found impossible to so group these counties on fair lines to do other than make a majority of the districts Republican.

A Democratic Legislature could submit another gerrymander to the Republican Governor, but it would be a useless proceeding from either the Republican or Democratic viewpoint. Populations have been shifting in Missouri during 30 years, and ti has now come about that the districts, which when created gave the Democrats a majority of from 10 to 12 in the Senate now give them a majority of only two to four. If the Republican growth continues the present districts might begin returning Republican Senate majority.

It is not unlikely that Gov. Caulfield would consider the present districting preferable to a different Democratic gerrymander.

In preparing the accompanying map it was assumed that St. Louis with its population of 822,023 was entitled to eight senatorial districts, each having an average population of 102,754, because that is much nearer the mean of 106,510 than would the average for seven districts. St. Louis County was conceded two districts with an average population of 105,812, and Jackson County four with an average population of 115,827.

This apportionment leaves 20 districts for the remainder of the State, which makes necessary larger districts than under the present districting, which gave the State 24 districts outside St. Louis and Jackson County, St. Louis County at present being joined with two other counties in one senatorial district.

The proposed districts, with their population figures and their probable political complexion, based upon election returns for the past 12 years, follow:

First—Atchison, Holt, Nodaway, Andrew, Worth, Gentry, De Kalb and Clinton Counties. Population, 110,560. Although the Republicans carried this group of counties in 1920 and 1928, those were abnormal elections, and the Democrats carried them in the election of 1924, more nearly a normal year. It could be classed as a Democratic district.

Second—Buchanan and Platte Counties. Population, 112,452. This is a Democratic district.

Third—Clay, Harrison, Daviess, Caldwell, Ray and Grundy Counties. Population, 106,886. This group of counties was carried by the Republicans in 1920 and 1928, and by the Democrats in 1924. Normally it would be a Democratic district.

Fourth—Mercer, Putnam, Sullivan, Schuyler, Adair, Macon, Scotland and Knox counties. Population, 106,086. This would be a close district, with the Democrats probably having a shade the advantage in normal years.

Fifth—Livingston, Linn, Carroll, Chariton and Saline counties. Population, 110,876. This is a Democratic district, though the Republicans carried it in the landslide years of 1920 and 1928.

Sixth — Howard, Randolph, Boone, Audrain and Callaway counties. Population, 112,962. This would be a heavily Democratic district.

Seventh—Clark, Lewis, Shelby, Marion, Monroe, Ralls and Pike counties. Population, 108,929. This would be a heavily Democratic district.

Eighth—Lincoln, Montgomery, Warren, St. Charles, Franklin and Gasconade counties. Population, 102,061. This would be a heavily Republican district.

Ninth and Tenth—St. Louis County. Population, 211,625, an average of 105,812 per district. Both districts probably would be Republican.

Eleventh to Eighteenth — St. Louis city, eight districts. Population, 822,032, an average of 102,754 per district. It would be expected that at least six of these districts would be Republican, and not more than two would be Democratic. It would be possible to divide the city to form eight certainly Republican districts.

Nineteenth to Twenty-second — Jackson County, including Kansas City. Population, 463,308. Four districts, with an average population of 115,827. Two of the districts probably would be Republican and two Democratic.

Twenty-third — Lafayette, Cass, Johnson and Pettis counties. Population, 107,154. In normal elections this would be safely Democratic, though the Republicans carried this group of counties in 1920 and 1928.

Twenty-fourth — Bates, Vernon, Henry, St. Clair, Cedar and Benton counties. Population, 106,707. This is a Democratic district.

Twenty-fifth—Barton, Jasper and Dade counties. Population, 100,115. This is a Republican district.

Twenty-sixth — Newton, McDonald, Lawrence, Barry and Stone counties. Population, 99,089. This is a Republican district.

Twenty-seventh — Greene, Christian and Taney counties. Population, 104,898. This is a Republican district.

Twenty-eighth — Camden, Hickory, Polk, Dallas, Laclede, Pulaski, Webster and Wright counties. Population, 103,768. This is a Republican district.

Twenty-ninth—Cooper, Moniteau, Cole, Osage, Morgan, Miller and Maries counties. Population, 110,759. This is a Republican district, though the Democrats carried it in 1928.

Thirtieth — Crawford, Phelps, Dent, Texas, Shannon, Douglas, Ozark and Howell counties. Population, 110,166. This is a Republican district.

Thirty-second — Iron, Reynolds, Madison, Bollinger, Wayne, Carter, Oregon, Ripley and Butler counties. Population, 104,693. This is a Democratic district.

Thirty-third — Cape Girardeau, Scott, Stoddard and Mississippi counties. Population, 101,323. This is a Democratic district, though the Republicans carried it in 1920.

Thirty-fourth — New Madrid, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties. Population, 103,339. This is a Democratic district.

tionalization has quickened enormously since the war. Labor-saving appliances have multiplied on an unprecedented scale. America has always taken the lead in this respect, and new devices and arrangements are constantly being thought out for dispensing with the services of men.

If this operation goes on, and go on it must, the industrial nations of the world must feel its effects. Millions of able-bodied men cannot be permanently thrown out of work without mischief ensuing. In the end a solution may be found in the universal reduction in hours of labor. Until science and labor have adjusted their relations, periods, and lengthy periods, of unemployment will remain a feature of the economic life of nations. Mussolini has definitely taken the view for some time that unemployment is not a passing symptom. His plans for the workless are mostly of the long-distance kind. He means to treat this depression as an opportunity for the reconditioning of his country. In this he is showing wisdom and foresight. When his schemes are complete Italy will be a richer, more resourceful and more efficient country. He has clearly made up his mind to avoid the cardinal British folloy of keeping men in idleness at great expense to the State. Even in Italy there is a remnant for which work cannot be found. For these he provides by insurance. But his major remedy is to supply work of the kind which will effect permanent improvement in the agricultural and industrial resources of Italy.

As far as I am able to judge, that also seems to be the policy pursued by the Federal and State governments in the United States. Lamont, the Secretary of Commerce, claimed some time ago that President Hoover was responsible for inaugurating schemes of work of all sorts and kinds which would involve expenditure of $10,000,000.

If these schemes are already in operation, and if they represent something beyond the normal operation of business, municipal or state activity, then it shows how colossal must be the slump, for in spite of this artificial expenditure the unemployed are still over 5,000,000, and, according to one authority, have reached a total which is not far short of 7,000,000. The program of work which would find something for this vast army to do must indeed be one of gigantic proportions. This is clearly President Hoover's greatest opportunity since he entered office.

Parcel Post Facilities Excellent in This Area

On Account of Being Located Near the Center of the United States, St. Louis Mail Goes Quickly and Cheaply.

According to statistics St. Louis ranks as the fifth largest parcel post center in the country. Between three and a quarter and three and a half million pieces of mail matter are handled daily. This includes an average of 345,750 pounds of outgoing parcel post every 24 hours. It also receives 536,052 pounds daily, some for distribution here and some for forwarding to other cities.

Because of central location, parcel post shipments originating here reach their destination quickly and cheaply. Manufacturers who supply their trade through this rapidly growing channel have here a great advantage over those who attempt to serve this part of the country from other large cities.

The mere advantage in distance enables St. Louis shippers to place their products on many active markets several hours or days in advance of those whose parcel post mail is subject to delay in transfer.

Parcel Post Advantages.

Lower rates of postage on account of the shorter distance give the manufacturer in St. Louis a price advantage over competitors at greater distances from point of consumption. The more expeditious service to customers is in some cases an even greater advantage.

The gateway leading to the Southwest, whose rapid growth has developed keen competition among manufacturers in different cities, opens directly from St. Louis.

A huge and ever increasing amount of business is being done in this territory.

Business With Mexico.

A surprising amount of business is also being done by parcel post with Mexico, where this class of mail, originating in St. Louis, arrives at destination two or three days earlier than from Eastern cities, from whence it has to be carried in a rounabout way.

The St. Louis manufacturer can, for from 5 to 8 cents, mail a one-pound parcel to any point in an area within a radius of a thousand miles and reaching as far as New York City on the east, Denver on the west, the Canadian border on the north, and New Orleans on the south. Within 24 hours this reaches a 100-mile zone; in 48 hours most of the central territory in all directions; in 60 hours the Rocky Mountains on the west and New England on the east, and in 72 hours the Pacific Coast.

ST. LOUIS' LOCATION

Cities and Towns Surround St. Louis on All Sides.

One of the great advantages of St. Louis as a point of origin for the distribution of all manufactured goods is that it is the center of a populous country, with villages, towns and cities surrounding it in every direction.

Thus it has a fully populated "Fourth Postal Zone," as contrasted with Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, New York and other large cities which adjoin great bodies of water whose thousands of square miles not only contain no buying population, but actually act as a barrier against fast and continuous transportation to the territories beyond.

Scott Field Improvements.

According to reports from Washington, D. C., the Committee on Military Affairs has authorized $1,206,500 for the improvement of Scott Field as a United States dirigible station. This expenditure includes: Field shops, $122,000; depot shops, $200,000; headquarters and operations building, $80,000; gas plant, machine shop and chemical storage building, $50,000.

ADVANTAGEOUS AIDS OFFERED INDUSTRY

St. Louis District Offers Many Advantages to Industry and Commerce.

Situated near the center of the United States, with unexcelled transportation facilities, the St. Louis industrial district offers excellent advantages to industry and commerce, according to George C. Smith, head of the St. Louis Industrial Bureau.

For proof of the city's desirability as an industrial center, Smith pointed to the long list of diversified industries which are now located in this metropolitan area.

Statistics compiled here some time ago, he said, show that, of eight leading cities of the United States, St. Louis is one of the two which have shown a steady increase since 1919 in number of wage earners, amount of wages and value of manufactured products.

Founded in 1764, St. Louis has grown from a modest fur trading post to one of the industrial giants among American cities. For many years it has been America's leading primary raw fur market.

As a dominant distributing center for industries the city is unexceled. The 19 railroads which enter St. Louis, operating 29 trunk lines, afford freight and passenger service to all parts of this and foreign countries.

The electric traction systems which have a network of tracks in Northeast St. Louis and nearby Illinois, are organized to handle freight and passengers from the section traversed.

Aside from these excellent rail facilities, St. Louis offers shippers additional means of transportation in barge and packet service on the Missouri, Illinois and Mississippi Rivers.

With deep waterways for barges to points north and south, the city is virtually a seaport as well as the center of an extensive network of waterways throughout the fertile Mississippi Valley.

Another advantage which St. Louis points to with pride, is its nearness to the source of a large variety of raw materials which are necessary to various and many lines of industry. This advantage, Smith said, has been recognized as a major factor in the selection of St. Louis as the location of many large industrial plants.

One of the most direct aids which St. Louis offers industries is the Industrial Club of St. Louis. The Industrial Bureau, the chief activity of this organization, is headed by Smith, who has had long experience in community and industrial development work. The staff of the Industrial Bureau is engaged, not only in attracting new industries to the St. Louis district, but in aiding those industries which are already established here.

During the past two and one-half years the Industrial Bureau has prepared scores of special reports at the request of specific firms, many of which have since located branch plants or main facilities in the St. Louis industrial district.

53 BUSINESS MEN ORGANIZE HOUSE BUILDING CONCERN

25 STRUCTURES PLANNED IN 1930

They Will Range in Cost From $30,000 to $50,000 —Seven to Be Constructed Immediately.

By Berry Moore

Perfect Homes, Inc., has been formed, with Charles Paul, president; R. L. Mernagh, vice president, and C. H. Heidbrink, secretary-treasurer, to construct on an extensive scale residences to be sold on liberal terms and at a minimum proft, according to its architects.

Six houses are scheduled for construction at once in the Moorlands, now known as Claveralack Park, and one in Lake Forest on the Clayton road, comprising the former Crow tract, where sites were acquired pending organization of the building company. These houses will alternate in seven rooms and three baths and eight rooms and three baths. Cost, including the sites, will range from $30,000 to $50,000. Plans are being drawn by George H. Bartling, Inc.

The company intends to build not fewer than 25 houses this year, ranging in cost from $30,000 to $50,000, and about 100 next year. Each will be of original design. The buildings will be erected under the standard form of specifications as recommended by the Better Business Bureau and the American Institute of Architects. The architects will collaborate with prospective purchasers, with a view to conforming to the latter's ideas.

Stock Held by 53 Men.

Stock in the enterprise is held by 53 subcontractors, material men and manufacturers. Paul is secretary of the Standard Sash & Door Co.; Mernagh is sales manager of the Alton Brick Co., and Heidbrink is president of the Vitrolite Sales Co. The concern will not be affiliated with any subdivision enterprise. The enterprise, it is stated, is designed primarily to combat speculative building and stereotype form of construction.

The houses will be described in advertisements in the daily newspapers and on the radio.

Operations of the company will be expanded as fast as negotiations can be concluded for sites. The concern has established temporary quarters in the Paul Brown Building.

Construction of apartments will be deferred, pending equilibrium in supply and demand. Tentative plans have been made for several structures of this type.

Apartment Sites Sold.

Sales were reported last week for sites for new apartment buildings, with construction scheduled to begin this fall. Plans were disclosed for several skyscraper projects of this type, but these are contingent on financial arrangements. Construction in the apartment field, however, is not expected to be resumed to an appreciable extent before spring. Investment bankers are still averse to advancing money for such operations until the surplus supply of buildings in this field has been further reduced.

Architects are working on plans for residences ranging in price from $50,000 to $100,000. These are designed for sites both north and south of Clayton road. Land adjacent to the Olive street road is also said to be in demand for homes. Virtually all land within the city limits eligible for high class homes has been absorbed, according to real estate men.

Transactions in real estate were in larger volume the closing week of August, embracing principally flats and apartments and investment holding s at pivotal points in the quasi-business sections. A revival of market operations is forecast with the advent of the fa season.

Cornet's Market View.

In the opinion of Henry L. Co net of the real estate firm of Corn & Zeibig, the recession in prices property incident to liquidation deflation has run its course a values now are at low stage.

Prevailing prices of property many instances, he believes, off opportunities for advantageous i vestments. Restrictions placed loans for apartment projects, r ducing consruction along this li to the minimum, has worked i provement in the real estate situ tion, he declares. Overproducti has been the fly in the ointme so far as real estate has figured the general business depression, contends.

Cornet's Market View.

In the opinion of Henry L. Cornet of the real estate firm of Cornet & Zeibig, the recession in prices of property incident to liquidation or deflation has run its course and values now are at low stage.

Prevailing prices of property in many instances, he believes, offer opportunities for advantageous investments. Restrictions placed on loans for apartment projects, reducing consruction along this line to the minimum, has worked improvement in the real estate situation, he declares. Overproduction has been the fly in the ointment, so far as real estate has figured in the general business depression, he contends.

There is no lack of money available for real estate investment, according to Cornet, but it has been withheld pending the readjustment of prices, which has struck at overfinanced building projects given fictitious values in order to obtain building loans.

Before the close of the year, he predicts, there will be concrete evidence renewed interest in real estate in both the city and the county. It will be seen first, he says, in substantial purchases of investment properties in the business and quasi-business parts of the city. Cornet says the time to buy is when apparently everybody wants to sell.

TO MAKE ST. LOUIS BEAN TRADE CENTER

Farr Co., Inc., of Denver Leases Floor of Cupples Building as Branch.

Farr Co., Inc., of Denver, a $1,000,000 concern handling grain, mixed feeds for stock and poultry, and beans, has taken an entire floor of the Cupples office building at 712 Spruce street.

This action follows the decision of the company to make St. Louis a large distributing center for its products. The company will distribute its products, from the St. Louis office, to points east of the Mississippi.

The company has established warehouse connections with the Howland Warehouse Co. in Cupples Station. It is the expectation of officers of the firm to distribute large quantities of beans from the St. Louis warehouse to points east of this city.

A nationwide plan, to stimulate production of beans in all states, is being carried on by this company.

SHAW & FRANCIS MOVING TO 1023 LOCUST STREET

The new office suite, on the ground floor, has been completely re-decorated and equipped, and will include private offices for the heads of the compar , C. A. Shaw and E. W. Francis, a conference room, and a large outer office for the sales force.

The firm will continue to handle sale of property at Lake Forest, where a number of homes are under construction and more are planned. A $100,000 improvement program has recently been completed.

AUGUST BUILDING PERMITS $1,274,401, DROP FROM 1929

Building permits issued by the city for August were for construction valued at $1,274,401, compared with $2,309,698 in August, 1929, and $1,408,999 last July.

The August list included 313 new buildings, costing $787,775 and 279 alterations costing $486,626.

500 MEN ARE EMPLOYED ON NEW SHOE FIRM BUILDING

Progress on International's New Structure Has Been Unusually Rapid—to Be 10 Stories High.

Rapid progress is being made in building the International Shoe Co. distributing building at Fifteenth and Morgan streets, by the James Black Masonry & Contracting Co., general contractors.

Excavation was started March 18 and the eighth-floor concrete was completely poured Aug. 29, approximately five months later, after one month was lost obtaining permits and building a city sewer through the premises.

The most modern machinery and equipment ever used in a building in St. Louis is the principal reason for the rapid progress. The eighth floor concrete (62,000 square feet) was poured in three days. This building has 16 acres of floor space and covers a plot of ground 310x200 feet. It will be 10 stories.

The exterior of the building will be of a light impervious brick, trimmed with polycrome terra cotta. The building is fireproof. All of the exterior windows are made of steel and are glazed with Hylite glass. Automatic sprinkling equipment is being installed throughout the building. Modern elevators of the micro-leveling type are also being installed.

The interior walls are faced with a light shade of fire clay tile which results in a low maintainance cost as there will be no interior painting or decorating necessary. A washing of the walls with water will make the building bright and clean.

The surface of the floors is being finished at the time the bearing concrete is poured and contains a metallic hardener. This prevents wear or treating of the floors in order to preserve the surface and further reduces maintainance cost after occupancy.

For safety three fire escapes are being erected within the building at the most convenient locations. These fire escapes have installed in them an easy tread concrete stairway and are lined with white enamel brick.

Approximately 500 men are employed daily on the building. Herbert L. Reinhardt, of the International Shoe Co. forces, is the architect and has a corps of engineers under him designing the structural parts of the building.

The building will be completed Nov. 15, although some of the floors will be occupied long before that time. When this building is erected the International Shoe Co. will occupy two blocks along Fifteenth street as their 10-story office building is immediately south of the new building and covers the block between Washington and Lucas avenues.

$105,000 LOAN MADE ON CHESTERFIELD APARTMENTS

A loan for $105,000 has been made by the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co. on the Chesterfield Apartments at Union boulevard and Waterman avenue. It bears 6 per cent interest.

The new loan replaces one for $150,000 made by the concern several years ago.

HARTMAN-HEINRICH CO. MOVES TO SOUTH SIDE BANK BUILDING

The Hartman-Heinrich Realty Co., promoters of successful developments in Southwest St. Louis, have removed from 5800 Gravois avenue, their location for eight years, to new and attractive quarters in the South Side National Bank Building, Grand boulevard and Gravois.

Hartman-Heinrich Co. promoted Mueller Place, in which they built 36 flats, and they had a considerable part in the building development of Holly Hills. They are expanding their business, to include general financing. The Grand-Gravois realty center is one of the most important in outlying districts, about 20 firms in the realty line being located there.

WEISELS NEGOTIATES LEASES ON FIVE WEST END STORES

The Henry R. Weiseis Co. reports having leased five West End stores as follows: 6344 Delmar boulevard, which will be used as a bake shop, to Carl A. BUILDING AND LOAN FIRMS DECREASE 324

Decline Is Due to Weeding Out of Inactive and Weak Pennsylvania Groups.

At the close of 1929, there were 12,342 building and loan asociations operating in the United States, a decrease of 324 for the year, according to H. F. Cellarius, secretary of U. S. Building and Loan League. This reduction was due to the weeding out of 371 inactive and weak associations in Pennsylvania. Otherwise, the number of associations in the several states remained substantially the same as in the previous year.

Combined total assets of the building and loan associations in all the tates aggregate $8,695,154,-220, an increase for the year of $679,119,893, or at the rate of a little less than 8½ per cent. Growth in membership did not, however, keep pace with that of the assets. Total membership is 12,111,209, an increase for the year of 115,304 members or at the rate of a little less than 1 per cent.

Of the total assets, $7,787,405,-383 are invested in mortgage loans, being 89,6 per cent of such assets. The amount of mortgage loans made in 1929 is estimated at $1,-800,000,000, showing a decrease of about 10 per cent from the previous year's figure.

The largest gain in assets was made by California, $180,036,745, which is, however, for an 18-month period ending Dec. 31, 1929. New Jersey associations increased their assets $119,074,037 during the year, while Pennsylvania made a gain of $59,943,656 and Ohio $46,145,-259. Other states making gains in assets of $10,000,000 or more for the year were: Wisconsin, $31,162,-283; Illinois, $28,495,532; Massachusetts, $27,516,610; Texas, $23,-981,515; New York, $20,680,594; Missouri, $19,224,363; Michigan, $18,466,603; Indiana, $14,047,877; and Kentucky, $13,367,294.

Average holdings of members in building and loan associations increased $49.71 during the year 1929, the total average amount now held by each member being $717.94.

CENTRAL HARDWARE CO. BUILDING IN WELLSTON

Wrecking was started Wednesday to make way for a building to be erected for the Central Hardware Co. on northwest corner of Kienlen and Easton avenues, Wellston.

The building is to be a two-story and basement structure of terra cotta and brick, with elevator, oil heat and sprinkler system, especially designed for hardware and plumbing business. It is to be ready for occupancy Nov. 1. The building will contain 12,000 square feet covering a lot 53 feet by 81 feet 5 inches.

Perles & Stone, Inc., represented all parties in negotiation of a long term lease.

The building will be similar in design and structure to the firm's recently constructed building on South Kingshighway, negotiations for which were also handled by Perles & Stone. The Central Hardware Co. now has three stores.

The property is owned by Mrs. Teresa J. Rosegrant, who is erecting the building.

SCREW AND BOLT FIRM TO BUILD BIG FURNACE

Equipment to Cost $250,000; 25 Additional Workers to Be Employed.

Plans for installation of an open-hearth furnace of 40-ton capacity and all necessary equipment by the St. Louis Screw & Bolt Co., 6900 North Broadway, were announced yesterday through George C. Smith, director of the Industrial Bureau.

The equipment will necessitate an investment of $250,000 and will result in the employment of 25 additional workers. It will be completed by Jan. 1.

The furnace has been bought in various parts of the country and is being assembled in the company's plant. Its installation necessitates erection of an addition to one of the buildings and a change in design of several others. One hundred persons are now employed in the rolling mill of the company.

By the new process, ingots are put through the heating furnace, then treated and run through a roughing mill. They are then sheered into billets and the billets are put through a subsidiary furnace and then run through a 10-inch mill. This runs them into bars 200 feet long or into coils. This steel is used for making nuts and bolts.

NEW WING IS COMPLETED AT BEL-NOR PUBLIC SCHOOL

Construction of the new wing to the Bel-Nor public school has been completed, thereby adding four classrooms to the school. Three years ago this school consisted of a basement only, now the boiler room, and was heated by stoves. The district developed so rapidly that the main building was erected in 1928.

With the addition the school now has eight classrooms, kindergarten, library, gymnasium, auditorium, indoor playroom and teachers' restroom. It is a fireproof, two-story brick building, thoroughly modern and is one of the units of the Normandy Consolidated School District. All grades from kindergarten to junior high school are taught. Its location on Nordic drive in Bel-Nor enables children living in this subdivision to escape many traffic hazards in going to and from school.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Equity ares regained virtually all the round lost in the "drouth scare" rly in the month, and first-grade nds reached the highest levels in o years, in a more cheerful week the security markets.

Trading in stocks continued light, t the general price level, as asured by the price index of 90 ares, made the best headway of y week since July. Much of e advance appeared to be the sult of short covering by traders ho had felt that the autumn busiss recovery would fail to justify gher prices, but who were made rvous by the slight improvement dicated in business reports, and ompted to close out their conacts before the three-day Labor y suspension of trading.

The price index of 90 stocks ded the five-day week at 169.7, net gain of 3.7 points for the ek, and within 1.2 points of the ak of the month reached on Aug. It was nearly 12 points above e low point touched on Aug. 12. rading showed little acceleration, ceeding 2,000,000 shares only on Wednesday.

Good Buying of Bonds.

Indications that seasonal upturn open market credit rates would scant prompted investors and stitutions to place substantial ms in bonds and price dividend ying stocks, to better the return their funds. Call money failed get above 2 per cent, despite anking withdrawals to meet holiy currency requirements and onth-end settlements. Time oney and commercial paper owed an easier tone.

The weekly Federal Reserve atements showed a further deline of $26,000,000 in brokers' ans to another new low for the st three years. New York banks, owever, increased their loans by 8,000,000 to replace withdrawals interior banks and others, premably for seasonal commercial quirements. The Federal Rerve System, however, was able withdraw a little of its outanding credit.

It is expected call money may m up somewhat next week, as anks call loans to meet interest d dividend checks appearing for llection. Credit has become so entiful a little more demand for would be regarded as a bullish rn, particularly should it come om industry.

The continued slow decline in okers' loans in a period of slowly ing prices was interpreted bully in some circles, as indicating at stocks were being taken out of e market and put in investors' rong boxes more rapidly than they ere being bought for marginal acounts. As a matter of fact, some the investment advisory services dvocated that their clients use a all portion of their funds for autious investment in stocks.

The stock market was strengthed by more cheerful trade and dustrial news. Steel production, eight-car loadings, building conacts, coal mining and electrical ower production reports all owed slight to moderate gains. hile current levels of activity are ill discouragingly low, a change trend was regarded as extremely assuring, and as holding promise further seasonal gains.

Even Rails Turn Upward.

Substantial advances by such ares as U. S. Index Shows 90 Shares Gaining 3.7 Points While First Grade Obligations Reach Highest Level in Two Years.

BUSINESS NEWS MORE CHEERFUL

Industrial, Utility, Merchandising, Rail and Amusement Stocks Advance — Oils, Coppers and Motors Sluggish.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Equity shares regained virtually all the ground lost in the "drouth scare" early in the month, and first-grade bonds reached the highest levels in two years, in a more cheerful week in the security markets.

Trading in stocks continued light, but the general price level, as measured by the price index of 90 shares, made the best headway of any week since July. Much of the advance appeared to be the result of short covering by traders who had felt that the autumn business recovery would fail to justify higher prices, but who were made nervous by the slight improvement indicated in business reports, and prompted to close out their contracts before the three-day Labor day suspension of trading.

The price index of 90 stocks ended the five-day week at 169.7, a net gain of 3.7 points for the week, and within 1.2 points of the peak of the month reached on Aug. 6. It was nearly 12 points above the low point touched on Aug. 12. Trading showed little acceleration, exceeding 2,000,000 shares only on Wednesday.

Good Buying of Bonds.

Indications that seasonal upturn in open market credit rates would be scant prompted investors and institutions to place substantial sums in bonds and price dividend paying stocks, to better the return of their funds. Call money failed to get above 2 per cent, despite banking withdrawals to meet holiday currency requirements and month-end settlements. Time money and commercial paper showed an easier tone.

The weekly Federal Reserve statements showed a further decline of $26,000,000 in brokers' loans to another new low for the past three years. New York banks, however, increased their loans by $58,000,000 to replace withdrawals by interior banks and others, presumably for seasonal commercial requirements. The Federal Reserve System, however, was able to withdraw a little of its outstanding credit.

It is expected call money may firm up somewhat next week, as banks call loans to meet interest and dividend checks appearing for collection. Credit has become so plentiful a little more demand for it would be regarded as a bullish sign, particularly should it come from industry.

The continued slow decline in brokers' loans in a period of slowly rising prices was interpreted bullishly in some circles, as indicating that stocks were being taken out of the market and put in investors' strong boxes more rapidly than they were being bought for marginal accounts. As a matter of fact, some of the investment advisory services advocated that their clients use a small portion of their funds for cautious investment in stocks.

The stock market was strengthened by more cheerful trade and industrial news. Steel production, freight-car loadings, building contracts, coal mining and electrical power production reports all showed slight to moderate gains. While current levels of activity are still discouragingly low, a change of trend was regarded as extremely reassuring, and as holding promise of further seasonal gains.

Even Rails Turn Upward.

Substantial advances by such shares as U. S. Steel, which reached the best levels since the June crash, were encouraging, for much of the speculation for the rise had been concentrated in second-rate or minor issues. A long list of industrials, utilities, merchandising and amusement shares made substantial gains. Even the rails, long sluggish, turned upward on covering and investment buying.

Oils and coppers were under pressure, several reaching new lows, as the price situation in both industries remained unsatisfactory. Motors also were sluggish.

SHARES SOLD NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Total sales for the week (five days) on the New York Stock Exchange amounted to 8,843,400 shares, compared with 8,831,640 last week. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 587,611,910 shares, compared with 720,898,170 last year and 526,926,300 two years ago.

WEEK'S TRADING IN LOCAL STOCKS UNUSUALLY LIGHT

Transfers More Than 1000 Shares Under Previous Week — First National Bank Touches New Low.

Trading in local securities on the St. Louis Stock Exchange was extremely light last week, transfers totaling 3300 shares, compared with 4704 the previous week.

There were sales of 1000 shares of Fulton Iron, which ranged between 1½ and 2½, closing at 1½, down ½. Nine hundred shares were sold in one day, at 1½.

Ely & Walker closed at 25, unchanged for the week. International Shoe closed up ⅝ after ranging between 53½ and 54¼. Brown Shoe ended the week unchanged. Wagner Electric showed an advance of 1½.

First National Bank sold between 74 and 75½ and reached a new low for the year. It closed the week off 1 point from the previous week. Mercantile-Commerce gained 1½ for the week.

COTTON TRADE HAS REPORTS OF CROP HOLDING IN SOUTH

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Rallies of from 80 to 90 points from the low prices reached on the recent decline were followed by rather narrow and irregular fluctuations in the cotton market toward the end of the week. The action of prices was regarded by local brokers as indicating that the more urgent covering of speculative short accounts had been completed on the advance from 10.89c to 11.75c for the new December contract and trading later was restricted by uncertainty as to possible weather developments.

The advance was attributed partly to a firm technical position following the recent extended decline, but it was promoted, no doubt, by the failure of hedging to develop in proportion to the supposed increase in ginnings and reports of a strong holding movement in the South. It was supposed that the action of the Federal Farm Board and the co-operatives in raising their advances or loans from 75 to 90 per cent of the value of cotton placed in the seasonal pool and to 80 per cent in the case of cotton placed in the optional pool, had encouraged firmer holding by individuals or interests outside of the co-operative membership.

At any rate, the volume of hedge selling was relatively light and selling of this sort has been relied upon to a considerable extent for a supply of contracts. Uncertainty as to the showing of the next Government crop report which is scheduled for publication on Sept. 8, promoted the disposition to even-up contracts, but the first of the private end-August reports to make their appearance have had little apparent effect on the market.

Two of these reports had been published up to the close of the week. One of them made the condition 55.5 and the indicated yield 14,128,000, while another placed the condition at 56.0 and the indicated yield at 13,940,000 bales. These indicated yield figures compare with the Government's report as of Aug. 1, of 14,362,000 bales.

Reports from the cotton goods markets have indicated that recent declines brought in an increased business, but at unsatisfactory prices, and that the prospects are for increased domestic mill curtailment next month. It is estimated in some quarters here that about a third of the current receipts is being delivered to the co-operative marketing associations, while another third is being held by individuals, and the remaining third is being sold in the Southern markets.

Copper Reviews.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Offerings of copper at 10.75c were somewhat more liberal late in the week, although producers as well as some custom smelters continued to hold firm at 11c for electrolytic, delivered in the Connecticut Valley. Consumers, who are well supplied, showed little or no interest in the lower offerings and foreign demand remains restricted. Total sales for August are said to be less than 25,000 tons, while shipments of metal during the month to fabricators are described as smaller than expected.

payment of interest and dividends due Sept. 1 to the amount of $524,000,000, or just slightly less than the aggregate of $530,000,000 disbursed on the same date last year. Of the current total, dividends constitute $228,000,000, as against $238,000,000 last year, and interest payable on bonds $296,000,000, as against $292,000,000 on the same date in 1929. The shrinkage in dividend payments occasioned by the cutting or passing of numerous corporation disbursements in the interval has been offset very largely, it is indicated, through increased payments by corporations such as the American Tobacco Co., whose earning capacity in this depression, much the same as shown in past similar periods, has continued to expand.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. has sold its rubber chain division to the United States Chain & Forging Co. of Pittsburg. The purchase price was not announced.

Nearly every important business indicator has turned upward this week, reports Business Week. The business index shows an increase from the bottom level reached two weeks ago and at the end of the week stood at 89 per cent, compared with 87.2 last week and 111.1 in the comparable period a year ago.

Formation of the Portland General Electric Co. to take over the electric properties of Pacific Northwest Public Service Co., was announced today by Franklin T. Griffith, president of Pacific Northwest. The step is part of a plan by Pacific Northwest to segregate its electric, gas and railway properties into separate operatin companies. Seattle Gas Co. will own and operate the gas properties. The subsidiaries will be owned by the Pacific Northwest Public Service Co., which in turn is one of the sub-holding companies of the Central Public Service System.

The Q. R. S.-De Vry Corporation reports for the year ended June 30 a net loss of $667,482. Thi compares with a net income o $205,000 in the preceding year, when an operating loss of $382,777 was more than offset by a net profit of $661,982 from the sale of securities.

General Theaters Equipment, Inc., operating the Fox Film Corporation and other subsidiaries, reports net earnings of $4,024,33 for the six months' period endin June 30, equivalent to $1.41 a shar on 2,847,955 shares of common. To tal revenues, including film rental of the Fox Film Corporation, wer $30,067,481, and gross profits to taled $13,327,358.

Most fat mixed yearlings and heifers scored $9.50 to $10.50; medium fleshed descriptions $7.50 to $9. Western heifers ranged from $5 to $9.25. bulk $7.40 to $8.75. Most native cows cashed at $5 to $6, while a few westcutters claimed $3.25 to $3.50. Top sausage bulls claimed $6.25 at the close of the week, while vealers earned $12. Bulk and top prices the corresponding week last year were as follows: Steers, $12 to $15.50; top, $16.50; fat mixed yearlings and heifers, $13.25 to $14; top, $15; medium fleshed descriptions $10 to $12.75; cows, $7.50 to $8.50, top $10; low cutters, $5.25 to $5.30; top sausage bulls, $8.50; top vealers, $17; stocker and feeder steers, $7.80 to $10, top $11.10.

HOGS—Receipts of hogs for the week just closed approximated 51,650 head, as compared with a run of 42,260 for the previous week and 76,703 for the corresponding period a year ago. Price trends were uneven, early week trade seeing an advance on practically all kinds, but subsequent sessions, under more liberal supplies and a decrease in order demand, developed weakness and losses which wiped out the earlier strength and left values unevenly 25c to 40c lower on hogs, weighty kinds showing the minimum loss. Pigs were even more irregular sellers, weighty kinds and light lights showing a proportionate decline with hogs, while light-weight pigs and stockers maintained a 25c to 50c gain over the preceding week. Packing sows declined 25c to 50c. Top hogs at the week's best time reached $12, while the closing top stopped at $11.10. Majority of the week's closing deals were around $11 and $11.10 for weights from 160 to 220 pounds; 230 to 250 pound weights quotable around $10.50 to $11, and heavier hogs downward accordingly. Light lights of 130 to 150 pounds closed at $9.75 to $10.75, while 100 to 130 pound weights varied between $8.75 and $9.75. Packing sows closed at $7.75 to $8.75.

SHEEP—Sheep and lamb receipts for the week just closed approximated 12,100 head, as compared with a run of 9182 for the preceding week and 12,953 for the corresponding week a year ago. In line with declining prices all around the market circuit the selling basis of lambs was lowered $1.25 here, losses being confined to fat lambs, however, as culls and sheep held to a steady level. An early top of $10.25 was recorded for butchers this week, but the closing peak stopped at $9 for fat lambs, and packer buys were confined largely to a spread of $8.25 to $8.75, bulk late selling at $8.50. Buck lambs went at the customary discount of $1 per cwt. throughout the period, ending the week at $7.25 to $7.75. Medium lambs and some feeders sold from $6.50 to $7.50. Common throwouts varied from $4.50 to $5, bulk going at $4.50 on packer account. Unchanged prices ruled in sheep all through, fat ewes selling mainly from $3 to $4 and culls from $1 upward.

CROP ESTIMATES, DUE THIS WEEK, MAY BOOST CORN

Conditions Similar to Those in 1924 When $1.30 a Bushel Was Reached—Price 2 Cents Up for Week.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—All eyes in the grain trade are now centered on September corn crop estimates, which unofficial experts will issue at 10 a. m. Tuesday. Pending these estimates, the best available reports are to the effect that only in 1901 has there been a corn supply scarcity which parallels the present. The nearest other approach was in 1924, when the crop was roughly a quarter billion bushels or more larger and the price of corn advanced to $1.30 a bushel.

Compared with a week ago, today's prices for corn show 1⅛-2¾c a bushel advance. Meanwhile, wheat is 1⅞-3c down, and oats ⅛c-1c off, with provisions ranging from 2c decline to a rise of 15c.

Suggestions current today from some authoritative sources that 1930 acute scarcity of corn supplies will result in even higher prices for corn this season than in 1924, implying a jump of at least 30c from yesterday's top level, are met with counter-suggestions that an insurmountable barrier exists. This barrier is that at present the surplus of wheat, oats, rye and barley is being generally considered as so much feed to be substituted for corn. On the other hand, it is contended that even if the surplus of wheat is added to the amount of rye, oats and barley in excess of the disappearance last season the total will not equal the loss in corn.

Commenting on assertions heard that, however much wheat and other grain is fed to livestock this season, the greatest economy in the use of corn will be necessary to make cereal supplies go around, a Chicago trade authority says the loss of the country's wheat crop would be less serious than than of the corn crop. It is pointed out in this connection that the use of wheat is primarily for bread, and that a wheat shortage in this country would be made up by imports from Canada and other countries, but that all the world could not replace corn. The statement is added that the reduction in the American corn crop this season of more than 500,000,000 bushels from 1929 is equal to one-third of the world's total corn crop exclusive of the United States.

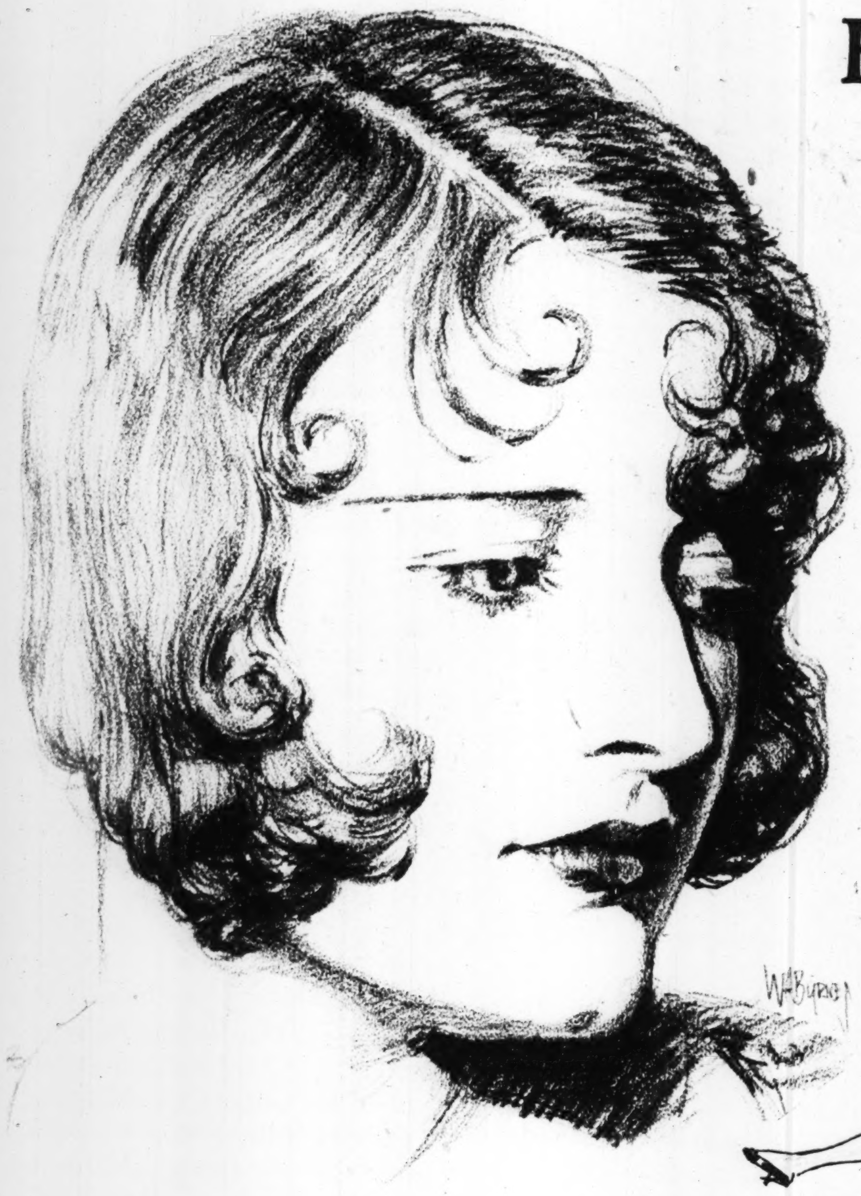
How Mr. Sherry Got Two Wives By One Marriage

The Strange Legal Tangle That Resulted When One Sister Acted as Proxy for Another.



Two views of Nedra Baker who thought herself the real Mrs. Sherry, but discovered that she was only a common law wife.

Two views of Audrey Baker who found herself with a husband she didn't want after trying to oblige her sister.

Ernest T. Sherry Jr.

NEW YORK.

IN SPITE of all the numerous complicated matrimonial tangles displayed to the public in recent years, it has remained for three young New Yorkers to concoct a brand new one, not yet in the books, but destined, no doubt, to become what gentlemen of the legal profession refer to as a leading case. It is a case of too much Sherry, although young lawyers of the future, in citing it before dozing judges, will probably just call it Sherry Against Sherry, and let it go at that.

But before it gets into the law books a lot of untangling will have to be done, and elusive answers will have to be found for a number of deceptively simple questions. "When is a legal marriage not a legal marriage?" and "Which Mrs. Sherry is Mr. Sherry's wife?" are two of the questions that seem so simple at first, but promise to take rank with such famous posers as "Button, button, who's got the button?" and "How old is Ann?" In other words, to make the matter simpler, how many wives does a man marry when he marries a woman by proxy? And in looking for the answer to that problem several lawyers have lost weight in discovering that there can sometimes be more than three sides to a domestic triangle.

Freed of its philosophic implications, the situation is as follows:

Ernest T. Sherry proposed marriage to Miss Nedra Baker, and Miss Nedra Baker gave her consent. However, when the hour came to accompany her swain to the Marriage Bureau, the fair Nedra, employed as a model in a dress factory, could not win her employers' permission to absent herself from her work. Whereupon Nedra's sister, Miss Audrey Baker, consented to take Nedra's place. In other words, it was to be a marriage by proxy. So Audrey accompanied Sherry to the License Clerk's office and got a marriage license, giving her name as Nedra. And later in the day Sherry and Audrey were married at the City Clerk's office, Audrey again giving her name as Nedra. Then Audrey and Sherry went home and met Nedra. Audrey turned over to her sister the license, the certificate and the husband, and Nedra and the husband promptly departed for a honeymoon in Canada. So far, pretty good.

But a few months later Nedra and Sherry came to a parting of the ways, and to vary the usual procedure, Sherry went home to his father. He repeated the unique history to Sherry Sr. who consulted a lawyer and then telephoned Audrey to inform her that she was really Mrs. Ernest T. Sherry Jr. This idea somehow didn't fill Audrey with enthusiasm. She didn't have the least intention of being married to Sherry, nor had that ever been her intention. And this interpretation certainly didn't thrill Nedra, who, although no longer intoxicated with the desire to live with Sherry, certainly didn't like to think that she had been living with him in a state of questionable legality. Therefore more lawyers were consulted and the situation was embellished by the discovery that not only was Audrey the legal wife of Sherry, having been legally married to him with all due process of law, but Nedra, having gone on the honeymoon with him and having lived with him publicly as man and wife, was actually his common law wife. So far, not so good. For if the excavations from Blackstone were not to be disputed, Mr. Sherry was in a somewhat embarrassing predicament, because if he had two wives at one and the same time, it would be very hard to escape the suggestion that he was actually a bigamist.

Thus when Nedra and Sherry and Audrey finally called a truce and put their heads together to see just what kind of a mess they had got into, they all made one discovery that seemed to point toward some sort of solution. For it was obvious that Sherry, who had apparently acquired two wives in trying to marry one by proxy, no longer wanted to be the husband of either of them; while of the two women who considered themselves married to him, neither wanted him for a husband. Thereupon the first step toward unravelling the tangle was taken by Audrey, who has brought suit to have her marriage with Sherry annulled. Sherry, when interviewed by reporters about the stand he would take in the matter, made it more than plain that the very last thing he contemplated doing was to oppose that suit. What worries Sherry are the events that are apt to follow. Is Nedra's position as common law wife definitely enough established to permit her to sue him for a separation and, alas, possibly for alimony, too? And if her status as common law wife isn't established, might he not have to do the right thing by the little girl and marry her if only to put a more becoming aspect on that honeymoon they had? In fact, Sherry Against Sherry promises to be a whole collection of cases. The trouble might be said to have started a year ago July. At least that was when the two comely daughters of Mrs. Harry Baker left their home in Newcastle, Pennsylvania, and with their mother's blessing journeyed to New York. Their purpose was to take a course in beauty culture. But beauty culture, unless it was one's own beauty that was being cultured, somehow lost its attraction and the original plans were abandoned. Nedra, the younger of the two sisters, just turned nineteen, found employment modeling garments at a dress manufacturing place on Seventh avenue, while Audrey, who has recently achieved her twenty-first birthday, went in for a career in a big way by enlisting for a course of instruction at Ned Wayburn's dancing school. After completing her training there Audrey came under the favoring glance of no less a personage than the famous Queen of the Night Clubs, Texas Guinan herself, who was then recruiting fresh talent and pulchritude for her new night club at Lynbrook, Long Island, just out of New York. Texas Guinan employed Audrey as one of her hostesses.

It seems that one of the dreadful disadvantages of being hostess in a popular night club is that a young woman, particularly if she is good looking, simply can't escape the attentions of men. And among the young men whose attentions Audrey found it difficult to escape was the aforementioned Ernest T. Sherry Jr., whose father is a prosperous dental surgeon, and member of an old and generally respected New York family. Ernest was introduced to Audrey at the night club one night in November. They became friendly. There was something about Audrey's blonde beauty that attracted young Sherry, and the result was they saw each other with frequency.

NOW Audrey's work at the night club put her in a position where she could meet more men than she could count, and most of them men eager to spend money. On the other hand Nedra's work modeling dresses, while hardly comparable to a life in the cloister, wasn't quite so abundantly provided with attentive gentlemen. So Audrey decided to do the sisterly thing. She would take Mr. Sherry to the apartment she shared with her sister and have him meet Nedra. This was done, and Sherry immediately succumbed to the charms of Nedra, who is even more blonde than her sister. And it was no time at all before he proposed marriage. What happened then is best described by the girls.

Says Nedra:

"I didn't want to take time off from my job to get a license next day. Someone, I don't remember whether it was Ernie or Audrey, suggested that my sister get it for me. I didn't see any harm in that so they went down town the next day together. That evening Ernie telephoned me and said we were married. I told him it wasn't right. I didn't realize they were going through the ceremony together and I argued with both of them that it was wrong. But they convinced me that the marriage by proxy was legal and so we went off on our honeymoon."

Says Audrey:

"I introduced Sherry to Nedra and he fell for her like a ton of bricks. He dashed out, bought tickets for Montreal and wanted to get married to Nedra right then and there. Nedra asked for a half day off at the shop where she was a dress model, but they wouldn't let her off. Sherry wanted to get married so badly so they could

RISE and FALL of EX-CONGRESSMAN HERRICK

Manuel Herrick, former Congressman from Oklahoma.

Miss Anna Neibel.

BALTIMORE, Maryland.

FALLEN from high estate, former Congressman Manuel Herrick went to jail here, unable to raise bond of $2500. Prohibition officers say they found him tending a still, bare-footed, unshaven and unwashed, in dirty overalls.

It was in a thicket near California, Maryland, just 80 miles from Washington, that Herrick was surprised at the business of still-tending, according to dry agents. Just 80 miles from the scene of his former glory, where, in the white halls of Congress beneath the noble dome of the Capitol, he bellowed for bigger and better appropriations. Those who have followed Manuel's career intimate that it wasn't much of a tumble, after all, and that his appearance in Congress was more or less accidental.

Herrick, of course, has another story about the still-tending business. He grows very mysterious, lowers his voice and says he was a secret agent for the Government—in disguise. That explains the overall costume. But if this is true, it is also tragically true that the Government has deserted its agent in his hour of dire need. Or perhaps this is all part of a deep-laid plot, even though it has been impossible so far to find any Government official who will admit any connection with Herrick—officially or otherwise.

No matter what they say about Manuel Herrick, he has surely lived, as they say in the talkies. In fact, it's a wonder he's still alive. He has miraculously survived attacks by enraged fathers and husbands.

From the very beginning Manuel Herrick's Congressional career was different. Elected from Oklahoma, the Cherokee strip, Manuel embodied all of the spirit of the wild and woolly West. Success in politics was his but he also craved success in matrimony. He desired to annex a wife before proceeding to Washington.

While eating a meal in a restaurant in Woodward, Oklahoma, he noticed that the waitress looked mighty good. He asked her to marry him without so much as removing the napkin from his collar. When she refused him, he created a disturbance and plainly speaking was tossed out of the cafe. A difficulty of the same general nature also caused his arrest in Wichita, Kansas.

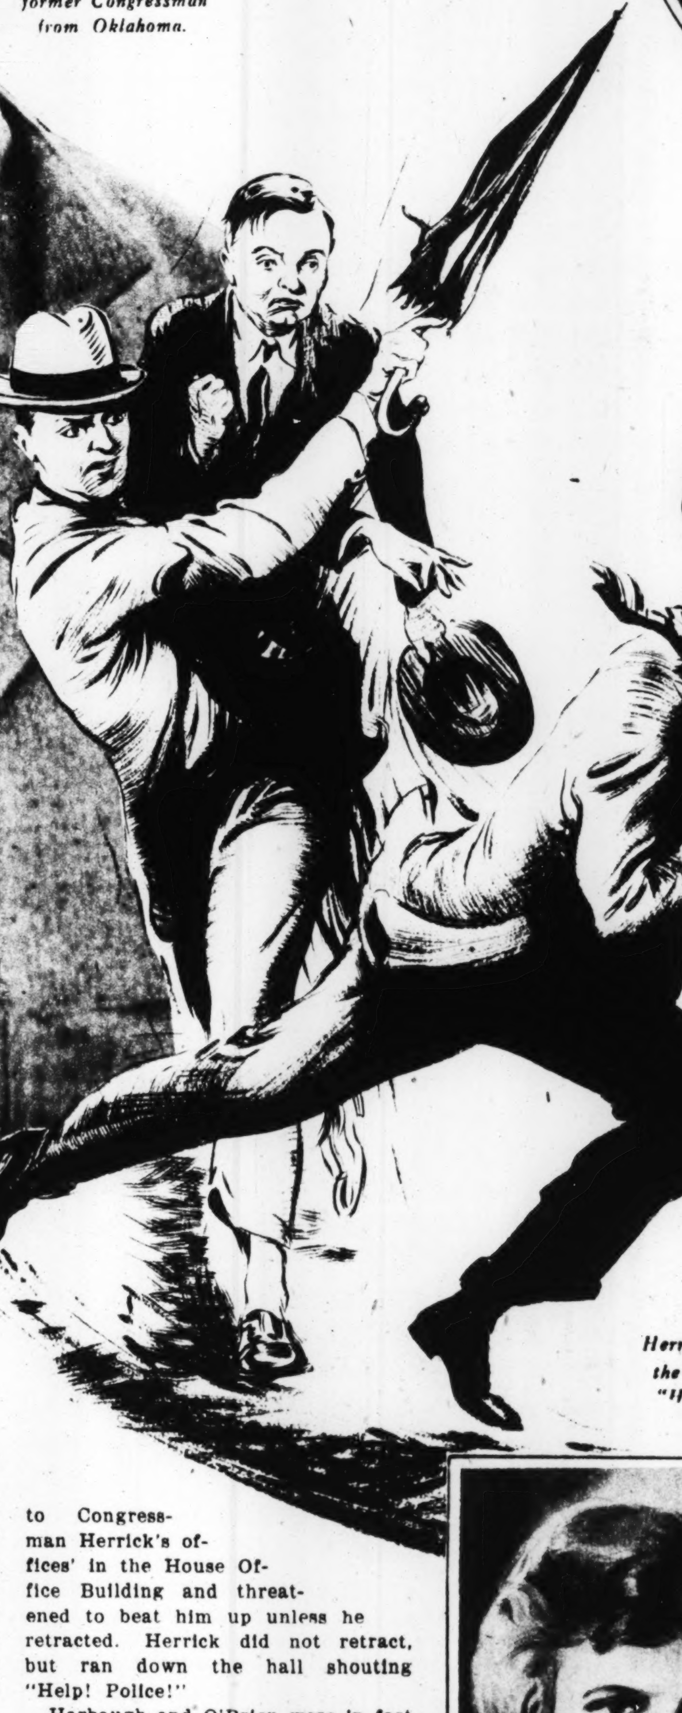
Arrived in Washington, Manuel turned his attention to national problems. The first thing that struck him was the essentially heinous nature of the beauty contests which were then being staged in so many cities in the country. He felt that beauty contests were disrupting and demoralizing the young womanhood of the nation. So he introduced a bill prohibiting these parades of loveliness.

Then Manuel decided to start a beauty contest of his own. Manuel said afterwards that he did it to demonstrate the essential wrongness of beauty contests. But the fact remains that he started the "Congressional Beauty Contest," offering himself in matrimony as the first prize.

A GROUP of 49 Washington girls received form letters asking them to enter the contest. Manuel was described as a man who "holds one of the highest offices in the nation and will within eight years hold the highest." His rating in masculine beauty was assayed as: "Face 80 per cent, body 98 per cent."

Two of the recipients of these letters turned them over to the postal authorities, and there was considerable of a rumpus. Manuel announced the letters were "decoys" also that the two young ladies had "apologized humbly" to him for taking offense at his letter.

The husband of one girl, Mrs. Jack O'Brien, and the father of the other, pretty Mary Harbaugh, took violent umbrage at this and declared that no apologies had been made. They went to Congressman Herrick's offices' in the House Office Building and threatened to beat him up unless he retracted. Herrick did not retract, but ran down the hall shouting "Help! Police!"



Herrick ran down the hall shouting "Help! Police!"

Harbaugh and O'Brien were in fast pursuit and the former swung an umbrella over the Congressman's head just as he dodged into the office of Daniel A. Sutherland, delegate from Alaska. Veteran Capitol employes said there hadn't been so much fun around there since the British set fire to the place. But this was merely a beginning.

Congressman Herrick was boarding with Mrs. C. Belville Shorey, the mother of pretty Elizabeth Shorey, just 16 years old. Herrick showed marked attentions to Elizabeth—so marked that Mrs. Shorey decided that the Shorey family would move and that Congressman Herrick would not move with them. After this change had been effected, Elizabeth began to receive anonymous love letters which were presumed to come from Manuel. More unpleasantness.

Goaded by Mrs. Shorey, Manuel came right out and said that she "had thrown her daughter at him," and that whatever letters he had written were for the girl's own good. He said:

"Mrs. Shorey made strenuous efforts to impress me with the desirability of marrying her daughter. Partly to humor the old lady and to avoid trouble until my rent should have expired, I pretended to agree but stipulated that two years must elapse before marriage."

Miss Elizabeth Shorey.

As to the letters, Congressman Manuel claimed that they were not love letters, but that after he had "broken off" with Elizabeth, he had overheard some young men say that she had taken to auto riding with different people and he thought it his fatherly duty to write her a word of warning. His notes to Elizabeth had nothing to do with his "decoy notes" in the beauty contest, he said.

Irked by the cold reception given his beauty contest in the press, Manuel put the annoying reporters in their place with the following statement reproduced verbatim:

"The newspaper reporters and some others who are opposed to the passage of H. R. 8208, a bill introduced by Representative Herrick to prohibit contests, think that they are having fun with Him, by trying to heap Ridicule upon him, but Instid they are only making sure that his bill will pass by such Methods because they are acting as a boomerang the Members of the House after reading the scred in the New York World of the 24th remarked this settles It, we will all vote for your bill now. Let the slur writers rave the following facts remains and cannot be gotten away from 1st that Herrick has been in Washington since February the 25th and In all that time, He has done no running after women In the sence that the term is commonly Understood to Mean 2nd he employs No wimen cleark In his office but on the contrary he had a full force of Men Clearks 3rd He has had about a peck replies from the siley and gidey girls which they sent in answer to his decoy letters that he sent out in order to geather evidence in support of his bill.

"IN THE hearing before the committee on Judiciary and If certain co-operating with the class that would like to drag them down to Moral ruin He Will make some of them public and they they won't feel quit so gay, 4th he defies the social Hyenas Moral Reprobates and Moral Lepers to prove by an evidence that is entiled to a Moments consideration in any court of record any wheare in the world that He Has ever been quilty of an act of Moral turpitude. in His whole life so he is willing for the Moraly Unclean to Howl as loud and as long as they like it disturbs Him Not and he will go right on to Make this world a better and cleaner place to live in.

"MANUEL HERRICK."

Manuel might not have been so courageously outspoken if he had known what was just around the corner. Anna Neibel, former Follies girl, sued him for $50,000 for breach of promise. This was a part of the "beauty contest" aftermath. Miss Neibel claimed that Manuel had said that she was a sure winner in the contest for his heart and hand.

Was Manuel mad? Not much! Following is a small part of what he said to her according to his own statement:

"I know more about your past than you have any idea. I know enough about you to raise the hair on your head. I want you to know that you thought you could slander a hick Congressman with impunity just because he happened to be a farmer, but if necessary I will teach you that I know New York about as well as you do. I can proceed against you for libel and slander, but will be guided by whether you stop this monkey business or not."

Miss Neibel was polite but positive that the matter could only be settled by cash compromise or marriage. She was nobly tolerant.

"Yes, after all that has been said and done in the newspapers," she said softly, "and the harsh things that have been said about me, I am still willing to marry him and if he were to say the word, the ceremony would be performed tomorrow."

"More long-eared monkey business," growled Manuel

LATER he announced that Miss Neibel and her advisers had suggested a compromise for $20,000 to be used in financing the production of "Paradise Alley" in which the pretty Follies girl would be featured. Manuel declined and the affair fizzled out.

But the most disastrous adventure came when he abandoned his policy of hiring "men clearks" only and acquired Miss Ethlyn Chrane as his secretary. Shortly after this he was defeated in the Oklahoma primaries. A Congressman who is no longer a Congressman can't have a secretary. So he parted from Miss Chrane.

But the city was electrified shortly by the news that Herrick had sued his former secretary for $50,000 for breach of promise. He charged that she had wooed him.

Miss Chrane was mean enough to sue Manuel for slander on the strength of this. She received a verdict for $7500 while Manuel was awarded one cent damages in his breach of promise claim.

"They give it in dribbles and take it in droves," was Manuel's comment on this 50-50 victory.

Manuel acted as his own attorney in the breach-of-promise case and panicked the jury by examining himself, using two different voices. Manuel seems to have "learned about women" after these experiences. At any rate, no recent love exploits of his have gotten into the papers.

He left the Capitol after announcing, "I've seen so much drinking around Congress that it made me sick. I've seen Congressmen bring liquor into the Capitol and seen them all liquored up in the cloak rooms."

Later he bought eleven airplanes from the Government at a price said to be $160 each. "If you see a flock of yellow airplanes, it's me," he said. But the yellow birds disappeared and so did Manuel, gradually. He did pop up once or twice as an alleged worker in a private detective agency. He said he was investigating "white slave conditions."

Manuel Herrick now seems to be in one of the tightest places of his life. He claims to have been doing undercover work for A. P. Moore, a clerical worker of the Prohibition Bureau, but Moore states he specifically warned Herrick that if he went to work in a still it would be at his own risk, also that the former Congressman was in no way authorized to represent the Department of Justice.

The MODERN MINSTREL TAKES the GAS BUGGY

MADISON, Connecticut.

A CARAVAN of three trucks and two passenger automobiles is carrying an old magic—with modern improvements—through the Eastern states these summer days. It is taking to the towns and summer communities of New England and New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, a blending of art, mechanics and youthful adventure.

The caravan stops on a village green, the grounds of a country club, a college campus or perhaps a park. Young men and women jump from the cars and become extremely busy. And presently a theater, canvas-walled but complete, emerges from the seeming confusion. There is a stage with scenery, curtain and electrical equipment. There are chairs for the audience, a wall surrounding them, and, if needed, a canvas roof. There are dressing rooms flanking the stage.

In the evening the young men and women who have transformed prosaic vehicles and dusty cargoes into a place of romantic illusion, don the buskin and present a play in a manner worthy of the professionals they are. Later that night the dressing tents become sleeping quarters. The next morning, or a few days later, the theater vanishes — converted back into hard-working trucks—and the caravan moves on.

The Jitney Players, Inc., are having their eighth season of this—carrying on an old tradition. But they are rolling instead of strolling players. Their theater on wheels, with its ability to produce metropolitan stage effects, has come to be as much a part of the New England summer as antique hunters.

Bushnell Cheney, who died last spring, founded the Jitney Players with the help of his wife, Alice Keating Cheney. Traveling with two small trucks, they gave one-act plays with a company of amateurs on the lawns of country houses the first season. Then Cheney set about devising a theater that would be mobile but complete, and worked out the ingenious contrivances now used. With these mechanical details arranged, actors and actresses were obtained from the ranks of professionals, and full length plays were produced. When her husband died, Mrs. Cheney became manager of the enterprise.

Headquarters of the troupe is at Madison, Connecticut, on Long Island Sound. Here, at Mrs. Cheney's home — a house built in 1740—the company prepares for its tours. Here rehearsals are held, costumes and scenery made. The players ply needle, paint brush and saw as well as practice the art of the stage. On tour, also, they do whatever work is needed, from pitching tents to patching clothes. These actors can't be upstage.

The actors are not the only versatile units of this organization. One of the trucks doubles as the stage. It is a folding stage, 16 feet wide and 11 feet deep when ready for use. The sides of the truck fall to the horizontal to become a part of the floor. The back of the truck drops and turns into a flight of steps. The top over the driver's seat is removed. Telescoping posts go up at each corner of the platform and connect with a roof framework. On the rods, canvas is stretched to form walls and roof. The curtain is hung and scenery put in place, ready to be shifted quickly. Spotlights are put up and connected with an electric switchboard. A small red piano is mounted on a platform at one side of the stage. The seats are arranged—250 red, folding chairs—and if rain is threatened a canvas top is raised for the protection of the audience.

Large A-shaped tents are put up at right and left of the stage. One serves as dressing room for the men, the other for the women. Curtains along the front enable the actors to go from dressing room to stage without being seen by the audience.

The tents, the motor which generates electricity for the theater, the 250 chairs and the personal baggage of the players are carried by the two trucks which accompany the main, or stage, truck.

As for the plays themselves, they are of the little theater type, suited to the intimate manner of production of the Jitney Players. "The Wonder! or, A Woman Keeps a Secret," a romantic comedy first acted in London in 1714, and one of the favorites of David Garrick, is one of those in the repertoire. Another is W. S. Gilbert's "Haste to the Wedding," with music by George Grossmith. A third is "The Murder in the Red Barn," a melodrama of 1840. An idea of the way the Jitney Players present this piece is given by the company's announcement that in the play are "the Leering Villain, the Pure Young Heroine, brought to such an early and tragic end; the Vengeful Gypsy and the Rustic Gent."

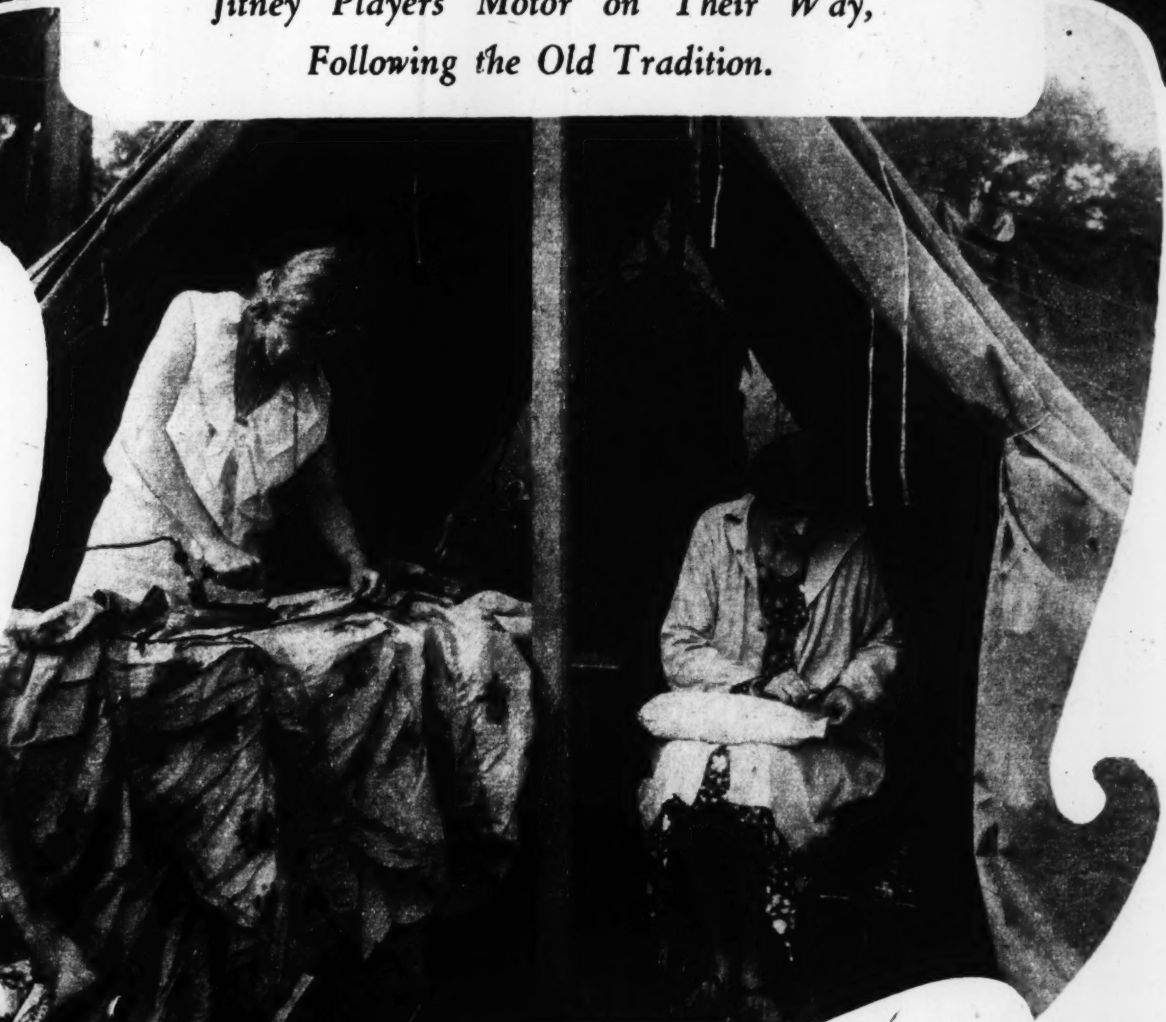
IN 1928 the company made its first winter tour, leaving its truck-stage behind and playing in theaters and school auditoriums. It ended the winter season with five weeks in New York City, at the Cherry Lane Theater and the Provincetown Playhouse. Last spring it further extended its territory by making a tour of the South, accompanied by its rolling theater.

The Jitney Players have given their shows in such cities as Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston, Richmond, Newport and Bar Harbor, as well as in the smaller towns, and at Harvard, Princeton, Vassar, Wellesley and many other colleges and universities.

Mrs. Cheney is in her early thirties. She was on the stage before her marriage, and played leading roles with the Jitney Players until assuming direction of the company this year.

Apparently no one is starred in the tours of the Jitney Players. The play's the thing with them, in more senses than one: The play they present from behind the footlights and the play in the life they lead. These modern thespians are vastly different people from their professional antecedents, the strolling players, who, until the beginning of the nineteenth century were classed with vagabonds by English law. Established citizens don't call for the watch or put a guard on their valuables when the Jitney Players come along. Instead, they often invite the actors and actresses to tea. The players of today are not starved, shunned mendicants, living precariously, snatching a purse or stealing a pig on occasion. They make a decent living and are respected as practitioners of an honorable profession.

But one characteristic of the disreputable folk who amused their betters in the old days has come down to the players of the theater on wheels—a fondness for the nomadic existence. The life of the road with its always changing scenes and crowding incidents, makes every tour an adventure.



The leading women are their own maids.

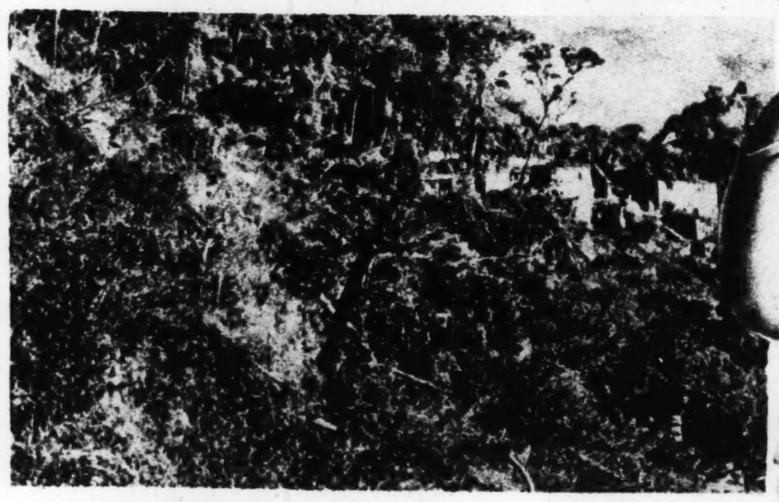
Senator Hiram Bingham's Account of the White Granite Citadel Lost on a Mountain Top in the Andes.

By M. W. CHILDS
Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

THE last citadel of the Incas has yielded up its secrets. It remained for a Connecticut Yankee to penetrate the Peruvian jungle, to make a perilous mountain climb, to clear away a forest and beat back centuries of oblivion in order that the present age might have some knowledge of the splendid white granite city that once crowned an all but inaccessible precipice, 10,000 feet above sea level, in the remote Andes. The Connecticut Yankee who stepped back a thousand years or more into the buried splendor of the Inca's court is now United States Senator Hiram Bingham. Before he became a Senator and high tariff priest of the Republican administration, Bingham was an archeologist, professor at Yale, an explorer, a man of distinguished reputation and broad culture. He discovered and excavated Machu Picchu several years ago. Now he tells the story of the excavation in a volume published by the Yale University Press, for the National Geographic Society, at $50 each, a price which his Connecticut forbears would have approved. Discovery of the citadel of Machu Picchu was partly luck, partly perseverance, a grim determination on Bingham's part to explore every Inca ruin in the section of Peru he was passing through. It was his good fortune that a new road had but recently been cut through a virtually unknown region, three days' journey from Cuzco, once the capital of a vast Inca empire, in southern Peru. He was fortunate also in the fact that some Indians had taken to the mountain side to cultivate their crops on the sloping terraces built centuries ago by the Incas. They were his guides.

DRINKING LADLE with HUMAN HEAD HANDLE

It was without any warning that Bingham finally came upon the extensive ruins of Machu Picchu. In all his scholarly researches he had never seen a reference to this citadel. He expected, from what his Indian guides had told him, to see a minor wall or two. And instead he stumbled upon the most important Inca discovery since the conquest of Peru by the Spaniard, Pizarro.



View from expedition's camp.

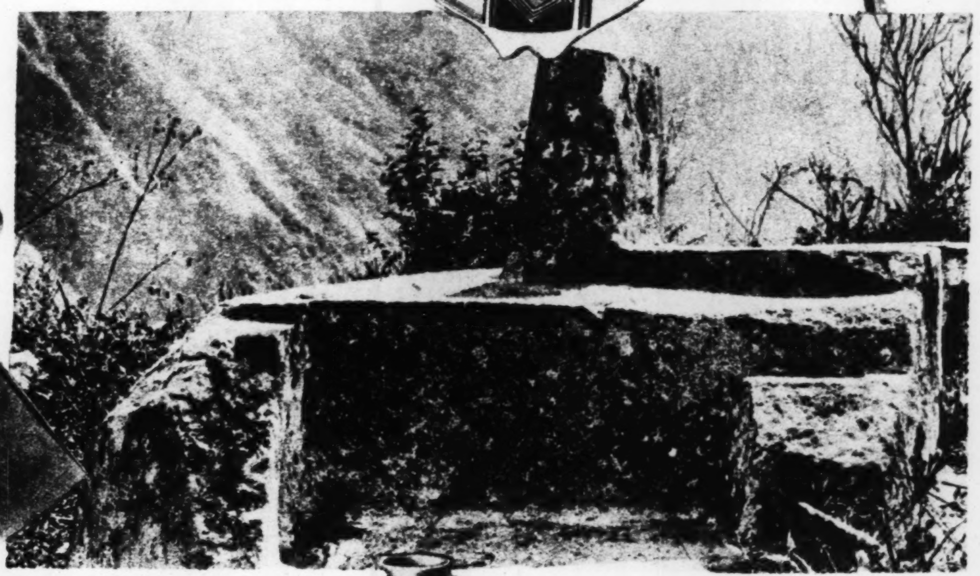
He was immediately keen to excavate, to discover what lay beneath the tangled underbrush and rubble that had accumulated in density through the centuries. It was three years later that he was able to finance and organize an expedition and return to the site. And then the difficulties that faced the party of experts appeared well nigh insuperable.

It was first necessary to establish a camp somewhere near the site of the ruin, close to the summit of Machu Picchu. This meant that everything had to be carried up over dangerous trails, vague remnants of the paths the Incas laid down. It was obvious that those early people—refugees, they were—had chosen this place because of its remote inaccessibility. Two or three men, Bingham says, could have defended it against an army. This was thanks largely to the superb natural position of the citadel but it was partly due to the extreme skill with which the Incas had fortified their position and built their roads.

Same site as above, after clearing.

As though the difficulty of the climb were not enough, Machu Picchu is surrounded on three sides by the Urubamba River, which all but encircles its base in a flowing, snakelike course. Before the mountain could even be approached, it was necessary to build across this roaring mountain stream, 80 feet in width and with rapids so violent that no human being could long withstand them, a bridge. And once at the site of the ruin, Bingham found the work of excavation was greatly hampered by the presence of a dense hardwood forest. It was a heroic labor to chop this down and burn it up.

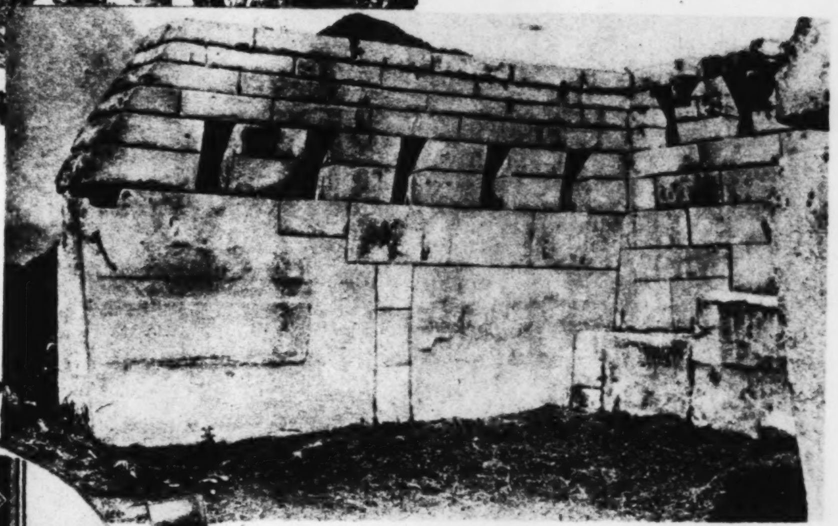
Gradually, as the work progressed, there came to be revealed a city of the first importance. Houses, temples, fountains, streets and courtyards, terraces for agriculture, altars for sun-worship, all of white granite.



The stone to which "the sun was tied."

Built by a people who knew nothing of modern instruments of precision, yet the buildings exhibit superb masonry, Bingham writes. The walls in certain of the more important structures are formed of great blocks of granite, weighing several tons, perfectly fitted and held together by an interlocking process, unknown to the present day, without the aid of mortar or cement. The wall extending from the temple to the priest's house, Bingham speaks of as "the most beautiful wall in America."

BRONZE KNIFE



Temple wall.

As more and more of the citadel came to light, Bingham worked out a theory, based on his previous knowledge of the Incas, of the part this city, secure against enemies in the fastness of the Andes, had played in Inca history. It is his belief that it was the holy city of the Incas. That twice it was a refuge for beleaguered bands of priests and nobles, bent on preserving ancient religious rites and time-honored traditions. That in the final years of its existence it served as a retreat for the Virgins of the Sun, those most beautiful of all Inca women who were dedicated to the service of the supreme Inca. That it housed the mummies of Inca emperors, most venerated of all objects. The date of its founding is computed to be between 600 and 700 A. D.

BINGHAM believes the long lost citadel he discovered near the summit of Machu Picchu is the Tampu-tocco of an old Spanish chronicle, a place known as the city of refuge. For in the ruins Bingham found an almost perfect masonry wall inset with three beautifully constructed windows, such as is described as having been built by Manco Capac who left the city of refuge to found a new empire at Cuzco. It is the only example of the use of this large type of ornamental window so far discovered in any Inca ruins. When the Incas put windows in their houses, they were invariably small, little more than chinks. The climate is extremely variable and Bingham is of the belief that the Incas abhorred fresh air and drafts. He cites other evidence to verify his theory, particularly in the later history of Tampu-tocco.

Established in Cuzco, surrounded by rich arable lands, Manco Capac, the Inca emperor, and his descendants extended their rule until it covered nearly all of South America. For 300 years this dynasty ruled, during which time it is probable that the common people forgot all about Tampu-tocco, the refuge in the mountains. But the priests and those who preserved the most sacred secrets of the Incas, Bingham writes, undoubtedly passed down from generation to generation the whereabouts of this holy citadel.

Then in 1533 came Pizarro and his conquistadores. They wanted gold and silver. They were perfectly welcome to what precious metal there was. The Incas were concerned with saving the sacred symbols of their religion, the Virgins of the Sun, who, like the vestal virgins of Rome, were trained from earliest childhood to the service of the temple and to ministering to the wants of the supreme Inca. The consecration of these beautiful girls to the service of the chief divinity had supplanted human sacrifice in Peru many centuries before.

THE reigning Inca and some of the Virgins were put to death by the Spanish conquerors who set up as a dummy ruler the young Inca, Manco. The latter, however, rebelled and fled from Cuzco, taking with him the remaining Virgins. It is Bingham's contention that these Virgins were taken to the long forgotten stronghold of Tampu-tocco, shut off on one side by the sheer precipices of Machu Picchu mountain and on the other three sides by the Urubamba River.

Here, protected by a series of fortifications that made defense a simple matter, the Incas survived for a time, jealously preserving the mysteries of sun-worship and the mausoleums of venerated Inca kings.

Of the first occupants of Tampu-tocco, those who built the citadel 800 years before the coming of the Spaniards, Bingham writes:

"We may be reasonably sure that the people of Tampu-tocco believed in ancestral worship, had ideas of modesty, decency, and chastity closely resembling those of England and America. Of course, certain things did not shock their sense of propriety, because they did not live in an age when modern conveniences have made things seem improper which were formerly so common as not to be noticed. Undoubtedly they did have a strong sense of the family tie and kinship. To live at all they had to work hard. . . .

"Festivals they did have. Days after the harvest was gathered or after planting was finished might be devoted to ceremonials which included a considerable amount of drunkenness, but the normal daily life of the people involved regular and hard work. It was lightened by being done in common but the incentive of individual achievement was lacking. There was also no want of faith in a central government which provided against want and saw to it that the lazy were forced to work and the ambitious were given interesting problems.

"An elaborate system of highways, three or four feet in width, connected the citadel with the valleys and towns of Uillcapampa and permitted the free passage of burden bearers, whether men or llamas.

"In the art of war they exhibited skill in defense rather than in developing weapons of offense. Fortifications constructed so as to admit of lateral fire were not uncommon and high walls, even dry moats, were not unknown. Sightly eminences are fre-

Of the Series in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine.

By ARTHUR STRAWN

TWENTY-FIVE years ago a dapper little man of 55 was walking down Fourth avenue in New York. He was a wholesale drug manufacturer from St. Louis, spending several weeks in New York on business. Having some time on his hands between engagements on this particular morning, he was leisurely inspecting the shop windows as he walked down the avenue. In the vicinity of Thirty-third street he paused before the window of a rug dealer's shop, idly looking at the display. Suddenly his whole casual curiosity seemed to focus on an object in the window and he gazed at it as if fascinated.

The object that had suddenly caught and riveted his interest was a small Oriental rug, predominantly green in color, about three and a half by five and a half feet in size. But to the drug merchant from St. Louis it was more than a mere rug, it was a revelation of beauty, and when he finally tore himself away from the window it was with the expression on his face of a man who has suddenly found himself illuminated with something akin to divine manifestation. Slowly he walked away, his mind possessed by that exquisite design of delicate pale green. Then he turned around, walked back and entered the shop.

When the dealer told him the price of the rug was $500 the little man shook his head and reluctantly walked out. The rug was beautiful, of course. But who ever heard of paying that much for such a small rug, when most rugs that size could be bought for $15 or $20? Although moderately wealthy, that was an extravagance the man from St. Louis didn't feel was justified. After all, he could do without the rug, and with that decision he went about his business. But somehow he couldn't dismiss that bit of pale green weaving from his mind. It had ravished his peace. The situation, of course, was ridiculous—a prosaic drug manufacturer suddenly obsessed and haunted by 20 square feet of green cloth, for which a merchant was demanding the exorbitant sum of $500. But if the St. Louisan began to feel, after several days, that the obsession was absurd, he also began to recognize that it was intolerable.

FOR the first time in his life the merchant became conscious of something akin to dual personality. The poet in him determined to have that rug at any price; the business man in him insisted that $500 was too much to pay for any such craving. There was a compromise. The St. Louisan looked over his supply of funds and called on the rug merchant. He placed a roll of greenbacks on the counter.

"I want that rug and I'm able to pay you $375 for it. If you'll sell at that price, all right. If not, I—I won't pay another dollar."

The merchant apparently didn't notice the uncertainty with which the last sentence had been uttered. He hesitated a moment, glanced longingly at the pile of notes and shrugged his shoulders.

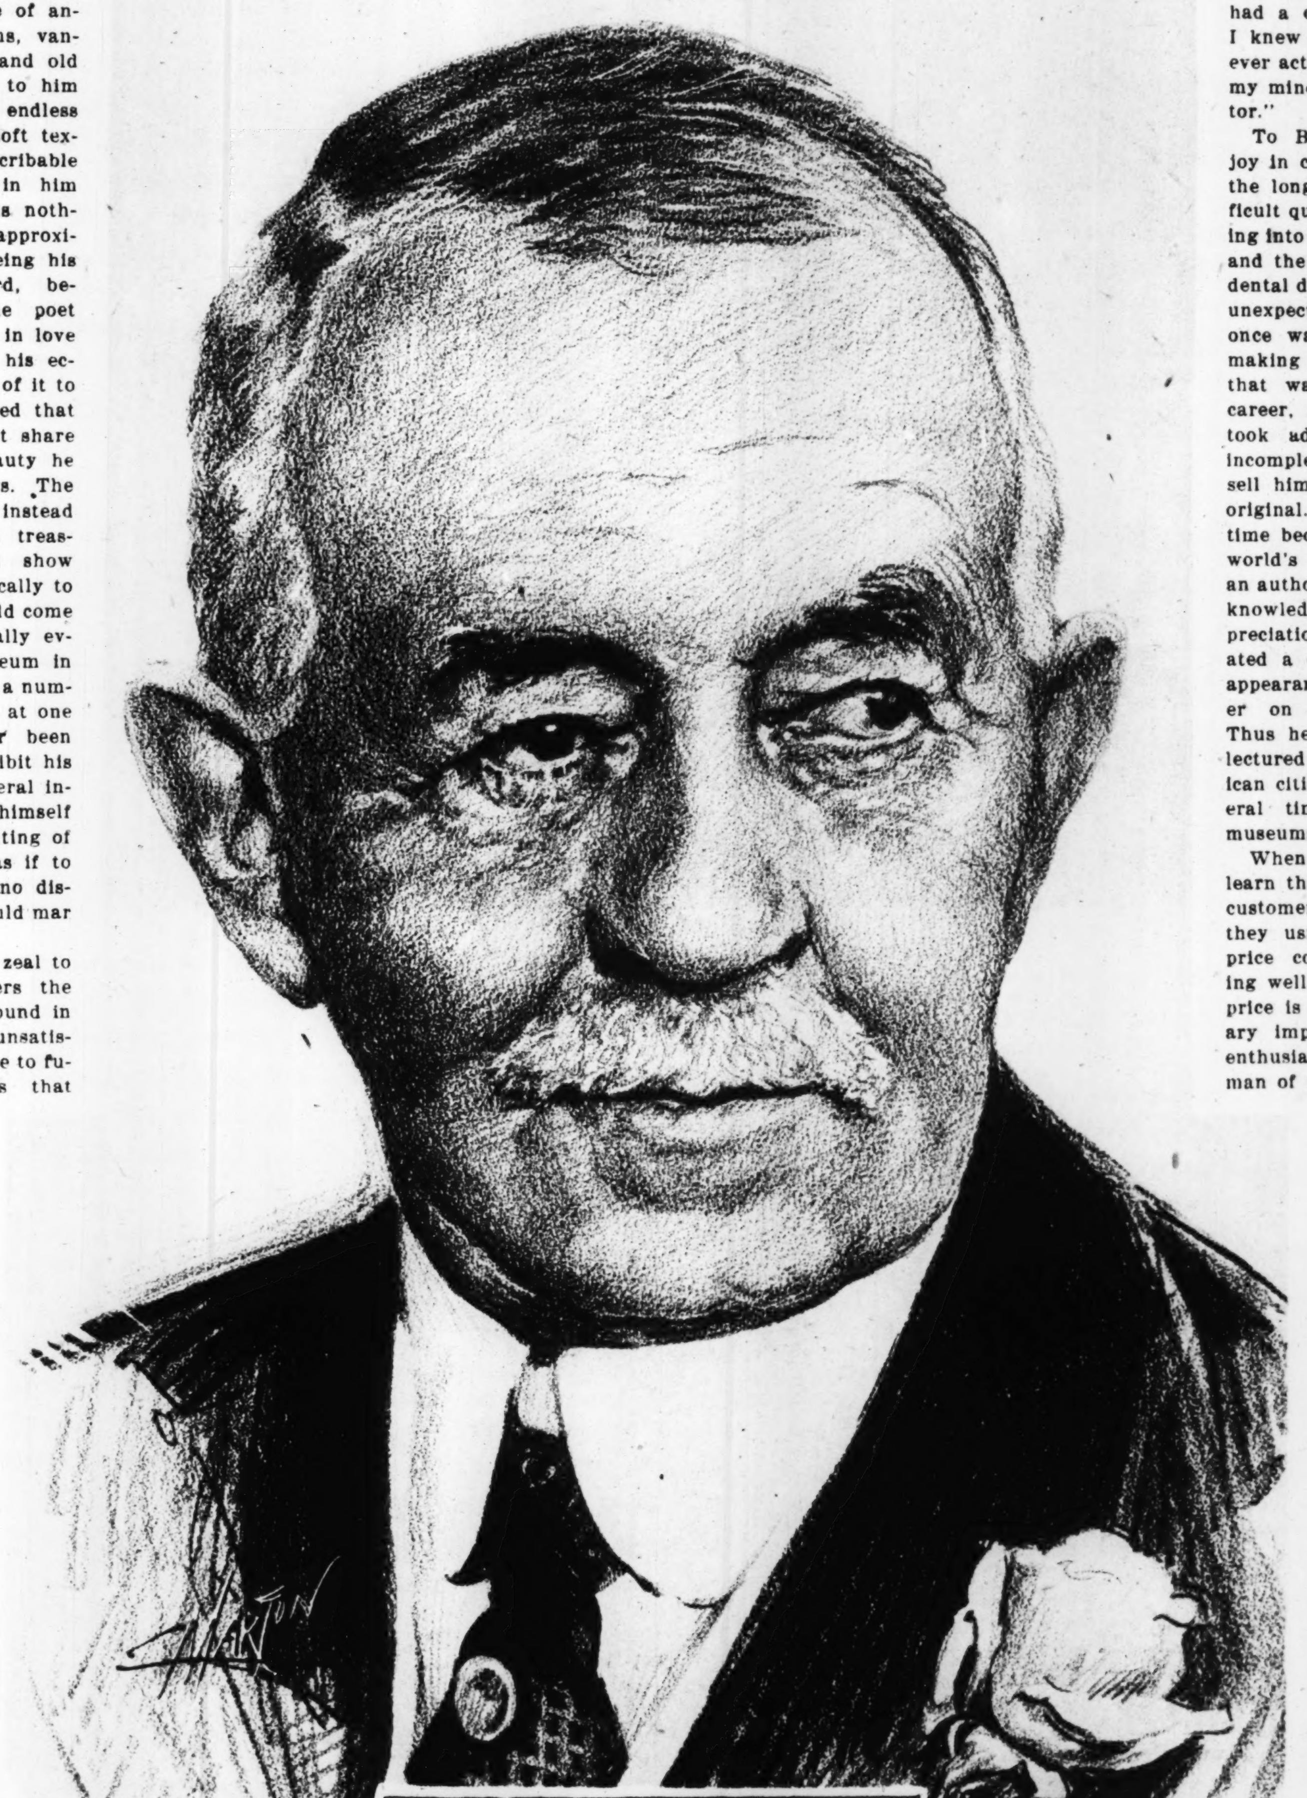
"Very well," he said resignedly. "the rug is yours."

Under those circumstances James Franklin Ballard acquired his first Oriental rug, and as he walked out of the dealer's shop little did he dream that he had actually entered upon, at the age of 55, what was to prove the great adventure of his life—collecting Oriental rugs. For that Bergama rug from Asia Minor, like some potent talisman, promptly cast a spell over Ballard, miraculously transforming the business man into a pilgrim who was to devote the rest of his life to a long quest for beauty, a self-imposed pilgrimage destined to carry him to the far places of the earth. In the 25 years that have elapsed since that eventful day James Ballard has traveled more than 400,000 miles collecting beautiful and rare rugs. At times enduring hunger and cold, disregarding hardships and even risking his life, he has pursued a rare specimen with the fervor of a Captain Ahab. For one beauty he had to travel more than 41,000 miles, and for another he waited 18 years, but his efforts and his patience were rewarded, and in the end each was added to his store.

But it was not enough for Ballard, with the passing of time, to become recognized as one of the world's foremost authorities on Oriental rugs, possessing one of the rarest collections ever assembled. Ballard collected rugs because he loved them. The craftsmanship in their construction continuously amazed him. Their symbolic designs, rich in the lore of ancient civilizations, vanishing customs and old faiths, revealed to him a story of endless charm. Their soft textures and indescribable colors aroused in him esthetic emotions nothing else in life approximated. Such being his feelings, Ballard, becoming like the poet who is not only in love but must share his ecstasy by singing of it to the world, decided that others, too, must share the joy and beauty he had found in rugs. The result was that instead of hoarding his treasures, he would show them enthusiastically to whomsoever would come to see. Practically every leading museum in this country, and a number abroad, have at one time or another been permitted to exhibit his rugs, and in several instances Ballard himself paid for the printing of the catalogues, as if to make sure that no discordant note should mar the exhibition.

Even then his zeal to share with others the beauty he had found in rugs remained unsatisfied, and to insure to future generations that rare opportunity in perpetuity, he gave away the best of his collection to museums. Thus in 1922 he gave to the Metropolitan Museum in New York a group of 129 rugs, making their collection of rare rugs the finest in the world, and last year he gave to the St. Louis Art Museum 70 rare rugs, comprising the finest collection of Asia Minor rugs ever assembled.

The gift to the Metropolitan, valued at more than $500,000, was said by the directors to be the "most important and generous gift ever made to the museum by a nonresident of New York State." The gift to the St. Louis Museum, valued at about $250,000, was described as "the greatest gift the Art Museum ever has received." To speak of the value of these two gifts in terms of money, however, is entirely misleading. Each collection, if sold at auction, would bring much in excess of the amounts above named, for each collection contains rugs that cannot be duplicated, rare examples the like of which are not known to exist anywhere else. The thing that distinguishes both these collections isn't their value in dollars, but the knowledge, rare taste and singular devotion to beauty of the man who collected them, qualities to which they so eloquently give testimony.



James F. Ballard.

Ballard on the trail.

The writer talked with Mr. Ballard. When the subject of rugs is mentioned he sits up quickly, and with the enthusiasm of a Casanova recalling the loves of his vanished youth, he speaks of his adventures in wooing and winning the woven beauties of the Orient.

"I feel certain that it was purely my love of color that first attracted me to rugs," says Mr. Ballard, "but I didn't realize what an important part of my make-up that was until I acquired that Bergama rug. It wasn't until then, either, that I began to realize the unsurpassed beauty of color in Oriental rugs. I enjoyed that first rug so much that I soon found myself going to rug sales and auctions whenever I could. I began to read everything I could find on rug weaving, who wove them, and how, and what they were used for. I became interested in the meaning of the symbolic designs with which they were decorated. I went to museums in London, Paris, Berlin—wherever there were rugs to see. When I came upon one that was for sale and appealed to me, I bought it. Well, I had a collection before I knew it, and without ever actually making up my mind to be a collector."

To Ballard half the joy in collecting was in the long and often difficult quest, the burrowing into obscure corners, and the occasional accidental discovery of some unexpected beauty. Only once was he fooled in making a purchase, and that was early in his career, when a dealer took advantage of his incomplete knowledge to sell him a copy for an original. But Ballard in time became one of the world's leading experts, an authority whose wide knowledge and deep appreciation actually created a demand for his appearance as a lecturer on Oriental rugs. Thus he has not only lectured in many American cities, but has several times spoken at museums abroad.

When rug dealers learn that a prospective customer is a collector they usually boost the price considerably, being well aware that the price is only of secondary importance to the enthusiast. Although a man of means, Mr. Ballard has never had at his disposal a fortune comparable to that of many famous art collectors. To escape being imposed upon he always tried to conceal his identity while traveling. This he was able to do with a fair measure of success in the early years of collecting, but as his reputation as a connoisseur grew and his collection increased in importance, obscurity was no longer possible. The result was that no collector of rugs who ever lived has been so widely interviewed. Newspapers of every continent, except Australia, have carried stories about him. Tokio hailed him as the dean of loom experts. Leningrad knows him as well as St. Louis or Detroit. Dailies along the Nile invariably sent reporters to his ship. Newspapers in Singapore, Indo-China, Manila, Rangoon, Delhi, Madras, Alexandria, Cairo, Naples, Rome, Bombay, Constantinople and Smyrna have told their readers of the St. Louis man and his marvelous collection of rugs. The result was that when a native Prince in far off Jaipur or a potentate in the Caucasus had a rug to sell, a letter was promptly dispatched from these high places to Ballard. In like manner, aristocratic mandarins trying to salvage imperial fortunes, hurried their emissaries to this American to bargain for the sale of carpets on which their ancestors, under the Great Wall of China, had trod for centuries.

No man can travel more than 400,000 miles in quest of rugs without experiencing unusual adventures. Mr. Ballard has had his share. Indeed, he almost lost his life in the process of obtaining his famous "bird rug," now in the Metropolitan. During many years he had been searching for an almost lost specimen of the famous Seljuk Turk "bird rug," woven about 1550, a type of rug that obtains its name from the presence of birds in the design. When he arrived in London, in 1922, and announced the object of his visit to dealers, they shook their heads at the hopelessness of his search. Paris rug merchants were no more encouraging, so Mr. Ballard headed toward the Orient. His traveling companion was an Englishman, also a connoisseur of weaves.

PASSING through Thrace on the third night out from Paris three soldiers with fixed bayonets entered their train at 1 o'clock in the morning. A young officer was in command and he promptly made both passengers prisoners of war. It happened that the Greeks and the Turks were then engaged in one of their periodic struggles, and the Greeks were apprehending all strangers crossing the border. The Britisher was furious at the arrest and was all for putting up a fight, as foolish as that would have been under the circumstances. But Mr. Ballard, one of whose principles of conduct is that a soft word will open treasure chests that will not yield to a hammer, had other ideas. Mr. Ballard quieted his companion and turning to the officer, who was a pleasant-looking young man, assured him that he would be glad to accompany him, hinting that it was actually a pleasure to be taken off the train after so long a journey.

The officer was so pleased with Mr. Ballard's good-natured attitude that instead of marching them to a jail for the rest of the night he led them, under guard, from one hotel to another. Neither of the two travelers could understand what the officer was saying to the various innkeepers, but they finally realized that he was actually putting himself to a lot of trouble trying to get them a decent place to sleep.

But no room was to be had. Finally, about 3 o'clock in the morning, they came across an inn keeper who, while regretting that he had no empty room, offered the foreigners the hospitality of two rocking chairs on his porch. Ballard and the Englishman sat down. The officer then turned to them and said that he had some business to attend to for a few minutes. Would the gentlemen promise to remain there until his return? Ballard promised and the officer and his soldiers disappeared. Twenty minutes later the young Captain came back with the surprising announcement that he had managed to find a man who owned double beds in which they might spend the rest of the night. The two suspects promptly went off to bed, sleeping soundly until it was time for them to be taken to headquarters at Adrianople.

WHEN they were finally arraigned in court the General was obviously impressed by the favorable report the officer made. The General explained that he was responsible for every stranger crossing the border. Nevertheless, he said, he could not bring himself to make prisoners of two such affable and friendly persons, and so they were free to go where they pleased. Not only that, but he would allow the young officer to be their guide and to show them the sights of Adrianople if they so desired. The offer was accepted with thanks.

Then Mr. Ballard had an inspiration. He explained to the young Greek officer his search for the famous Seljuk "bird rug." The officer was greatly interested and assured Mr. Ballard that if such a rug existed in Adrianople they would find it. They toured the city, visiting every rug shop but one. At the last shop on the list they asked the dealer to show them the oldest rugs he had. He pulled out a rug and unfolded it. It was woven of wool, the pattern worked in tan, red-brown, blue and olive-green on a cream-white background. Mr. Ballard's heart suddenly thumped. He had found his "bird rug" at last.

But now the task was to get it out of that war-torn area. The next day Mr. Ballard went to Constantinople. As it happened, that was the very night the Turks got word of the capture of Smyrna. Twenty thousand furious Turks came over from Stamboul to release their fury in pillage and bloodshed. It was a night of rioting and murder. There was fighting all night, even in the halls and corridors of the Tokatalina Hotel, where Mr. Ballard had stopped. Four persons were killed in the hotel and the

Mormon Dissenters Returning to Missouri after 97 Years

Latter Day Saints Who Broke With Brigham Young and Refused to Go to Utah Are Building Their Zion at Independence, From Where They Were Banished in 1833.

INDEPENDENCE, Missouri.

THE bones of Joseph Smith are in the eighty-fifth year of their repose beneath the hill at Nauvoo, Illinois, overlooking the Mississippi, but the Mormon prophet's soul hovers above Independence, amid Missouri's cornfields, and beckons the faithful to return. So in growing numbers the scattered members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints are turning their steps toward this pleasant little city which was their home in the early 1830s and which, the church fathers have decreed, is to be their Zion.

Here, according to what they accept as divine revelation, they have been commanded to build the New Jerusalem where Christ, upon His return to earth, shall reign a thousand years. Here, it is ordered, the most beautiful temple of the world shall rise on the sacred tract set aside for the purpose a century ago, and here the Saints shall live together in love, equity, righteousness and peace.

"If Zion do these things," it is promised, "she shall prosper and spread herself and become very glorious, very great and very terrible; and the nations of the earth shall honor her, and shall say: Surely Zion is the city of our God."

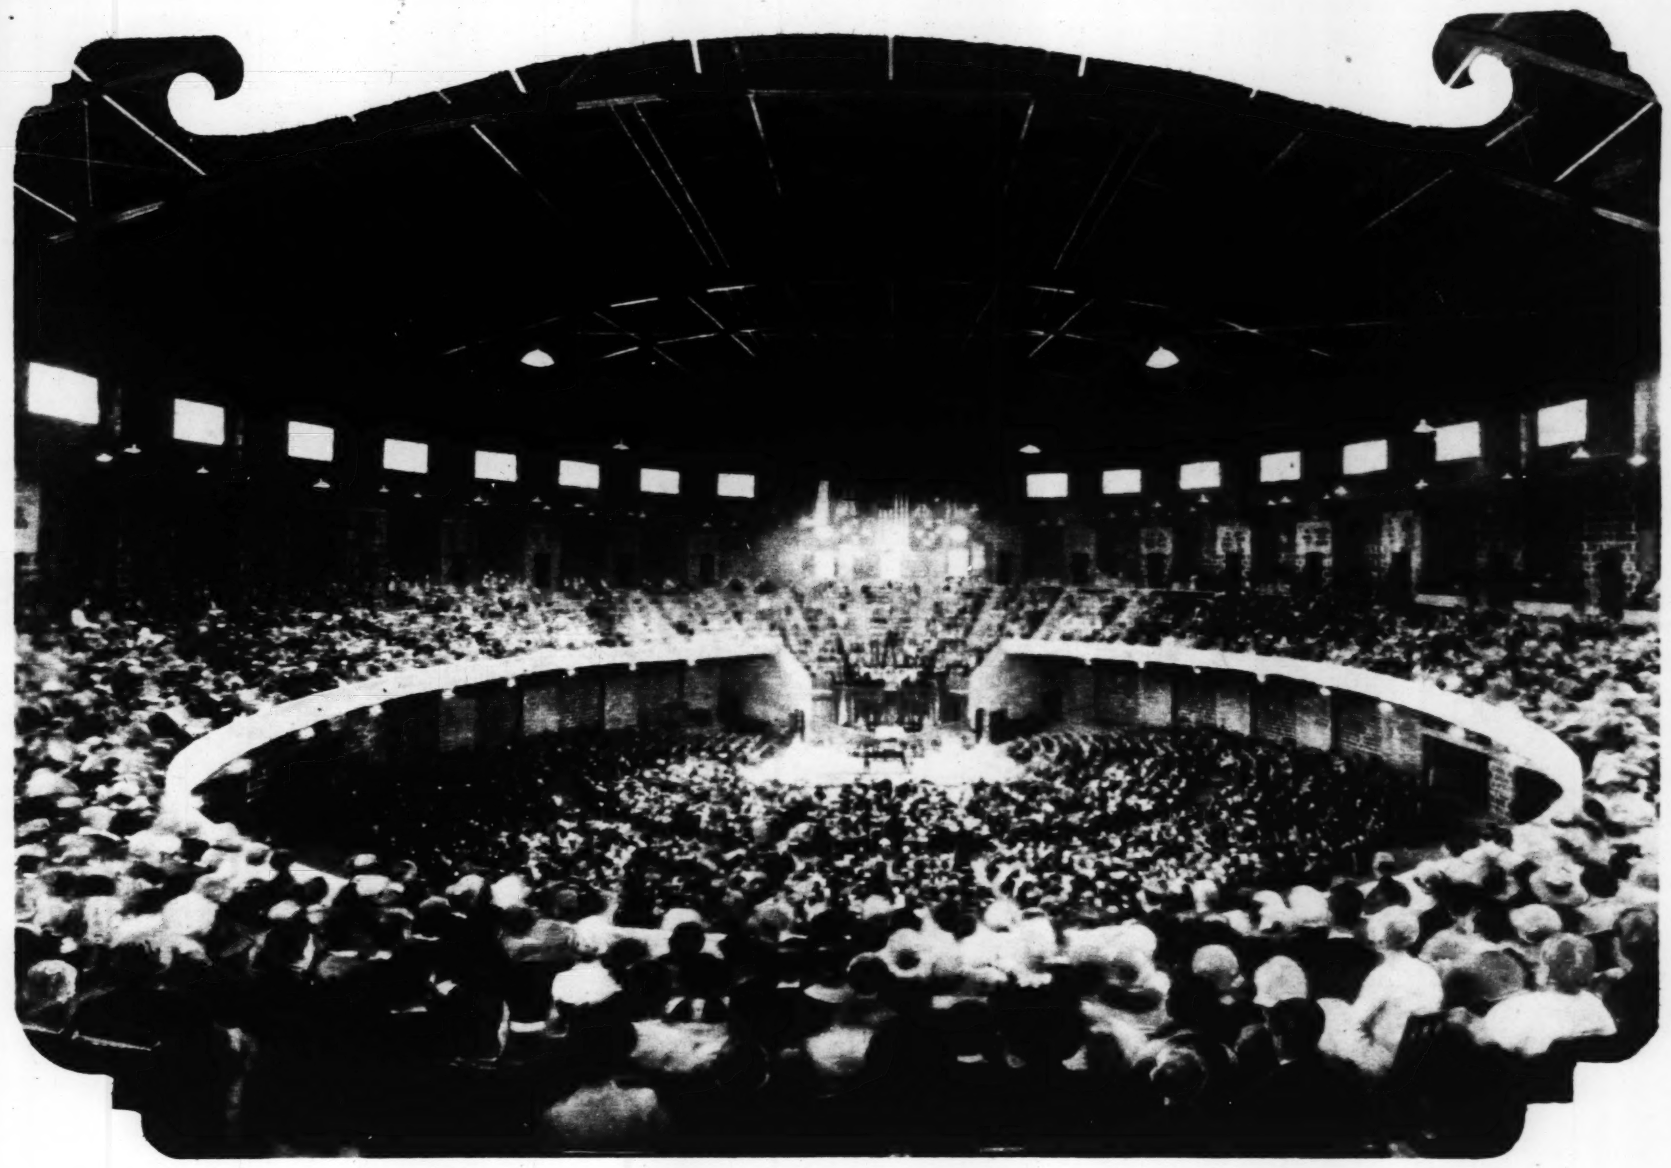
Zion did not prosper on her first attempt to rise upon Missouri soil. The nations of the earth did not honor her and nobody among the Missouri pioneers of the region was heard to voice a suspicion that the growing Mormon village might be the dwelling place of his God. Zion's presence was bitterly resented. There was hostility and strife between the "Saints" and the "Gentiles," and after two years of bickering, which was not without bloodshed, the newcomers were banished from Independence in 1833. Subsequently they were banished from other Missouri localities in which they tried to settle and from Nauvoo, Illinois. It looked for a time as though a holy city would never be able to rise anywhere and prophecies as to the specific site were forgotten.

BUT after the schism of 1846, in which the Brigham Young faction of the church broke away and later built what it regarded as the true Zion in Utah, the dissenters remaining behind got together as the "Reorganized" Church and fastened their hopes again upon western Missouri. Slowly they started drifting back to Independence, and now a definite program of activity is under way looking toward realization of Joseph Smith's dream of 1831.

It is an ambitious program of building, colonizing, church expansion and educational and industrial development. From all parts of America, and even from foreign lands, Latter Day Saints (with the exception of the Brigham Young Mormons of Utah) are coming back in response to the Reorganized Church's invitation and the prophet's admonition that strength and prosperity are to be found in unity. Frederick M. Smith, grandson of the founder and third president of his church, is directing operations.

It is not to be understood that the community is swarming with Mormon immigrants or that the town is worried over a prospect of being overwhelmed. So far, the community has absorbed the increase and the newcomers have entered into and made themselves a part of the town's social and industrial life. But it is a fact that by slow and steady growth the Saints have become powerful in this section of the State. Within a city of 15,000 total population the Reorganized Church boasts a membership of 6000, which does not include children under 8 years of age. Approximately 2000 have moved in within the last five years and few have moved away. There is a gradual concentration of forces, religious and economic, in this rejuvenated New Jerusalem, which, according to Mormon prophecy, "after it should be destroyed, it should be built up again a holy city unto the Lord."

By the tithing system, which is extended to all of the 108,000 members scattered over 14 countries besides the United States, the Reorganized Church has become prosperous.



Interior view of unfinished auditorium and part of convention crowd.

IN Independence and vicinity alone its own property is valued at approximately $4,000,000. It has nine congregations in the district including Kansas City and nine churches. It has a hospital, an old people's home, an institute of arts and sciences, and a publishing house, several blocks of residence property and is completing an immense auditorium at a cost of approximately $1,250,000. In Johnson County the church owns about $250,000 worth of rich farm land, which is being developed as a stewardship community where impoverished or unskilled newcomers may find a home and work for the church under a system of co-operative producing and co-operative selling. In Taney county, near the Arkansas line, there is another tract of 12,000 acres which the church expects to colonize in the same manner. At Lamoni, Iowa, its chief educational institution—Graceland College—flourishes.

Most conspicuous among the development projects is the new Auditorium, into the construction of which 800,000 Mormon dollars already have been placed. Standing high upon an eminence, the mammoth structure is visible for 25 miles in any direction, its dome shimmering in the sunlight and proclaiming that a new Zion is rising from the ruins of 1833. It is the dominating architectural feature of the entire district around Kansas City. The building has a frontage of 250 feet, a depth of 270, and its height from the basement to the top of the dome is 131 feet. The main auditorium chamber, which has not a single supporting column, will seat 7000 on the main floor and balcony, and besides this chamber there is a theater or concert room in the basement which will seat 3000 more. The basement kitchen and dining room will take care of a thousand guests at a time. The offices housing the presidency, the quorums, the bishopric, the patriarchs, the publicity director, architect and other functionaries are in the corners of the 4-story building and are reached by wide ramps which encircle the main chamber.

Although nearly half a million dollars must yet be spent before the edifice is complete with pipe organ and roof covering of sheet copper, it was far enough along to house the centennial convention which was held in April celebrating the one-hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Mormon church. Mormons came from points as far away as Australia and New Zealand for this world convention. There were about 10,000 visitors and the sessions continued for two weeks. It was the largest gathering ever assembled by the Reorganized Church.

TOWNSPEOPLE of other creeds co-operated with the Saints in making the visitors welcome and comfortable. In turn, the resident Mormons co-operate with the "Gentiles" in civic and social service undertakings. Friction is conspicuously absent. There is a sharp contrast between the hostility with which the early Mormons were greeted and the indifference with which present day Independence views the influx of Joseph Smith's adherents. One reason appears to lie in the fact that a more tolerant attitude generally has sprung up between members of different religious beliefs, and another lies very clearly in the fact that the reorganized branch disclaims all connection with the Utah Mormons and vehemently flouts the Brighamite doctrine of polygamy. Polygamy, these Missouri Mormons assert, has never been practiced or countenanced in the Reorganized Church. Indeed, they are shy of the name of Mormons, because, they say, it confuses them with the Utah group and calls up the suggestion of polygamy, even though the Utah Mormons themselves have now abandoned it. The Utah church, with headquarters in Salt Lake City, is far more powerful in wealth and numbers. In 1924 it had 535,659 members on its rolls—members scattered all over the world, but with greatest numbers in Utah, Idaho, Nevada and Wyoming. In Utah, 90 per cent of all church members are Mormons.

Both of these main branches of the Latter Day Saints (there are several other smaller branches) trace their doctrines to the same general source. Both regard Joseph Smith as the founder and true prophet. Both accept the Book of Mormon which Smith claimed was derived from golden plates he found buried in the Hill Cumorah, in New York State, their hiding place having been revealed to him by an angel. Both believe that direct revelation, prophecy, healing by laying on of hands and other spiritual gifts promised by the New Testament are to be enjoyed today by the faithful. In the Reorganized Church the divine revelations are supposed to come to the president, but must be carefully examined and passed upon by the Quorum of Twelve and the Quorum of Seventy before they may be accepted as authentic. This leads to bickering and dissension sometimes, particularly when the revelation commands displacement of certain members of the quorum.

Frederick M. Smith, grandson of Joseph Smith and the third of his line to be president of his church.

IT WAS their belief in direct revelation which aroused much of the early prejudice against the Mormons when they came to Independence in covered wagons in 1831, looking for the site which four Mormon missionaries had selected as the spot for the future Zion. Pioneer Baptists and Methodists were willing to concede that prophets of Biblical times had revelations and talked with angels, but the claim of these newcomers that they were having the same experience right along was regarded as not only absurd but scanadalously irreverent.

There were other factors besides religion contributing to the breach, too. In the first place, most of the residents of Jackson County were slave holders, or at least were in sympathy with the principle of slavery. The Mormons, on the other hand, coming chiefly of New England stock, were rabid abolitionists. Missourians, therefore, watched the incursion with increasing alarm. These newcomers were entirely too possessive in their attitude. They acted as if they owned the country and were extremely clannish. When they set up a printing plant and turned out a Book of Commandments which referred to Missouri as "the land of your inheritance which is now the land of your enemies," Jackson County settlers regarded it as a declaration of war, and open hostilities ensued. The immediate removal of all Mormons from the country was demanded, and when Governor Dunklin deferred action the settlers took matters into their own hands. A mob assembled, destroyed the printing plant, tarred and feathered a bishop and drove the whole Mormon population across the river into Clay County. At least 1500 were banished on that occasion, many women and children suffering hardship in the November storms.

IN turn the unwelcome Saints were driven out of Clay, Daviess and Caldwell counties, the sporadic warfare against them finally culminating in a sanguinary encounter at Far West in 1838. That clash cost many lives and left a bitter memory for both Saints and Gentiles. Smith and his followers then determined to try Illinois, and in the spring of 1839 settled at Commerce, near Quincy, changing the name of the place to Nauvoo, which is supposedly derived from a Hebrew word meaning beautiful.

Here they prospered for a time. A temple was built and Nauvoo, under the dictatorship, temporal and spiritual, of Joseph Smith, attained a population of some 20,000. But troubles pursued them as troubles had in Missouri. They were constantly at strife with the surrounding settlers, and eventually strife developed within their ranks. After a period of disorganization and warfare with the State in 1844, Joseph Smith was assassinated, as was his brother, Hyrum, and the charter of the city of Nauvoo was repealed. Again the Mormons faced exile.

The MATTERHORN TAKES ITS REVENGE

By ALBIN E. JOHNSON

AMONG those who live in the high valleys of the Alps there is a saying that the Old Man of the Mountain always wins in the end—that the White Death awaits those who become irreverent or grow blase over his tolerance. Guides who have grizzled among the peaks and defiles of the Bernese Oberland, the Valaisian Alps and the Mont Blanc and Jungfrau ranges seldom when sober speak disparagingly of the mountains—they have seen them triumph far too often.

The recent tragic (mountaineers find it heroic) end of the career of Hermann Perren of Zermatt, ace of contemporary guides, just as he was about to end his mountaineering days, is a typical example of the Odysseys which are yearly recorded, yet seldom sung on the printed page, among the mountain folk.

Perren was born in the mountains, he lived his life in the mountains and died in the mountains. At the age of 60 he had conquered the famous Matterhorn, king of Swiss peaks, 143 times. His goal was 150 ascensions, after which he had promised his family and friends that he would retire from the sport—and business. He knew every cranny and crag of the rugged and forbidding peak against which he had so many times matched his instinct and intelligence amid diverse conditions.

Hermann Perren, ace of Zermatt guides.

But like Alexander Burgener, around whom they still weave legends in the Oberlands, although two decades have passed since the Bergli hurled an avalanche down upon the intrepid guide and his companions, enveloping them in the white death that is so omnipresent, Hermann Perren could not fight the unknown. He may have passed over the same spot a score of times in the days gone by, yet when a treacherous "pont de neige" opened at his feet he dragged his companion, to whom he was roped, with him to keep his rendezvous with Old Man Mountain.

To the little village of Zermatt, which nestles several thousand feet above sea level under the shadow of the Cervin (as Matterhorn is also called), the tragic accident brought consternation. Perren, its most celebrated native son, was exceedingly popular, a member of the Village Council, proprietor of a picturesque wayside inn and an authority on everything pertaining to mountaineering. Among Valaisian guides he was known far and wide by the sobriquet Wolf of the Glaciers.

Matterhorn is known the world over as a sporting mountain. Many climbers of imagination or experience have matched their prowess against the giant of the Swiss-Italian Alps. Deceptive in its simplicity, the peak, which rises a sheer 15,000 feet into the skies, has lured many to its summit. Yet, with the vagaries of its winds, the sudden storms and fogs which envelop it, the treacherous rock formations, precipices, chasms and abysses, Matterhorn has hurled back most of those who have challenged it—many bruised and battered and not a few dead from their wounds.

To Perren, Burgener and other veteran guides who knew it, Matterhorn held no terrors; only an immense respect. They had subdued it too many times. Perren, particularly, regarded it as "his mountain." He was its child, born within its shadow. Matterhorn had punished him many times, yet, considering all, it had treated him tenderly. No other human being had been allowed to stand on its jagged summit so many times. No other guide had ever earned such a patrimony showing the curious Matterhorn's secrets. Back in 1902, when he was still a youth, old Matterhorn taught Perren his first serious lesson. He was attempting one of the earliest ascents on skis. A snow-covered crevasse opened under his feet and dragged Perren and his charge into its depths. When the rescue party descended with the aid of ropes they found Perren, badly injured, by the side of his dead companion. To his dying day he carried the scars of that experience.

It was exactly 28 years to a day that Matterhorn made the same move against its most favored guide. This time Perren and his companion were taken from the glacier—dead.

Perren knew all the whims and vagaries of his mountain. He could match his wits against them and win. He had a sixth sense which warned of dangers both from the elements and the fickle terrain.

THE event which Perren loved to recall more than his mountaineering exploits, however, was his pilgrimage to Rome with a group of Valaisian guides to pay homage to another mountaineer once known as Mgr. Achille Ratti but now gracing the papal throne as Pius XI. In their picturesque Valaisian garb, the group were presented to His Holiness, hobnail boots, coiled ropes across their shoulders and the other accoutrements of their profession. The Pope gave the pilgrims his blessing, and to Perren, who at the time had passed his 100th ascension of Matterhorn, he expressed his greatest admiration and extended congratulations.

Today Perren's son, still in his twenties, is marching in his father's footsteps. Already he has 78 victories over the Matterhorn to his credit. Who knows what mark he may set? Matterhorn is tender to those who fear it most. Young Perren, while he does not fear the mountain, respects it and reverences it. He holds no grudge against it for exacting the supreme penalty from his father. The mountain folk believe that the spirit of the old guide roams the cols and peaks of the range and that it will watch over the welfare of Perren's son.

quently found to have been fortified. Properly selected signal stations marked by ruined walls testify to the ancient system of communication.

"They had no machinery except the lever and the inclined plane. They did not understand the use of iron nor had they conceived of the importance of a wheel or even of an arch. They did, however, make huge fiber ropes which they used in the construction of suspension bridges over impassable rapids. Such were also used probably in the handling of giant building stones weighing from five to 20 tons, which were brought from their quarries and fitted together with a skill that has amazed all beholders."

The exploring party found what Bingham believes to be conclusive evidence that the later group, composed mostly of the Virgins of the Sun and their attendants, occupied the citadel. Part of the city gives indication of workmanship of a much later period. Instead of the perfection found in the old city, with walls composed of giant blocks keyed and locked together, the later builders resorted to adobe. Their work is crude. Often it is found super-imposed on the ancient walls.

In the tombs there was further evidence. It was plainly indicated that the bones of those buried at an early time had been swept aside to make way for the dead of the later arrivals.

There were even signs that the contents of the royal mausoleum, the one occupied, according to Bingham's theory, by Pachacuti VI, had been disturbed. "In honor," Bingham writes, "of this same exalted personage, the most experienced master mason of the time constructed the most beautiful wall in America, built in the form of a try-square, and connecting the temple with the priest's house. This wall is made of carefully matched blocks, of white granite especially selected for its pure color and fine grain. The interior surface of the wall is broken by niches and square projecting stones or pegs. The exterior is perfectly simple, yet we grew more fond of it than of any other structure at Machu Picchu."

The Bingham party found several altars for sun worship. They were built on the highest eminences of the city and consisted chiefly of a granite post, and two or three steps. These granite posts served, in Inca belief, as hitching posts for the sun. When, during the winter season, they saw the sun's light diminsh and its period of shining grow shorter and shorter, they became alarmed. But the priests reassured them. The sun was hitched by a long line to the granite post so that it could never stray entirely away and leave the Incas in perpetual cold and darkness. The sun played a very large part in Inca life. Bingham suggests that the mummies were taken out of their tombs occasionally and given sun baths. The mummy wrappings, of course, had long since disintegrated and only bones were found.

"It was the custom in mummifying a body," Bingham writes, "to draw the knees up to the chin so as to make the mummy take up as little space as possible."

No gold was found in one remarkable tomb of a woman apparently of high rank, or anywhere else at Machu Picchu. And Bingham remarks, "Gold must have been extremely scarce if none could have been spared for such a grande dame as was here interred. Perhaps whatever gold she may have possessed had been confiscated and sent to form part of the ransom of the unfortunate Atahualpa, whose failure to fill a room full of gold for Pizarro cost him his life."

Summing up, Bingham writes:

"Surely this granite citadel which has made such a strong appeal to us on account of its striking beauty and the indescribable grandeur of its surroundings appears to have had a most interesting history. Selected as the safest place of refuge for the last remnants of the old regime, becoming the site of the capital of a new kingdom, giving birth to the most remarkable family which South America has ever seen, abandoned when Cuzco once more flashed into glory as the capital of the Peruvian Empire, it was again sought out in time of trouble when the foreign invader arrived—this time from the north—with his burning desire to extinguish all vestiges of the ancient religion, and so finally became the home and refuge of those consecrated women whose institutions formed one of the most interesting features of the most humane religion of aboriginal America.

"Here, concealed in a canyon of remarkable grandeur, protected by nature and by the hand of man, the Virgins of the Sun gradually passed away on this beautiful mountain top and left no descendants willing to reveal the importance or explain the significance of the ruins which crown the beetling precipices of Machu Picchu."

Mormon Dissenters Return

and two years later the hegira westward through Iowa was begun, the emigrants stopping for a while at Council Bluffs and then, in 1848, continuing across the plains to Utah. The reorganized saints now declare it was after the schismatic branch reached Utah that polygamy was introduced. Brigham Young, they assert, promulgated the doctrine himself and converted his credulous followers by producing a spurious document that purported to be a sanction of it in the form of a "revelation" given years before through Joseph Smith. Other historians contend that polygamy was practiced covertly in Nauvoo and that Smith himself, with a score of wives, was the worst offender.

While the "Brighamites" were building their Zion in Utah the minority faction, left without a leader, were scattering to the four winds. Some went back to Kirtland, Ohio, whence they had originally come. Others went to Iowa and many remained at Nauvoo. Among those who remained was Joseph Smith Jr., who was a boy of 12 when his father was killed. Efforts were made to take him to Utah, but he refused all offers, as did his mother. Sixteen more years then passed before he consented to succeed his father as the second president. At a conference held at Amboy, Illinois, in 1860, however, he agreed to take the leadership of the Reorganization movement. Since that time, officials of the group declare, the history of the church has been a record of steady growth and development. Headquarters first were established at Plano, Illinois, and then moved to Lamoni, Iowa. Finally, the drift back to Independence became so pronounced that the Saints decided to hearken to the old Mormon prophecy which designated the Missouri city as the future Zion. Joseph Smith Jr. came in his declining years and died here in 1914, his son, Frederick, then taking up the responsibilities of president.

Frederick M. Smith still is at the helm. From his suite of offices in the new Auditorium Building he directs the religious and community activities of the Reorganized Church throughout the world. To him largely is credited the sound financial condition of the organization, the success of the first great world convention and the rapidly-growing migration of Mormons to Independence. He has particularly encouraged isolated members to come here and join the community—members who have not access to churches of their own sect in their home states.

FOR this organization and propaganda work he has built up a competent staff of assistants who are supported by the church on a budget basis and who work without salary in what they consider a divine calling—that of building the New Jerusalem. One of the community's ablest workers is Henry C. Smith, the architect who designed the auditorium and who, mayhap, will build the Temple when the time is right and the Saints' bank account will stand the strain.

The Temple may be a long way in the future, but the faithful are willing to wait. They have already waited nearly a hundred years. The site is ready, after having been lost for almost a century. That is something, and Temple enthusiasm is growing. Meanwhile, the big auditorium looms on the hilltop, the biggest step yet taken in the building of the Zion which, according to prophecy, shall "prosper and spread herself and become very glorious, very great and very terrible."

leave that night on their honeymoon that he asked me to be a 'pal' and help them out. I did.

"I told the clerk at the Marriage License Bureau that I was Nedra and was 23 years old. Then we went up to the Municipal Building and were married. I was just doing it for Nedra, you understand, and I used her name. I didn't want to get married. Sherry and I went back to the apartment and when Nedra came home they kissed each other and grabbed their bags and rushed out to catch the train for Montreal. I stayed home and fixed up the apartment so they could move in when they got back.

"About a week after they returned they began quarrelling over the tiniest little things and finally, after a hot row, they separated and Sherry walked out of the apartment one morning at 2 o'clock. Sherry must have gone home and told his parents the whole story, because I received a call from his father. He said he wanted to talk with me. I asked him if he didn't mean Nedra, but he said I was the one he wanted to see and told me I was his son's wife. I went over to see him and he told me the person who took the vows was really the bride no matter what name was used.

"I then went to Tex Guinan and asked her what to do and she turned me over to her own lawyer, Max Lopin, and he's bringing suit for annulment. The worst of it is I've ruined my own love affair trying to help out Nedra. I became engaged to a young man I met since the marriage, but he's broken the engagement saying he didn't want to be engaged to another man's wife."

Sherry's remarks on the subject are short, though very much to the point, and distinguished by unusual candor. Says he:

"The quicker this thing is finished the better. I'm sick and tired of the pair of them. I guess I was a damned fool, all right."

struggle lasted until morning. But the St. Louisan managed to come out of it alive, and with his precious rug set out that morning for Smyrna, of all places. His ship was to sail from that port, but the same bloodthirsty mob was headed for the same place. Ballard arrived at the height of the rioting. But he managed to get on board the S. S. Lamartine just as the city was set on fire. When the Lamartine steamed away Ballard and his precious rug were safely on board.

Then there was that Indo-Persian Ispahan that caused him so much effort before it was found. He had to travel 41,000 miles, circling the globe nearly twice, before he found it. On his second trip around the earth he was hot on its trail. Rangoon was ransacked in vain. Then Benares, Agra, Delhi and Jaipur, far off in the heart of Rajputana. He endured occasional hunger, fatigue and all the hardships of sudden extremes of temperature, but the treasure still evaded him. He reached Bombay. On the very day that he was to sail away from the city he received a note from a Persian acquaintance inviting him to his home for tea. Mr. Ballard accepted the invitation. Tea finished, they went into the house, and there, spread out on the floor, was the one rug he wanted more than anything else in the world! His host was a very wealthy man, but in view of Mr. Ballard's great efforts to find it, consented to part with the rug.

And there was that rare piece of rug he discovered and acquired quite by chance in a shop in Asia. He was bargaining with an Armenian dealer over a carpet, but was unable to come to terms. He was about to walk out of the shop when the dealer's dog strolled up to him. It was a mangy-looking creature, wearing a sort of blanket made of a dirty and stained piece of old carpeting. The American stooped to pat the dog and then spoke to the dealer.

"I like this dog," he said. "I'll buy him from you, just as he is, if you'll name a price."

The Armenian named his price. Ballard paid it, picked up the dog and walked out. Once outside, Ballard quickly removed the dog's blanket, gave the animal to the first person he met and went his way. His first appraisal of that dirty piece of dog blanket proved correct. When it was cleaned and restored he had a small but authentic example of one of the Orient's rarest weaves.

Mr. Ballard had his reason for making his donation to the Metropolitan of New York.

"IN THE Metropolitan Museum," he says, "more persons have a chance to see and admire beautiful art objects than in any other institution in the world. Therefore, it seems to me only right for a collector to give his treasures in a way that disperses them, so to speak, among thousands."

His gifts to the Metropolitan and St. Louis museums marked Mr. Ballard's official retirement from the field of rug collecting. But his love of these beautiful objects is so great that he will probably never be able to resist buying a beautiful rug whenever the opportunity comes. Only three months ago he bought the fine Cliff Collection of Detroit, and on the floor of his room beside his bed is a lovely Ghiordes recently acquired from a former Russian Prince.

"He called me up and said he had some rugs to show me," Mr. Ballard explained. "I told him I wasn't buying any more, but he came and brought that one. I couldn't resist it."

THE SIMPLE LIFE

And how, of course, you will fail to lead it.

A NEW season is just around the corner and the time is ripe to make those long-desired corrections in your mode of living. You have doubtless felt for some time that your daily schedule lacked certain refinements and you might as well start to fill in the gaps. After all, life is meant to be a pleasant stroll down a shady lane, not a mad dash on balloon tires through a bustling one-way street.

You have always wanted to take a cold shower each morning, work up an appetite with a brisk walk, sit down to a hearty breakfast and leisurely consume it, devote more time to luncheon, read good books, retire early and get at least seven and a half hours of sleep. Why not begin these practices now? You have only to lead this sane, healthy life a short while and you will look, feel and act like a new man.

After a dozen false starts, you may actually inaugurate this program—let us say in the evening. You retire at 10 because you want to read before going to sleep and you will have to be completely out of bed at 6 o'clock sharp.

When the alarm goes off in the morning overcome your desire to linger in bed, scamper out and indulge in a few brisk setting-up exercises. Then prepare for the shower ordeal. Old-timers agree that it requires even more courage to stand under a cold shower than it does to make a prompt leap from bed. Take a deep breath, square your shoulders, grit your teeth, shut your eyes and give the lever a quick, powerful yank. When the water descends, the entire you, not a foot, should be under it.

Your first impulse will be to utter a shriek and back away, but don't obey it. Try to concentrate on the brave deeds of the heroes who preceded you—Hercules, Beowulf, Childe Horn, Lancelot.

THIS will aid you to bear up stoically. Step out of the spray once or twice, if you must, but don't welch by including warm water with the cold.

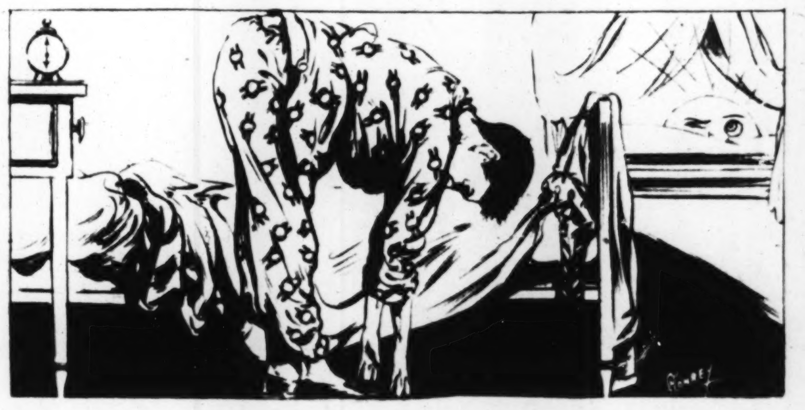
Much easier than any of these matinal chores is the execution of your plan to devote more time to luncheon. The old system, you must admit, was a frightful strain on the nerves. You would shut your desk at any time from 11:30 to 2:15, wriggle into your hat and coat, tear out of the office, careen around the hall, plop yourself into an elevator, drop down to the main floor and then fly across the street to an arm-chair joint. As you entered you would snatch a check from the attendant like an express train picking up a sack of mail on its dash through Hoopstown.

All about you resounded a medley of hoarse shouts, scraping feet, tinkling silverware and clattering dishes. You would burrow a place for yourself among the crowd at the counter and bawl out an order for ice tea and a sklup b oj zow powie (ham, cheese, sliced tomato, lettuce, mayonnaise and pickle) or a binj guf bop whizzo (peanut butter, jelly, corned beef and horseradish).

A man in a white coat would throw your dishes on top of the counter along with an unordered portion of thumb and you would snatch them up to your bosom and ferret around for an empty armchair. Sometimes you would consume the three-decker sandwich in its entirety and sometimes only the hurricane deck. In either event, the total elapsed time of the noon "hour" was never more than 00:04:16.

Let us say that you negotiate an entire day in complete accordance with the new, leisurely schedule. The next morning you find continuance of your schedule threatened. Your wife asks you to match up a plum-covered spool of thread for her at a downtown department store.

You are panic-stricken. You have a vision of yourself tramping around in stores all day, fighting crowds, getting lost, arguing with saleswomen. As it is absolutely necessary to get a little work done, you decide to strike out for the office immediately and forego, just this once, the setting-up exercises, the exhilarating shower, the brisk stroll and the hearty breakfast.



Finding the correspondence piled up rather high on your desk, you decide to wait until noon before starting the thread safari. At 1:38 you close your desk, wriggle into your hat and coat, tear out of the office, careen around the hall, plop yourself into an elevator, drop down to the main floor and fly across the street to the meal-a-second emporium.

"Ice tea!" you shout, and then, in the Zulu-like code—"Sklup boj zow powie!"

When the meal is swallowed, you gallop out of the restaurant and continue down the street to the designated department store. The spool of thread, to your unmitigated amazement, is matched up perfectly in something less than 15 seconds. You are faced with the task of killing about 49 minutes if you are to adhere to your solemn resolution to take an hour's vacation at noon.

Deep down in your heart you know you should do either one or two things—take a stroll or go to the library and read a good book. However, you are irresistibly drawn back to your office. A small voice inside of you files a protest, but you savagely tell it to pipe down, that you will be back on schedule tomorrow.

Inasmuch as the spool of thread has practically blasted your plans, you decide that a little more side-stepping won't hurt you and give your consent to a bridge party that evening. You don't get to bed until 12:45. Quite naturally, you put aside "An Abridged Life of Julius Caesar" that you had started two nights previously and pick up, in its stead, " Chillfen Castle and Other Murders."

YOU read about axes until 1:45, switch off the light, discover that your eyes won't stay shut, toss around, smoke a cigarette, toss around some more and finally fall asleep at 20 minutes to 3.

The alarm goes off a few hours later, but you give it a push in the face and deliberately turn your back on it. You show up at the office at 9:18. Not that you've forgotten your schedule—oh, no. Away back in the recesses of your mind you harbor a complete picture of it and the intention to try it again sometime—next year, maybe.

MY WORD. DON'T TELL ME THOSE ASHES I SHOVELED OVER THAT FENCE FOUR TIMES THIS WEEK ARE BACK ON THIS SIDE AGAIN. SUCH CRUST. WELL, I CAN THROW ASHES AS LONG AS THAT FAT BOY NEXT DOOR CAN. LONGER.
THERE HE IS WATCHING ME FROM HIS WINDOW. MAYBE HE'LL RUSH DOWN HERE TO DEMAND AN EXPLANATION. FINE. GREAT.
AH. ALL OF THEM OVER AT LAST. FINE.
WHOOIE! WHAT THAT SHOVELING DOES TO YOUR BACK. WELL, ANYHOW IT'S NO TOUGHER ON ME THAN IT IS ON THAT WISEHEIMER NEXT DOOR.
YES I JUST SHOVELED THOSE ASHES OVER THE FENCE AND—
WHY GEORGE, THOSE ASHES ARE STILL ON THIS SIDE OF THE FENCE. COME HERE AND LOOK.
YES SIR! HOW DOES HE DO IT? I SPENT A HALF HOUR GETTING THESE ASHES OVER THIS FENCE BUT THAT BABY GETS 'EM BACK HERE IN FIVE MINUTES.
WELL I CAN TAKE AS MUCH PUNISHMENT AS HE CAN.
WHOOIE! OVER AGAIN. MY BACK IS KILLING ME. WELL— WHAT WAS THAT NOISE?
BACK AGAIN! THAT PILE OF ASHES. WHILE I TURNED AROUND. THERE'S SOME MYSTERY—
AH HA, CAUGHT YOU, EH?
SUCH NERVE! I KNEW THAT MAN NEXT DOOR WAS TOO LAZY TO SO OFTEN SHOVEL THOSE ASHES OVER ON THIS SIDE OF THE FENCE.
SUCH CRUST. THINK OF IT. EVERY TIME I'D SHOVEL THOSE ASHES HE'D SIMPLY MOVE THE FENCE. AND WORST OF ALL I MISSED HIM BY AT LEAST A FOOT WHEN I TRIED TO HIT HIM WITH THAT SHOVEL.

YOU'RE A FINE BOY! YOU CAN DESTROY MORE CLOTHING THAN WE CAN AFFORD TO BUY—THERE'S NOT ANOTHER CLEAN PAIR IN THE DRAWER
OH, IT WASN'T MY FAULT—THE NAIL WAS STICKING OUT OF THE FENCE—WHY DON'T THEY DRIVE THE NAILS ALL THE WAY IN?—SOME LAZY CARPENTERS
RUDY, WILL YOU GO OVER TO THE KAZZO STORE AND GET A PAIR OF LINEN KNICKERS FOR JUNIOR—HIS ARE ALL IN THE WASH
I HAVEN'T GOT TIME—I'M A BUSY BUSINESS MAN, I AM—WHY CAN'T YOU WASH AND IRON A PAIR? IT WON'T TAKE YOU LONG

WELL, I'M TERRIBLY BUSY—I JUST HAVEN'T GOT THE TIME FOR SHOPPING TODAY—MAYBE YOU NEED A PAPER OF PINS THAT I CAN WASTE $20 WORTH OF TIME BUYING
WELL, I GUESS I'LL HAVE TO SEW THESE UP AND TAKE YOU DOWN TOWN AND BUY A PAIR—YOUR FATHER IS TOO BUSY TO DO IT
I WANTED TO GO TO A CARD PARTY AND HERE I HAVE TO TAKE YOU TO THE STORE FOR KNICKERS—JUNIOR, YOU'LL BE THE DEATH OF ME YET

IT'S SUCH A LOVELY DAY, I'LL SIT IN THE PARK A WHILE AND READ THE NEWSPAPER!
MY! MY! IT SAYS THAT SLIPPERY JIM, THE NOTORIOUS BUNCO MAN, IS BACK IN TOWN FLEECING STRANGERS AND THAT THE POLICE ARE LOOKING FOR HIM!
WHAT A DEAR OLD MAN! PROBABLY HIS FIRST DAY IN THE CITY, FRESH FROM THE FARM! JUST THE TYPE TO BE TAKEN IN BY A SLICK BUNCO MAN!
I THOUGHT SO! A BUNCO MAN! HE'LL HAVE ALL THE MONEY THAT POOR OLD FARMER HAS IN A MINUTE!
I'LL SIMPLY HAVE TO DO SOMETHING! I CAN'T STAND IDLY BY AND SEE AN INNOCENT OLD MAN SWINDLED RIGHT BEFORE MY EYES! I'LL PRETEND I'M HIS GRANDCHILD AND TAKE HIM AWAY!
HELLO, GRANDPA! I DIDN'T KNOW YOU WERE IN TOWN! COME WITH ME RIGHT AWAY! I HAVE SOMETHING IMPORTANT TO TELL YOU!
WELL, WELL, MY DEAR! I'M SO GLAD TO SEE YOU! HOW DID YOU FIND ME?
I DID THIS JUST TO SAVE YOU FROM BEING SWINDLED! THAT MAN IS PROBABLY A BUNCO MAN! TAKE MY WARNING AND DON'T TRUST STRANGERS!
I CAN'T THANK YOU ENOUGH FOR WHAT YOU'VE DONE! I'LL GET AWAY AS QUICKLY AS I CAN!
HE REALLY SEEMED GRATEFUL! I'M GLAD I WAS ABLE TO WARN HIM IN TIME! IF I HADN'T INTERFERED, HE MIGHT HAVE BOUGHT A FAKE GOLD BRICK!
"T-BONE" TAGGART EATS
SAY, YOUNG LADY, I WANT TO ASK YOU A QUESTION! WAS THAT OLD MAN REALLY YOUR GRANDFATHER? IT'S GOT ME PUZZLED!
NO, HE WASN'T! I NEVER SAW HIM BEFORE! AND FURTHERMORE I KNOW YOU WERE AFTER HIS MONEY AND THAT'S WHY I DID IT. YOU'D BETTER RUN ALONG BEFORE I CALL A POLICEMAN!
DO YOU REALIZE WHAT YOU'VE DONE? I'M A DETECTIVE AND THAT WAS SLIPPERY JIM, THE BIGGEST BUNCO MAN IN THE COUNTRY! I THOUGHT I SAW THROUGH HIS DISGUISE AND I WAS QUESTIONING HIM!
OGEEGOSH!
AUG. 31 1930
AND JUST BECAUSE I LIKE YOU, I'LL SELL YOU THE CITY HALL FOR A SMALL AMOUNT DOWN!
SOUNDS GOOD TO ME! THANK YE, STRANGER!
I'M AFRAID TO TAKE A CHANCE AND MAKE ANOTHER MISTAKE! HE MIGHT REALLY OWN IT!
